For the West Jersey Pioneer. THE SILVER TONGUE DEDICATED TO MRS. L. B. F.

CHOICE POETRY.

Of all the rapt melodies flung on the air,
That steal most bewitchingly soft in the ear,
There's more whose enchantments detain me so long,
As the voice of THAT girl, with the sweet silver tongue. How enraptured I drink in the bliss of the song, That flows from the girl of the sweet silver tonguel Did nature endow her with such envied powers? Or does she imbibe them, like bees from the flowers Or grew she from childhood the song birds among?

And there learned to sing with the sweet silver tongue Ahl the breath of the flowers, and the early bird's song, All combine in the girl of the sweet silver tongue. How precious the boon to this sin smitten ground, That flowers and music are so strewn around! But beauty and music would weary e'er long, Without a dear girl, with a sweet silver tongue. Ol if aught could induce me to wish life were long, It would be the dear girl, with the sweet silver tongue

Her voice in the song of our plain rural plays, Or swelled in the psalm of devout temple prair Throws the same tender spell o'er the heart, old or youn Tis the same little girl with the sweet silver tongue. She's the charm of the place, with the old and the your That dear little girl, with the sweet silver tongue. We read of the harps and the songs of the blest, In glorified state in their white garments drest, But the bliss of enjoyment would be, to belong To the band of dear girls, with the sweet silver tongue.

How transported I'd live thro' e'ernity long,

For the West Jersey Pioncer.

Near a host of such girls, with the sweet silver tongue.

AN EXCURSION TO WYOMING. MR EDITOR:-It may not be uninteresting to your readers to have a brief sketch of a late trip to the far famed Wyoming valley, and its surroundings. We left Camden on-Monday, August 8th., at 6 o'clock A. M., and took passage on board the Reading cars corner of Vine and Broad Streets, Philadelphia. We found the seats uncomfortably small, and the cars crowded to excess with passengers; still the morning was fine, and most home. One cannot help feeling a sort we hurried on with locomotive speed from of reverence for such an old tree, and secretstation to station, passing towns and villages, ly wish that it may long be spared the woodwhich are springing up, as if by magic, in every direction along the line of the railroad. Arriving at Port Clinton, a distance of 78 miles, we changed cars for Rupurt. The Rock," situated a little off from the main Catawissa road passes through a wild and romantic region of broken and uncultivated land, valuable it would seem, only for its timber and mineral productions. This road is not only rough, but thought by some to be CHEAP FANCY DRY GOODS dangerous, as it goes winding around the side of the mountains, then passing over bridges of trestle work, one of which is said to be 170 feet high. Stopping a few moments at the United States Hotel at Tamagua to dine, we are summoned by the ringing of the bell, and the shrill whistle of the engine, to the cars; "All aboard" and in a passage on the Luckawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad for Plymouth, a small village at end of the Wyoming valley is "Cambells the southern end of the far-famed Wyoming | Ledge," which we see rising above the dark valley. The road from Rupurt Plymouth passes through a most beautiful district of country, diversified with hills and valleys, and mountains rising one above another, and stretching away far in the distance. The scenery along the Susquehanna river is magarrived at Plymouth, where a carriage was waiting to convey us to the hospitable mansoon came in contact with horses, and horse cars heavily laden with coal; and men and of ventilation. After a general survey in this coal district, which appears to be inexhaustible, and collecting a few specimens of

As we look over these old | ble to obtain a seat in one of the four stages plantations of the Indian nations, who once held their great council fires upon the banks sengers to Belvidere; and itsdoes not seem of the Susquehanna with such grand surroundings, we are not surprised that they fought with such determined energy to regain the ancient plainss of their fathers; but the dweller in wigwams has long since bid a final farewell to a reagion so full of song and traditionary history. As we pass on up the valley, we come to what is called "Toby's Cave;" a small cave on the side of a hill, where old Toby, the Indian, it is said, found a place of retreat in troublous times. Many strange things are told about this cave, which give to it an importance which it would not otherwise have. Passing through the pleasant and quiet little village of Kingston, where the Seminary buildings of the Wyoming Conference are located, we come to Wilkesbarre, a town of considerable importance and wealth, presenting an air of comfort and good living. We will now proceed to the Wyoming Monument at Wintermoot's Fort, said our friend and conductor, and a moderately short ride brought us to the spot; there it stands in the open field, near the road side, in the vicinity of "Forty Fort" It was erected by the citizens in 1832, over the bones of the patriot band who fell in the fatal "Indian Battle," on the afternoon of the third of July 1778. This monument, which is about 62 feet high, is built of Granite, and bearing appropriate inscriptions, together with the names of many who were slain in battle, or who were taken prisoners and then massacred in the most cruel and barbarous manner by the savages. Far upon the western hills we could see listinctly, the "Umbrella Tree," lifting its round top far above all the rest, as monarch of the woods; there it stands as it probably stood a century ago, and I thought if that old tree could only speak, what revelations it might unfold of the joys and sorrows of earth; what joy its prospect gave, when at its sight the weary traveler felt he was al-"Queen Esther's Rock," familiarly known in the neighborhood by the name of "Bloody road. Not long after the great battle had been fought, perhaps the next day, sixteen captives, it is said. were arranged in a cir. cle around this rock, in a kneeling posture, when Esther, Queen of the Seneca tribe. determined to avenge the death of her son. took in her own hand the death mall or battle axe, and knocked out the brains of each captive as they were kneeling there, save two, who, determined to sell their lives as dearly as possible, made a desperate effort, gation whose worship he generally attended, and succeeded in making good their escape just as they were about to be executed; a little time we are at Rupurt. H. M. BROWN. Camden, N. J. Aug. 29, 1869.

What's Corn!—or Worldlymindedness Through industry, careful habits, and a rigilant watch of the market, a gentleman had accumulated what is called a handsome property. His means were far beyond any probable personal wants, and he had no chillren for whom to provide. The avtumn preceding that extraordinary rise in the prices of provisions, which a few years since brought so much distress among the poor, brought him, from his farm, an unusually large crop of coru. Before it war ready for market, the approaching rise was distinctly foreshadowed, and the sharper class of farmers held on. Their expectations were more than realized. Scarcity abroad combined with the Crimean war to produce an almost unexampled demand, and he tactics of speculation over-wrought even the natural effect of these causes.

The gentleman of whom I write was among those who reserved their crops for higher prices. He was sure corn would go up to a doller, and he would wait for that mark. The market reached it, but the indications of advance was stronger than before. Not wholly forgetful of the danger of overstaying the tide, he was sure it had not reached its height. He was right. Corn went up to $1 10, and still up, up, to $1 15, $1 20, $1 30, but the higher the price, the wilder grew his confidence that the maximum was not yet reached In the meantime another year came around, bringing him another full crop, whilst as yet, every bushel of the old was waiting for the top of the market. Just then the market snapped under the excessive strain- The fall was rapid, yet there was sufficient quavering to feed the hopes of those who had trifled with their beaft opportunity. My neighbor did not seize upon the first mark in the descending scale; he was sure there would be a rally. Down, down it went; still he would not sell, for by this time he had lost all heart to sell for seventy-five cents, when a few weeks before, he might have taken nearly double the amount. On the arrival of every mail, his first inquiry was. "What about corn?" and whenever neighbor returned from market, he met him with the anxious question, "What's corn ? what's corn ?" Just about this time, he was taken sickat first slightly, but soon alarming symp-toms appeared. The paster of the congrevisited him, and sought to turn his thoughts away from coin, and cattle and the world, to subjects of higher interest for a dying mau. At length his physician abandoned hope, and the pastor assumed the solemn task of announcing the fact to the patient. A conversation followed, as long as it was thought nis feeble condition would justify, and the pastor left his bedside in the belief that he was brought to comprehend his position on the verge of eternity. A few minutes afterward, another neighbor approached his bed. He was much exhausted and unable to articulate distinctly. He made several efforts to be understood, but for a time unsuccessfully. At length his feeble voice became sufficiently distinct, to enable his friend to catch the words, "What's corn?"

In a few days we assembled for his fune ral, and listened to the reading of the thiry-ninth Psalm, the sixth verse of which, owly and distinctly pronounced, produced of itself so profound an impression, that we all felt a full sermon in the text alone:— Surely every man walketh in a vain show; surely they are disgusted in vain; he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall

The Beauty of the Heavens. How delightful it is to contemplate the the Heavens! They are "stretched out as a curtain to dwell in!" Not only as far as the human eye can see, but beyond the remotest boundary which the highest telescope power can reach, does the etherial firmament extend! We can find no limit, no boundary. Millions of miles may be traversed from any given point of space, and still the heavens appear illimitable. Infini ty is stamped upon them. And with what gorgeous splendor and magnificence is that urtain adorned! In every direction it is tudded with worlds, suns and systems, al harmoniously moving in perfect and undevi-ating obedience to the Almighty will. The soul in such a contemplation is absorbed.— Earth ceases to hold us with its silver chain.

The mind, set free from groveling puruits, mounts up, as on the wings of an eagle, and soars away through immensity of pace, surveying and admiring the innume cable revolving orbs, which, like so many "crowns of glory," and "diadems of beau-y," bespangle that firmament "whose aniquity is of ancient days," and which so powerfully attest that "the hand that made them is divine!" The immense distance of the fixed stars, claims our at tention, and awakens the most enrapturing feelings in the mind. Reason is compolled to give the reins to imagination, which tells us there are stars so distant that their light has been shining since the creation, and yet, amazingly rapid as light travels, no ray from them has yet reached us! "The heavens truly declare the glory of God," and, in beholding such a display of glory and beauty, we are deeply impressed with its manifestation of the power of the Creator, who sustains, upholds and preserves such myriads of ponderous revolving bodies, each in its orbit, moving in unerring obedience to His will.

Its enjoyments are peculiar; no wealth can purchase them. They only flow from the exertion which they repay. Wealth, we are told, is power; talent in onversing on extemporaneous preaching.

Caught in his own Trap. Once, two ministers of the Gospel were

"Well;" said the old divine, waxing warm, "you are ruining yourself by writing your sermons and reading them off. Your congregation cannot become interested in your cable to religion, if we would find it a source preaching; and if you were called upon to of pleasure, as it is to knowledge. A little preach unexpectedly, unless you could get religion is, it must be confessed, apt to make hold of an old sermon, you would be completely confused."

The young divine used all his eloquence, but in vain, to convince the old gentleman that the written sermon expressed his own demning their course of conduct, to render thoughts and feeling, and, if called upon, he could preach extemporaneously.

"As we are of the same faith," said the young minister, "suppose you try me next Sabbath morning. There was a wild wag of a fellow, by the name of Thornton, who one day got up during service, and walked out of the church, making rather a prominent display of a gold headed cane: The vicar, a well known eccentric character, with a wooden leg-the result of his love of fox hunting-immediately pounced upon him in this wise: "Pull that cane from under your arm, my young friend, and throw it away. There are no gold headed canes in Heaven." Whereupon Thornton, turning round, quickly replied: "Pull that stick of wood out of your pants, my old friend, and throw it away. There are no wooden legs in Heaven!"

The Testimony to Truth by Eminent Men. A Christian writer has said: "Drink deep. or taste not," "is a direction fully as applimen gloomy, as a little knowledge is to render them vain; hence the unjust imputation often brought upon religion by those whose degree of religion is just sufficient, by con-

The idea seemed to delight the old gentleman, and it was immediately agreed upless can satisfy them. From age to age we can trace the same spirit. Pausing a few minutes, he ran his is vowed to thee, even to thee alone, and Let me give you the testimony left us by

Coleridge, one of the most thinking men of his day. These are his words in the decline of life: "I have known what the enjoymente and advantages of this life are, and what the more refined pleasures which learning and intellectual power can bestow; and with all the experience that three score years can give, I now, on the eve of my departure, declare to you (and earnestly pray that you may hereafter live and act on the conviction,) that health is a great blessing; competence obtained by henorable industry a great blessing; and a great blessing it is to have kind, faithful, and loving friends and relatives; but that the greatest of all blessings, as it is the most ennobling of all privileges, is to be indeed a Christian."

Another eminent man, distinguished for and doctrines of Christianity, Lavater of Zurich, in Switzerland, has given us this interesting witness to the satisfaction afforded by the religion of Christ: "Believe me. speak it deliberately, and with full convic-DARKEY LOGIC.—A newspaper reporter of life, none of which I wish to esteem light. ly; often have I been charmed with the eauties of nature, and refreshed with her bountiful gifts; I have spent many an hour in sweet meditation, and in reading the most valuable productions of the wisest men: yet to speak the truth before God, who is my Judge, I must confess, I know not any joy that is so dear to me, that so fully satisfies the inmost desires of my mind, that so enlivens, refines, and elevates my whole nature, as that which I derive from religion; from faith in God, as one who is not only the parent of men, but has condescended, as brother, to clothe himself with our nature. REPENTENCE.—Repentance, precious at all seasons, in the season of health is noble. It is a generous principle when it overtakes us surrounded with the prosperities of life, when it is not put off till distress drives us to it. JAMES B. FERGUSON, -EDITOR. WEEDS IN THE STREET. We do not often feel called upon to com plain of our agricultural friends for any neg loct of farming, neatness, or decorum. I this respect, as in most others, there has been a vast improvement within the last ten or fifteen years. The theory is now gener ally recognized, that land is too valuable to allow fences to "grow up" with briers, weeds and bushes Most especially has this been the case with line fences. But a few years since, and the boundaries between different farms could be easily determined with cer tuinty, by the most unsophisticated traveler, by the large amount of "trash" growing up slong them. The reforming haul has also extended to most of our mail routes, and most public thoroughfares. From some cause, the same care does not seem to be observed in keeping the roads less frequently traveled, clear of weeds. We have observed some farms where the road in front was carefully kept free from weeds, while roals bounding other parts of the farms, were allowed to grow up with will carrot and other noxious weeds. If pride of appearance causes the difference, it certainly is a landable thing as far as it goes. But the very fact of its not extending equally to all parts of the farm, proves that it is, at best, an insufficient motive to direct the farmer. The most important reasons why weeds should not grow in the roads fronting the houses, are equally applicable to all roads. Their seeds are as casily disseminated, either by the winds or birds, from one contigious road as another. In fact, as far as the agency of birds is concarned in the business, they are more likely to carry them from a back, than a front road, because there are fewer disturbing causes .-The less travel upon a highway, the less there is to interrupt the birds, and the larger number there is of them. A farm though entirely cleared of weeds, could not long re main so, if they were allowed to grow and bear seed in un adjoining road. A num. ber of weeds, particularly the "rag weal" harbors large numbers of insects, which, after finding shelter in them through the winter, come out in the spring to commence their devastation on the growing crops, and there is no reason to suppose that those harbored in the streets are any less likely to injure a crop, than their brothers raised in the fields. According to the molern theory of farming, a crop of weeds is not a desirable erop for an intelligent farmer; and as a consequence, in the purchase of a farm, that would be most desirable, all other things baing equal, which is the nearest free from weeds. The pecuniary value of a farm is, therefore, affected by the weeds on and

For the satisfaction of those who have any doubts about the road being extended to Bridgeton, provided the one hundred thousand dollars be raised, we copy the following Resolution, adopted at a Meeting don County, as its candidate for Governor. of the West Jersey Railroad Company, held in Camden, on the 30th of August last.

A Good Sell.

On Saturday evening last, an incident occurred at one of our Building Associations, in this town, too good to leave unrecorded, It appears that our worthy Esq. H. R. M., who has the renting of the room in which the Building Association meets, had overlooked the fact that Saturday last was their regular meeting night, and consequently rented the room for a political township meeting. After the members of the Building Association had assembled in the room and were sitting around the table which contained a considerable of such funds as are used for electioneering purposes, one of our retired Sea Captains' entered the room gate meeting.) After gazing with astonishment for some time at the abundance of specie and bank notes, spread over the table. he exclaimed-"What is to be done with all the funds?" On being informed that the money was the dues of the members, and belouged to the Building Association which was then assembled there, he took his hat and respectfully bowed himself out, satisfied that he was in the wrong meeting and had the XVI chapter of the Acts, and then ofbeen sold.

Dr. Kollock, on the next Sabbath afternoon; ervice to commence at half-past two o'clock Supposing that some of your readers would be pleased to hear from that meeting, also, send you the following report:

At the hour appointed, on Sunday afternoon the 21st of August, the new school house was well filled with an interesting audience, chiefly young people. The ceremonies were introduced by singing The Angel's Song, after which, Rev. Dr. Kollock read fered prayer. The Invitation Hymn was then sung, which was followed by a most excellent and appropriate discourse from the The attention of our readers is directed to 13th and 14th verses of the chapter before read. At the close of which, the congregation was requested to rise, when the Rev. Dr., with becoming solemnity, declared the house to be "dedicated to the worship of Almighty God." The choir then sung The Sabbath School, after which, Mr. Miller, the superintendent of that school, addressed the parents and teachers on the importance of early right impressions. This was followed by the "Closing Hymn," Gently Lord, O gently lead us. After the benediction was pronounced, the choir sung the anthom, Praise the Lord. The singing was done on this, as on the former occasion, by the 'Musical Association of Lower Hopewell." led by Mr. James Williams of Greenwich, an excellent teacher of vocal music. The young people performed their part so well, that it is difficult to find language to express our admiration and delight. These reports will prove "to all whom it may concern," that lower Hopewell is making progress in the right direction. CONTRIBUTOR.

We copy the following from the Philadelphia North American:—Colonel Crockett was a character. His autobiography has been long out print: his reputation for eccentricity has been presumed upon in the publication of all sorts of manace, and other vehicles for low humor. volume is a requblication of the genuine work, with presum radditions, and will be new to the present generation of readers. It is an marked and characteristic as the subject was; his porit is without effort, and perfectly naive and sincere. We well remember the amiable original in his northern tour, and recall many of the incidents to which his book alludes. We never have looked upon his like since; and rejoice in this republication as an act of justice; to retrieve an onest man from vulgar misrepresentation. One volume, 12mo., cloth. Price $1.00.

(From the Guzette.) This book deserves to be singled out and noted s above the many novels which are published Both in structure and style it is entitled to the name of art. It is a Tale of Domestic Life, rehearsing the interwoven histories of a round of every day characters, and its aim is to show the follies of to many, so called, passions and pleasures of fashionable life, touching in no part upon ground that properly belongs to the vast domai 10 sts. per lb of romance.

The Bachelor Millionaire Uncle George, is character reminding us of the Brothers Cheery-ble, and although he teaches the "sweet uses of Adversity" with severe discipline, it brings out the true beauty of character, and shows how few there are who can go through the trials of every day life and in the end prove their constancy.

SAMUEL WILLS. Sept. 10.-4t. Commissioners ROHRER'S IMPROVED PROCESS FUR PRINTING IN COLORS.

Secured by Caveat, Feb. 1858-it-newed, Pale, 1859. Dear Six—Being the inventor and propriets of a new and improved process for PKINTING IN COLOGS, of niew and improved process for PKINTING IN COLOGS, of niely more expeditious, simple and beamed than the old system, and capable of being done as about mose gan the expense. I adopt this method of bringing it octors the Cint in dismit States.

Presuming that you are familiar with all the manipulations, as well as all the drawbacks, annoyances and expenses incident to the common mode ordoing COLORED WORK with Inks—the same mode which was adopted to the down of Fants, and adhered to without me, increase WORK with Inks—the same mode which was adopted to the days of Faust, and adhered to without any improvement to the present time, except, perhaps, the invention of new Presses adapted to that character of work of which are very costly in themselves, and of no practical value, save to offices doing almost exchanged; that kind of work of which there are very few in this country. Taking for granted that you are conversant with all these things: I proceed to describe my process briefly, taking occasion here to state that it has been extensively in use for upwards of a year and a half throughout the States of New York, I emsylvania, New Jorsey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Ohio, and highly insproved.

ADVANTAGES:—I, Simplicity, 2, Superiority, 3, Economy.

4, Durability, 5, Beauty: 6, Profitable.

Every Printer knows that there is no branch of printing more popular and acceptable amongst the masses—

Every Printer knows that there is no pranen or printing more popular and acceptable amongst the massesto the great majority of Lusiness, mentitan Colored Work. While this is so, it is also known to every printer of the most limited experience, that no branch of the business is half so prolific of aimoyances in the execution of it. Not the least of these drawbacks, yet chief in importance is the uncontrolable expense attendant colored work—yielding the proprietor of an estal ment little or no profit at best, and often—very of ment little or no profit at next, and often—very often, positive loss,—especially in offices where the facilities of doing this kind of work is limited.

Impressed with a full knowledge of all this, and a belief that any improvement would be hailed with delight by every printer, the undersigned determined upon a series of experiments and after some months labor, suc-lief that any improvement would be hailed with delight by every printer, the undersigned determined upon a series of experiments and after some mouths labor, succeeded in a plan that answers the purpose fully.

Instead of Inks, Dry, Powders are used. One impression answers for any number of colors. Any boy that can pull the lever will roll, print and color a hundred cards or bills in half a day, in at least six different colors if desired. The colors are bright, dur-ble and cheap. Every man bacomes a fancy printer in spute of himself. No two bills in a hundred need be alike, if the operator wills it. The powders unlike bronzes, being natural in color, a fair imitation of lithography can be produced,—auts can be colored and tinted to nature.

One of the great advantages of this process is that the powders can be applied to a bill printed in Black Ink with admirable effect. The powders cost only about one-third as much as inks, and go twice as far. There is no waste in using them as all the waste can be saved and mixed, which mixture forms a shade in itself, and can all be used. The powders are not effected by any temperature, and are always already for use.

Heretofore, and until within a short time, my process has been introduced to the craft by me personally, or by travelling Agents, the inter I dispensed with because I was so unfortunate in nearly every instance, as to select those who appropriated the profit to themselves and subjected me to the looting of the expenses. As for myself, I found my oxperses rapidly increasing as I got into distant territory and myself drawn too long away from my regular business engagements, so, that to make it remunerative, I was obliged necessarily to tak each office proportionately higher, for which there is really no necessity, since the transaction can be made as really no necessity, since the transaction can be made as really no necessity, since the transaction can be made as really no necessity, since the transaction can be made as really no necessity, since the transact Satisfaction guaranteed in every instance.

Although the Receipe which secompanies the conveyance of a right, will enable you to procure the Powders with very little trouble, yet I can furnish them, if desired neatly done up in cans at $5.00 per sett. This is but a fraction over cost and $3.00 less than I furnished them at while travelling. The money must, however, in all instances accompany the order.

Representations in might give scores of newspaper notices and names of individuals as references; but confine myself to a few only, those among whom. Live, and who I would be least disposed to recommend them if they were not good.

would be least displaced to recommend them if they were not good.

To the Graft—Having sometime since introduced into my office the new process of printing in colors, by our townsman, Mr. M. M. Rohrer, and having given the same a fair test, I feel constrained to lend my word of approval to all of the eraft who may seel disposed; so introduce the same into their offices, but who may sateriain a doubt as to its practicability. The process is simple and conomical, and by it the most beautiful and delicate work can be doine. It possesses advantages over the old, well-known, redionary and arranging method to printing in colors with links, too happeble to meta recapitulation. No class of Fancy Work, I find, gives greater satisfaction to the patricial it is of inestimable; salurgand convenience, especially when expedition it refaired as the powders may be applied to bill or ever brinted with Black Ink, and that two with admirable effect.

may be approved a summable effect.

Very, Respectfully

JOHN. P. HUBER, Job Printer.

We the undersigned fully concur in the above views expressed by Mr. Huber, in favor of "Rehrer's Process," and cheerfully bear record to the fact of its great useful-asses, beauty, and practicability, and commend it to the cast of an important and important policy of the printing office.

been made of them as rendering an undoubted security against the terrific element.

Philadelphia, April 12th, 1856.

Messrs. Eyans & Warson,—Gondemen.—It affords us the highest satisfaction to state to you, that owing to the very protective qualities of two of the Salamander Sates which we purchased of you some few months since, we saved a large portion of our jewelry, and all our books, papers, &c., exposed to the calaminous fire in Ranstead Place, on the morning of the 11th instant.

When we reflect that these Sates were located in the fourth story of the building we occupied; and that they fell subsequently into a heap of burning ruins where the wast concentration of heat caused the brass plates to melt we cannot but regard the preservation of their valuable contents as most convincing proof of the great security afforded by your Safes.

We shall take much pleasure in recommending them to men of this mess as a sure rolliance against fire.
