CHOICE POETRY.

From the Dollar Newspaper. A MEMORY.

She was a gentle, quiet girl, With darkly waving hair. Just parted in her simple way, On a forehead low and fair, No flush of brilliant lovelines Was sparkling on her face. But something tranquil and subdued, And touching in its grace.

She seldom smiled; but then she brought No cloud on others' glee, And even on her pale young brow A shadow seemed to be; And then her voice was very sad. In soft and earnest tones, With a low and winning eloquence, And a swectness all its own.

Some hidden sorrow on the past A darkness seemed to throw; She never spoke of early ties, Or of pleasures long ago. But in the daily, common cares, She calmly met her share. As one who had no shrinking from The trials life must bear.

No jest was on her placed lip, Where kindest accents hung, And never was the carcless laugh From her still spirit rung: But with a light and silent step She moves among the throng, Promoting in her noiseless way, The cheerful dance and throng. She had a pleasure in the sight

Of others' happy mirth. Such as an angel might have felt, While looking on the earth; For she was like an angel here, So lovely and so pure, And she hath pass'd where spirits are, To dwell with us no more.

We miss the kindness of her voice, And the beauty of her brow: And the sweetest words we ever heard Are silent to us now. She never spoke the quiet grief, Whose blight so early fell-She had been gayer once, they said,

But loved too long and well.

IV As a sample of the coolness of railroad conductors, the Harrisburg Patriot and Union tells the following tough story : "One of them having been discharged from his trust, applied to be reinstated. ADDRESS: Delivered before the Bowentown Farmers' Club, August, 25th, 1859, by EBENEZER HALL. By History and Geography, we presume a large proportion of mankind are engaged in agriculture. When we reflect that all the human family are so dependent upon the success of this universal calling, it creates n) surprise that we should enquire into the elementary principles of so noble a science Knowledge as applied to our theme is a certain perception of that which exists or collection of theories and results known to be true by observation and experiment. We understand by agriculture, the cultivation of the earth—the production of the actual ne cessaries of life for man and beast-nor is it confined exclusively to the production of the actual necessaries of life, but by its efforts the luxuries and dainties of the appetite are furnished—and it is worthy of observation that by the frequent indulgence of the dainties and luxuries of cultivated appetite how soon we regard them as real essentials to our comfortable existence.

The era has passed with civilized and enlightened nations when agriculture is discussed as one of the sciences, and the time has arrived when it claims more thought and investigation than any of the other sciences -the science of Religion only excepted. It is just as necessary that the farmers should be educated in the science of good husbaudry, as those of any of the other professions of life. There has been a period in the history of man when it was thought that any bad sufficient capacity for an agriculturist but as the light of theory and experiment shines forth this unversal and fatal error recedes. An individual would be liable to ridicule and contempt were he to enter the practice of medicine or of law, if he possessed no more scientific knowledge of those professions than one half of those who attempt farming. To deposit seed in the earth is a simple thing-a work of art-nature causes it to germinate and come to the surface of the ground; but it is the work of the farner to prepare the land suitably for the reception of the seed, and to apply the necessary stimulants to the soil for the full development and maturity of the crop. Hence we assert that no wider field of thought or more extensive ground can be opened for scientific investigation than that which the cultivation of the earth furnishes, and such commercial and other professions securing to themselves a few acres of ground, upon which they may produce some of the substantial comforts of life. As an illustration that Agricultural Knowledge is a certain percep tion of that which exists, or a collection of theories and results known to be true by observation and experiment. I would refer you to the fact, that land in this vicinity. that is underlaid with a good yellow clay subsoil, is susceptible of being brought to a high state of improvement, by the application of labor, animal, vegetable, and mineral manures. Or suppose an individual had seen roor land brought to a high state of perfection, and wishing to reclaim some of his own, he would naturally inquire what was applied to the land, and after he learned that labor, animal, vegetable and mineral manures had produced the change, he would be most likely to make the same application to his own land. If his surface soil bore any comparison to the former land, and his subsoil was the same, he would receive nearly the same results; but if his surface soil rested upon sand or loose gravel, his labor onse. Hence we see large tracts of land that have been exhausted of their natural fertility brought to the highest degree of agricultural perfection by the libe-Standard says: "The Daughters of Malta ral supply of the ingredients which enter into the chemical nature of the productions of

But to return more appropriately to cur subject. I remark that no branch of human industry is so entirely dependant upon manual labor, as that of the Agriculturist; for while machinery has been applied to expedite and lessen the labors of the farm, a large proportion of the work ever has and ever must be accomplished by hand.

The earth and the atmosphere furnishes gratuitously the material of which all Agricultural productions are composed, but until labor has been applied, to appropriate that material to the wants of the plants, it is almost wholly destitute of value, and in its original state would bring forth but little of the necessaries of life. I might plant a hill of corn or sow a handfull fof wheat in this school house yard. No one would ever expect to see an ear of corn or a head of wheat come the accumulation of a large quantity of veg- refinement. I remember well, a quarter of to maturity, yet this yard contains all the atural elements for the production of wheat and of corn; but until the necessary labor was applied to the soil, no crop could come to perfection. Farmers often lose largely by a wrong apworthless, without their knowing the cause of their failure. When guano was first introduced, it was sown with the crops on the when farmers began to plow it in, but when Chemistry showed it to be of a gaseous nature, and liable to lose its fertilizing qualities by evaporation, then everyone ploughed it in. Speaking of fertilizers, I am reminded of the extravagance with which farmers rels. I applied it all to my corn, and could never believe that it increased my crop that

In conclusion, I remark that no profession complished in renovating worn out lands in of life is filled with more interest, than that of the agriculturist. It is here we learn to trace natural causes to natural effects: we learn that nature is insufficient of itself, to support us; we learn that our knowledge, and our labor, are required to perfect nature: and we learn there is a perfect harmony of arrangement between nature and man. It is here we learn that though we may feed the soil to its utmost capacity to receive; we may exert our strength beyond its powers of endurance, yet if the Great Author of pature withholds the sunshine and the rain, all the powers of nature and man combined, cannot cause a single grain to come to perfection. A brother in the ministry took occasion to preach on the passage in Luke XVI. 10: 'He that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much." The theme was; that men who take advantage in small things in others, have the very element of character to wrong he community and individuals in great things, when detection or censure is as little to be dreaded. The preacher exposed the various ways by which people wrong others: -such as borrowing; by mistake in change; by errors in accounts; by escaping taxes and custom-house duties; by managing to escape postage, by finding articles, and never seekng owners; by injuring articles borrowed, and never making the fact known to the owner when returned. One lady the next day met the minister, and said, "I have been up to Mr. to rectify an error he made in giving me change a few weeks ago; for I felt bitterly your reproof yesterday .-"Another individual went to _____, to pay for an article not in her bill, which she noticed was not charged when she paid it. The Barren Fig-tree.

A person who has acquired a habit of leting all his religious and virtuous sentiments evaporate in words, instead of being brought into practice in his life, resembles the "barren fig-tree," which was blasted by our Lord's command, to furnish an instructive emblem. A tree that is in a torpid and leafless state in the winter frost, may be roused into vigorous life and fruitfulness, by the summer sun and warm showers. But much more hopeless is one which is in a state of active vegetation, yet bears " n fruits, but leaves only;" such a tree is a picture of the man who is not ignorant or thoughtless respecting morality and religion, but who lets all his knowledge and his ons, however, sometimes attract more notice, and gain more admiration from the inexperienced, than those who talk less, and do more. For you may observe that, in a steam engine, the steam makes a much louder whizzing when it is let off and the wheels are standing still, than when it is quietly acting on the machinery .- Leisure Hour.

Not an Hard Master.

He that never extends his views beyond the praises or rewards of men, will be dejected by neglect and envy, or infatuated by honors and applause. But the consideration that life is only deposited in his hands to be employed in obedience to a Master, who will regard his endeavors, not his success; would have preserved him from trivial elations and discouragements, and enabled him to proceed with constancy and cheerfulness, neither enervated by commendation, nor intimidated by censure. - Dr. Johnson.

Praise of Others.

It is very surprising that praise should excite vanity: for, if what is said of us be true. it is no more than we knew before, and cannot raise us in our own esteem; if it be false, it is surely a most humilitating reflection, that we are only admired because we are not known; and that a closer inspection would draw forth censure, instead of commandation. Praise can hurt only those who have not formed a decided opinion of themselves, and who are willing, on the testimony of others, to rank themselves higher than their merits warrant, in the scale of excellence. Eliza Smith.

A GRAND FESTIVAL.

On Thursday evening of last week, we had the pleasure of attending the Bowentown Farmers' Club Festival, in the School House of that village. It was truly a grand Festival, about one hundred and twenty persons being present. At eight o'clock the President of the Club, Mr. David McBride, Fair tents will be erected on the ground, becalled the meeting to order. An appropripard, after which Mr. Ebenezer Hall was those who may be present with them. No announced, as Speaker for the occasion .- horses or carrisges will be admitted in the Mr. Hall being a practical farmer, unaccustemed to public speaking, made a neat apolcgy for appearing in the capacity of Speaker en that occasion, but nevertheless entered upon the duty in a manner creditable to the most eminent speakers of the day. His subject was " Knowledge and Labor Essential to success in Agriculture." A better or take the 6 o'clock excursion train, which more appropriate Address is soldom heard. The audience was composed principally of farmers, their wives and daughters, who appreciated the remarks of the Speaker, which we give entire on the first page of this week's paper. It will repay a careful perusul, es. in New Jersey, and also the pleasure of atpecially by Agriculturists. It is not worth while for farmers to depend on men from other professions to do their speaking for them, while they have such men as Mr Hall, in their ranks At the close of the Address, which eccupied about half an hour, the President invited the audience to descend to the room on the first floor, where a feast of good things were prepared in the nest tasty manner. The room was hand somely decented with evergreen wienths, bequets and other ornaments. Upwards of fifty bright lights illuminated the room in the most brilliant manner. Three wide ta bles extending the length of the room, almost grouned bineath the weight of the alundent righty of melous, fruit, cakes &u , with which they were loaded.

Watern clens, cantelopes, apples, peaches rears, grafes, cakes in endless variety, such as farmers' wives and daughters alone can treduce, were some of the unnumerable dein cacies that abounded on that occision.

After the large company had feasted for about an hour, and partaken of all they could desire, the tables were yet compara tively filled with melons, fruit and cake in endless variety, preving conclusively, that the supply bad been far too bountiful for the demand. The mammeth cans of Ice Cream of various flavors, stationed at either end of the room, were too well filled to be exhausted by a hundred and twenty guests. At the last of the feast, Cream became " drug in the market," large plates of it being refused by those who could not eat any more. At the close of the evening's enter tainment, the Rev. Joseph B Dunn of New York, by request-made an appropriate oxtempore Speech, of considerable length, in which were many apt illustrations, with which the audience seemed highly gratified. Mr. D. is a young Scotchman, late of Einburg, and has already attained considerable eminence as a pastor and public speaker, having been in this country only about three vears. The Speaker stated that he had traveled over a considerable portion of this State, but had never visited a section of country where greater evidences of presperi ty abounded among agriculturists. The abundance and variety of crops, the produc tiveness of the soil, the manuer in which it was cultivated, and many other prominent features, were dwelt upon in a manner highly creditable to the Speaker. The occasion in every respect, war one long to be remembered. The members of the Club, and all interested in getting up the Festival, deserve much praise for the manner in which it was conducted-

THE AURORA BOREALIS.

Sunday evening. Without the appearance of the Moon, the evening was so light that print could be read distinctly without the uid of any artificial light. Early in the evering some of the usual indications of th Aurors were observed in the nor bern bortion of the sky. Splendid rays of milks whiteness, shot across the firmament, now flushing in gentle coruscations, then changing to the sombre time of an evening cloud. and anon blushing in the delicate radiance of the budding rose. About half-past mine o'clock, from a nuclius nearly in the zenith rays of various tiots shot out in delicate radiance in every direction. This nuclius or sentre, passed rapidly southward, continually changing its appearance, until it gradually fuded from sight in the southern hemis phere. But in the south east, there was the grand and imposing display of this grand and wonderful phenomenon. There, a light fleccy cloud first gently raserd into a rose tinted ennopy, gradually deepening in hue, until it became of the deepest crimson, dyed like Luman blood. Passing slowly in a southernly direction, it at length faded from the view. This remarkable phenomena continued through the entire night, now clotined with delicate tinted drapery, then emitting flashes of milk white or golden light .-At one time, near morning, the fleecy clouds. seemed rolled together in alternate bands of crimson, gold and white, passing our zenith and emitting the most beautiful flashes and corresentions, in every direction. One remarkable feature accompanying it, was its unusual distance to the south. The Aurora usually appearing only in the northern part of the hemisphere. As to its cause, philosothers are not altogether agreed, although all concede it to arise from electrical or magnetic influence and action. A few years ago the spectacle of Sunday night would have created a wide-spread and general alarm. Now, however, the Borealis and its beautiful phenomenon, are recognized as a part of the grand machinery adopted by a wonder-working God, to accomplish the sublime and mysterious operations of the uni-

It is unnecessary to prove his assertions foolish and false, as all who are acquainted with him know that a greater fool, or more accomplished har does not walk the streets of Camden.

ROPE WALKING.

This amusement appears to be the order of the day, since Blondin has been so successful in accomplishing his wonderful feats. His last performance of walking across the Ningara on a tight rope, with a man on his back, attracted the largest crowd that were ever assembled at ceeded immediately to commit the fatal deed | best kampmeeters I ever attended, and no Niagara Falls. The following extract is from "About half past 4 o'clock yesterday, M.

Blondin entered the enclosure, and proceeded to the end of the rope on the American side. His ter looking into the barn, saw her father feelen for all the world gist as the blind man appearance was the signal for a general cheering, which was responded to from the other side of the river. In a few minutes after his arrival, he ascended the rope with his balancing pole, and started to cross the then the other, and then walking about fifteen or twenty feet, stopped and stood upon his head, his head resting on the balancing pole, which lay across the rope, the ends supported upon the guy ropes. He then ran along the rope, stood upon his head—sat down—turned someraets backwards and forwards, and proceeded to the middle, where there are no guys. He here haid down on the rope, on his back at full length—stood on his head—haid his balancing pole across the rope, and stood upon it with the other foot. is hands lying by his side. He then passed ong the rope to where the guys on the Canada side were fastened, and laid down his balancing pole. He now returned with his body suspendbeneath the rope, running along with his hands and feet, as an ape, to the middle of the rope, between the guys. He here went through with all the feats attempted by tight-rope per-formers, such as hanging by one foot, then the other, by one hand, then dropping his body down full length below the rope and whirling round, resting his breast upon the rope, and with arms and legs extended, as if in the act of swimming. He hung by both arms, and then passed his body between his arms and the rope. and, in fact, performed all feats ever accomlished by the most agile tight rope performers le then returned to where his balancing pole was, took it up, and crossed to the Canadian ink, stopping several times to turn somersets stand upon his head, upon one foot, and to lay down upon the rope. Upon his reaching the Canada shore he was received with tremendou duers from the crowd, and the locomotives on the bridge, and on both sides of the river re ponded with their whistles.' The Richester Democrat of the 17th gives at account of the successful accomplishment of a feat just performed by Monsieur De Lave, wit nessed by twenty thousand persons, among over Ningara, neither of whom professe I to have any confilence that De Lave world succeed .-The following is from a Rochester paper:

" Monsieur De Lave performed his feat of arday afternaon, accor ling to aunouncement. The falls are ninery six feet in height, so that the lowest point on the rope must be elevated no handle i and ten feet a nove the water. The distance agrees cannot be far from sever numbered feet; it may be more than that, but, as we have not measured it, we prefer to be or the safe side. The rope passes obliquely over the falls, and in wa king it from east to west, the performer is obliged to ascend in from of, and

De Lave made his appearance, dressed in tights and a velvet jacket, such as is worn by tight-rope performers ordinarily. He wore on his head a velvet hat, gaily decorated with ribbons. An immediate rush was made to the end of the rope by the people who had not recured seats, and it was some time before the police could force the crowd back; but at length order was measure ly restored, and De Lave, taking up his pole urned to the spectators and having bowed graceully around, started holdly out on his perilons walk. He had proceeded but a short distance when it became apperent that the rope was not properly guyed. It swayed from side to side with a sort of waving notion, and to so great an extent, as to excite lively apprehension, even among the coolest of the spectato's. De Live himself seemed to be affected less than anybody else, but he evidently sound it necessary to use great caution. Once or twice he was obliged to stop short, but never lost his balance for a moent, and maintained throughout, the utmost ment, and maintained throughout, the squail self-possession. Some expected to see him quail as he reached the sheet of water pouring over the rocky precipice, but he did his position was apparently one of extreme haz ard. He walked calmly over the roaring cataract, and reached the root of the saw mill amid the deafening cheers of the multitude which watched his progress. He remained on the roof of the building not far from five minutes, and then started on his return. About half of the way across, he suddenly dropped astride of the rope, and there extended himself at full length on his back, after which he recovered his up-right position again, and, after sitting a few seconds, dropped on his breast. He then rose to his feet, and stood on one leg for some time.— Resuming his walk, he speedily gained the east bank, and was received with thunders of ap It is stated that the next time Blondin cresses

The Salamander Safes of Philadelphia against the World.

Have had the surest demonstration in the following cer tificate, that their manufacture of Salamander Safes has at length fully warranted the representations which have been made of them as rendering an undoubted security against the terrific element.

Philadelphia, April 12th, 1856.

Mesars, Evans & Warson,—Gentlemen.—It affords us the highest satisfaction to state to you, that owing to the very protective qualities of two of the Salamander Safes which we purchased of you some few months since, we saved a large portion of our jewelry, and all our books, papers, &c., exposed to the calamitous fire in Ranstead Place, on the morning of the 11th instant.

When we reflect that these Safes were located in the fourth story of the building we occupied, and that they fell subsequently into a heap of burning ruins where the vast concentration of heat caused, the brass plates to melt; we cannot but regard the preservation of their valuable contents as most convincing proof of the great security afforded by your Safes.

We shall take much pleasure in recommending them to men of Lusiness as a sure reliance against fire.

The practical results attending the use of this Guano have been most remarkable and from its permanent action on the soil, it takes precedence over all others. Farmers using it can depend on full and regular supplies; it is unlike some other Guanos which the consumer has just begun to appreciate, when he is informed the "deposit" is exhausted, or the price raised above his abil-ity or inclination to purchase. Upon this he may fully rely, as to the fullness of the supply. The quantity on "Jarvis Island" alone, is be lieved to be over Three Millions of Tons. HALL OF FASHION. Fall and Winter Clothing!! Fall and Winter Clothing!

Jean Bates, feels it due to his numerous patrons, to render them his thanks for their liberal patronage for the past year. Notwithstanding the extraordinary revulsions in the monetary, athairs of the country, our business has steadily progressed, showing that the siyle, price and kind of Clothing we manufacturd, is just what is needed, and that the course we have pursued for years of warranting all we sell to prove as represented, and ficely cx, changing garments that do not suit, has, secured to us, we think, the large patronage we have received. We shall endeavor to confine our business as near to Cash as possible, at the same time we are willing to grant to those of our customers who have heretofore paid us promptly, the nsual credit at Cash prices.

CUSTOMER DEPARTMENT. We have now on hand a very large and complete assorturent of Cloths, suitable for Overcoats, also fine goods for Under Coats, Business Coats, &c. Also, a complete stock of Black and Fancy Cassimeres with our usual large assortment of fancy and plain vestings, the very choicest goods the market affords. Garments will at all times be made at the shortest notice, and warranted to please.

Ready Made Clothing. Our Stock this Fail will be found to contain an unusuily I argeand superior assortment of I ne goods. We have been enabled to take advantage of the depressed that and secure a full and complete asnave been caused to take advantage of the depressed state of the market and secure a full and complete as-ortment at greatly reduced prices, we now think no house in the trade can offer greater inducements than we can to those who desire to purchase good and well made goods, for there is no economy in purchasing an inferior quality of Ready Made Clothing.

We keep a full assortment of Boys' Cicthing, and we think our styles of Boys' Garments cannet fail to please. We can at all times fit Boys from six to sixteen years old. FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Our assortment of all the various styles of shirts, colls under hirts, drawers suspenders, gloves, handkerchie stocks, ties, sashes, &c., is most complote. Pratt's Self-Ventilating Milk Pan.

Pratt's Self-Ventilating Milk Pan.

We would call the attention of farmers, dairymen and housekeepers, to a new article. for which a pagent, has just need issued, in which they have a special attention. It is an enclosed milk-pan, so arranged as to secure the supply and circulation of air required for the separation; all rising of the cream. By reference to the engraving, it will be seen that the pan has a cover around' the lower rim of this cover are several minute perforations for the air to enter, and at the top of the chimney, (as it may be called,) which rises from the centre of the cover, is another series of perforations for the sir to excape. When new milk is placed in this pan, the colder external air presses in through the lower range of perforations in the cover, and forces the warm air out through the perforations above, thus producing the required circulation. This eigent, the colding process goes on, but not ceases for, gases being involved in the product of draw in through the lower perforations, and so continue the process of ventilation.

The value of this new milk-pan will be at once apparent. on, but not cease; for, gases being involved in the production of cream, their lightness will still cause the air to draw in through the lower perforations, and s continued the process of ventilation.

The value of this new milk-pan will be at once apparent. Dairymen often have great difficulty in protecting their open pans from gnats, flies, snails, rats, mice, lizards, etc. etc.; and they cannot cover them, because, if the air is shut out, the cream will not separate from the milk.

But not alone to dairymen is the invention of value. In every family milk is used; and with one or more of these seleventilating pans, the best condition for raising cream is secured. Covered, and set upon a shelf, or the cellar floor, he pan is entirely free from molestation. While the plaint was pending several families in this city had them in lise, and after five or six month's trial, the report is, who out qualification, in their favor. Cream was raised frech, in all cases where new milk was used. During the time, but the patent was pending in 1858, this milk pan was a hibited at the U. S. Agricultural Fair, held at Richmont, Va., at the Pennsylvania State Fair, held at Pottsburgh and at the New Hampshire State Fair, held at Pittsburgh and at the New Hampshire State Fair, held at Dover. In each case Diplomas were awarded.

As the temporative gained inside of this pan is several degrees lower than bat of the surrounding atmosphere, every intelligent hot, ekeeper will at once see its value as a ventilator and at her for other purposes. A joint of meat in warm weather, cooked or nnooked, will keep for many hours longer in one of these self-ventilators than when exposed to the air outside—not to speak of safety from flies, ets., They may also be used for butter, cheese, and a large variety of other articles not necessary to mention.
