KISSES IN MARKET.

"Tell me. dear husband," Kitty said, "Before you go, I pray, How shall I get the meat and bread For our noon-meal to day?"

Buy them with smiles," the husband cried; "But that won't pay," said she: "Then take this kiss," her lord replied, And to his shop went he.

The noon-time came, and he came too, And dinner was prepared-A tender steak was full in view, "Quite splendid," he declared.

He said he wished to have such meat Three times a day, in future; "But tell me, love, for this great treat, What did you pay the butcher?"

"What did I pay?—I paid the kiss-'Twas all you left, you kuo w:" "A-a-ll right," said he, "but after this, Take Money when you go."

He said to him, I want the money a buy grain for my family, and as, you have raised a good crop, I will take that, instead of money. The man said, I have other uses for my wheat. How then, said he, do you intend to pay me? I never intend to pay you until you sue me, replied the debtor, and therefore you may be going as soon as you please. Mr Harris left him meditating. Good God! said he to himself, what shall I do? Must I leave preaching to attend to a vexations law-suit? Perhaps a thousand souls may perish in the meantime. No, I will not. Well, what will you do for yourself? Why this I will do. I will sue him at the Court of Heaven. He turned aside into the woods, fell upon his knees. and thus began his suit. O, blessed Jesus! Thou Eternal God! Thou knowest that I need the money which the man owes me, to supply the wants of my family, but he will not pay me without a law-suit. In this address, he had such nearness to God, that he became satisfied to keep on preaching, assured that Jesus would not forsake him nor his family. -He felt well satisfied that Jesus had entered security for him, and it would be unjust for him to hold the man a debtor. He therefore wrote a receipt in full of all accounts, and dating it in the woods, he signed it with his own hand. Going the next day by the man's house to attend a meeting, he gave the receipt to a servant, and told him to deliver it to his master. On returning from the meeting, the man hailed him, and said, Mr. Harris, what do you mean by the receipt you sent me this morning? I mean just as I wrote. But you know I have never paid you. True, said Mr. Harris, and I know that you said you never would, unless I sued you. But, sir, I sued you at the Court of Heaven, and Jesus entered bail for you, and has agreed to pay me. I have given you a discharge. But I insist upon it, said the man, matters shall not be left so. I am well satisfied, answered Harris, Jesus will not fail me; I leave you to settle the Answer to Inquiry of "Horticulturist." MR. EDITOR :- Let me say to the gentlemen who wishes information, that I am free to give some testimony on the cultivation of so valuable fruit, known not hardly by such a list of diversified names; and yet I think there is probably as many vari- and of the early glories and sufferings of the mon. This plant appears to be one inclined to too much vines, occupying too much space for the little production in comparison to the yield of and size of the fruit; yet perhaps, does not differ so much in the latter quality, as the former. I have a vine of this kind or species, measuring about three feet and six inches in length, and extending, perhaps, some ten feet in circumference; and yet I have taken but little fruit from them, yet planted at the same time as scattering, too much inclined to rine and very little profit. The next is the American variety. This, like the previous plant, seems to grow much to vine, yet not so long; at the same time a great deal thicker. The vines on this plant grow about four feet long, with an inch diameter; while that us minister by the name of Harris was active- the native or common, is only about 5-8 of inch thick. The fruit on this selection is not only less in quantity, but is inferior in quality, the fruit being very small, and very deceptive; for while they represent outwardly a large species, upon investigation they are found the reverse. The next Harris, and with much pleasure showed him is the Spanish. These surpass either of the others, or any that I have ever read of or tration of political affairs you have no share: showed it to Jesus?" "No, Mr. Hurris, I seen. So our Elitor you see the vast proportion between these three varie. ties. After this year I intend keepi g none pest-tossed, driven by rude waves, sings for cultivation but the Spanish. After testing these varieties I have endeavored to ones await him; the statesman, as he devises

Perhaps it would be injustice to Mr. Horticulturist's inquiry, was I not to say anything about the names of this fruit as wellthe above variety seem to be various, and bling a cherry in size, in connexion with its keeping qualities, as the fruit that ripens at midsummer will keep until the next spring, and yet be in a good state for use during that period; yet the seed does not resemble the herry, while the taste is far superior. Another name is the Stawberry Tomato. This, I suppose, is drawn from the extreme small the tomato has no connexion in either size, taste, smell, or keeping. This fruit, after picked and confined in a close room, emits a rich, agrecable odor, desirable to almost and your influence will not be lost in the fuevery person, while the vine, (excepting in the joints on the stalk) is as different as the other qualities. It matters not much with me what name it bears, if any at all, was it not that I think so valuable a fruit, as I think it is, is deserving of some appropriate name. Some have supposed that it may be spoils from the old fruit, for which our father farmers have had so much trouble to keep their sons from leaving their work, and robbing the vines of their fruit known as the cultivation, in comparison to our improved varieties of strawberries, to the old wild variety, or the Hawton Blackberry, with the wild, sour, standing berry of the desert, or with our little chicken grapes. A little more, and that is upon its value as it is; and as it is recommended, its cultivation is easy and successful. It begins to ripen (when

WHAT WE SAW IN AN OMNIBUS.

People can make a great many discoveries in a Broadway omnibus. We discovered the other day, while riding down town in one of these conveyances, that a very sweetrequisite of brains. And the touchstone by which we tested the matter was-jewelry.

Ladies like to make themselves bright and sparkling with gold and precious stones, and nobody has any right, that we know of, to interfere with their proclivities in these respects. But sometimes they do make themselves ridiculous, and then we are to be allowed the privilege of smiling in our

Our fair companion wore an immense cameo brooch of the palest orange shell, with a coarsely cut landscape upon it, and a gaudy gilt setting, and massive ear-rings to -a shawl-brooch, looking very much as if it had been twisted off some window cornice, a yellow chain, meant to be gold, but uttering "imitation" in its every link round her neck-bracelets on her arms, and more different colored rings on her fingers than it was easy to count. The rest of her dress, however, by no means corresponded with all this blaze of jewelry. She was shabbily attired—a lady would have settled the question at once, by the expressive word "dowdy"—bonnet looking as if it had been badly crushed and never had come quite straight again-mantle of the very cheapest and flimsiest material, loaded with ded muslin, worn over voluminous hoops.-The face was gentle and pretty, and if the face thing had only known enough to sell all that cheap jewelry and buy neat garments, no matter how inexpensive, her fresh bloom would have needed no other ornament. But the sole effect of the tinsol and guilt was merely to rouse a sensation of pity for her girlish folly in the minds of all ensible people. And this is the channel by which the hard earned money of shop girls, and those who work for their bread, slips away. The taste for gaudy jewelry seems to be a posiive mania among those who should be laying aside every spare cent of their slender income for the future. Fine clothes-flimsy bonnets with a profusion of cotton flowflush back the sunshine along Broadway .-And when sickness or destitution overtakes through this brief commor of their show and

But when those who can ill ufford it, bedizen themselves with mock jewgirls of America consult their own good sense, and throw off this absurd tendency? It they have money to spare, let them invest it in something useful and sensible, or place it in the Savinga Banks, where it will gradually grow into a little competence; but above all things; we would advise them to beware of cheap finery !- Life Illustrated.

One of the conditions of the treaty with Mexico, it is said, is, that any future war which may break out between the two countries, shall be conducted on Christian prinsame, his palate was entirely propitiated, all sorts of matters; but war on Christian principles is certainly the latest, and if carried out, we think it will prove the greatest of them all.

Just imagine it! We think we can see the two srmies drawn out in battle array. A fair field is before them; the ranks areformed; the positions are taken. General Scott is just about to give the order to fire, when an Aid comes up and respectfully reminds him, that "the war is to be conducted on Chistian principles," and that it will not do to fire. "Very true, very true," says the Commander-in Chief; "but what are they? I have read Vaubaw, and Scheiter, and Turenne, and Coehorn. I have read the lives of the old Conquerors, and have studied the Campaigns of the greatest soldiers, but I never happened to come across these principles in any work upon the military art. Do you know anything about it, Colonel?"

"No."

"Nor you, Major?"
"Nor I neither."

"I really don't know how to begin; I suppose it would not do to shoot. Suppose we send for the Chaplain." The Chaplain arrives-"Do you know anything about this fighting on Christian principles?" "Oh, yes; it is the easiest thing in the world."

"Where are the books?" "Here;" and the Chaplain takes out the

"Really," says the General, "we ought to have thought of this before. It is a bad time to commence the study of tactics when the enemy is right before us; but I suppose we are bound by the Treaty. What is the first thing, Mr. Chaplain?"

"But while we are praying for the Mexicans, they will be firing into us." "No; they are bound by the Treaty also. It works both ways."

"Then what is the use of our arms?" "This is all provided for in the same book. Beat your swords into ploughshares, and your spears into pruning hooks." "Then I don't see as there is anything for us to do here." "Nothing, unless you send over and ask Santa Anna if he needs anything in the way of medicines, provisions, or clothing. I rather think the Treaty requires this of us. And I don't know but we ought to send them a few schoolmasters, for I understand that they are shockingly ignorant people." "But how do you ever know which par-

Cumberland Co. Agricultural Exhibition.

The sixth annual exhibition of the Cum berland County Agricultural Society, which came off in this place on Wednesday last, was decidedly the grandest fair of the kind that has ever been gotten up in this part of the country. The weather was very favorable: desired. The late rains settled the dust so effectually, that but little annoyance was experienced from that source.

At an early hour in the morning carriages and vehicles of all descriptions came pouring into Bridgeton, with crowds of almost "every nation and tongue," some with handsome carriages, drawn by noble steeds, others with hee stylich catablishments, and some we notieca with "frames" which looked as though they needed weatherboarding-poor specimens of the kind of horses kept by most of the farmers in this section of the country.

The livery stables and hotels in town were filled to their utmost capacity, many persons tention. from the country being compelled to look elsewhere for suitable accommodations. It is supposed that there never was such a large elsewhere, this year; they surpassed themnumber of carriages in Bridgeton on a simi-

Before ten o'clock in the morning the tide of humanity had fairly set in towards the exhibition grounds, and in a few hours such a multitude as was never before witnessed at uny of our county fairs had assembled on the grounds, which were enclosed with a substantial board fence. The President, Mr. P. Ludlam, deserves much credit for the manner in which he, and others interest. ed, had the grounds arranged this year .-The ring for the exhibition of horses had been considerably calarged, and put in much better condition than it had ever been before. It is now nearly one third of a mile in circumference. An additional lot adjoining the old grounds, was fitted up in good order for cattle. The Speakers and Judges round, the tents, and everything of the kind,

The receipts, we believe, were larger than on former occasions. It is variously estimated that from six to ten thousand persons were on the ground. Every township in the county was well represented, and we noticed a much larger number than usual from the adjoining counties, although but few of them were depositors. Salem and Gloucester turned out some good nags, among which was a tair of fast trotters owned by Wm. Miller of Salem, and a grey mare owned by John B. Jessup of Gloucester County; the latter being the fastest trotter on the ground. Daniel Cressie, of Cape May, exhibited a handsome colt, sixteen months old. Our friend Stacy Guff, of West Creek, had some very fine beets, which were hard to beet .-By the way, we return our thanks to Mr G., for a handsome lot of the above beets, left at our effice at the close of the exhibition. We looked in vain for some lemons shown us a short time since, raised near Dennisville, Cape May Co. Had they been sent, as designed, by the fair one who raised them, they would undoubtedly have taken a special premium, as they were richly entitled to it. We were also shown a short time since, at West Creek, a mammoth pumpkin raised this season, by Mr. John Goff, Jr., which if exhibited at our Fair, would have surpassed anything of the kind raised in this county; but we understand that its immense size and weight prevented its being sent to our fair. We would suggest to the committee who have the award. ing of special premiums for articles from the adjoining counties, that as long as Cape May has no exhibitions of her own, that she come in for such premiums as will pay for the trcuble of sending more articles to our Fair in the future. Cape May county produces some of the best of farm produce, such Cumberland Co. Fair.

In the domestic department, we saw but three lots of butter, none of these such as we have seen there before; no samples of cheese-a small lot of second or third rate honey—a miscellancous collection of good bread-a small lot of cake of the common kind-two or three hams that looked very well, and a very fine lot of jelies, pickles, and preserves. Among the fruits, the display of apples was about the usual varieties, but probably not more than one fourth of the usual quantity. With the exception of three or four lots of fine large apples, they were very inferior. Upon one of the laskets of the best looking apples, we saw the announcement that thirty-eight apoles would weigh twenty pouads. They were of the variety called the "Holland Pippin.', The display of pears was not large, either in quantity or variety, but of exceedingly fine quality. There were no peaches on exhibition. Grapes were fine, but we should think that at former displays we have seen ten times as many exhibited .-But few samples of wheat, oats, or grass eed were exhibited, and those of but ordinary quality. The corn shown was very good, the ears being well filled, and averaging rather an unusual length. A QUESTION ANSWERED.

BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL.

We've had a note-" You noisy Bard, Why don't you stop your capers, Displayed in your fantastic tricks Of writing songs for papers?"

And asks us why we write them. Sometimes, at least, with Humor's spice
A poem we can season,
While Fact and Fancy, closely linked,
Are seen with Rhyme and Reason.

For if we rightly sing them, With nerve, and well directed aim, Nine times in ten we'll "wing" them.

Vice stalks abroad, and well we know Some sinners will be toasted By fires of wrath, if their accounts Are in the papers posted. And such, with all the "Jacks and Jills," The hills of felly climbing, We shall to public scorn hold up,

In sharp, sarcastic rhyming. Though they are weekly written. And foes must stand from under.

The Clothing made at Tower Hall. We'll have the people buy, sir, By singing songs to make them laugh. Or songs to make them cry, sir. For, if on lavghing they grow fat, We'll feast them so with fun, sir, Philadelphia, April 12th, 1856.

Messis. Evans & Warson,—Gentlemen.—It alfords us the highest satisfaction to state to you, that owing to the very protective qualities of two of the Salamander Sakes which we purchased of you some few months since, saved a large perion of our jewelry, and all our books, papers, &c., exposed to the calamitous fire in Ranst. I pluse, on the morning of the 11th instant.

When we reflect that these Sakes were located in the fourth story of the building we occupied, and that they fell subsequently into a heap of burning rums where the vast concentration of licat caused the brase plates to melt; we cannot but regard the preservation of their valuable contents as most convincing proof of the great security afforded by your Sakes.

We shall take much pleasure in recommending them to men of Lusiness as a sure reliance against fire.

THE cool mornings and evenings we are having how I should admonish us to prepare for a change of season, and with it a change of dress. Alas! How many promising young men are through neglect and carelessness laying the foundation for diseases, which very often end in a premsture death. How easy it is to guard against sickness will be best explained by calling at Jacob Tuck's Union Clothing Store, as he has received and on hand a good assortment of Fall Garments of all kinds, such as Cotton, Woolen and Mermo Undershirts and Drawers, Cassimere and Cassinet Sack and Frock Coats, thick Fants and Vests of different kinds, the inshionable Ledger Hat, of black and light colors, and every article needed to keep the body in a healthy state, and free from the so unplease and chills and fevers so prevalent at this season of the year, det a pair of undershirts, such as Jacob Tuck sells for $1.00 a pair and drawers to match, and our word for it, you can safely meet the many changes of the present season. Please remember Barber's improved Combined Mowing and Reaping Machine, to which we invite particular attention. This machine as improved and made Resping Machine, to which we invite particular attention. This machine, as improved and made by us, has been fairly tested the last season, by practical farmers, who testify that it is of lighter draught for team, than any others that they have used, and has given entire satisfaction. It was also awarded the first premium at the mowing match held at Bowentown, in July 1858; it doing its work equally as well as any other; with less draft. Manny and the corn power were in competition at the time. petition at the time. We are manufacturing a number of these machines. Farmers in want of a good machine, are requested to give us an early call. Machines repaired at the shortest notice.
