CHOICE POETRY.

LINES mory of Anna R. Taylor, of Den nisville, N. J.

Anna, thou hast pass'd the valley, Where the death-eold waters flow; Thou hast left the land of shadows, In the morning's sunny glow; And thy maiden feet are passing Paths beyond the vale of night, Where the shining river floweth, Close beside the throne of light.

Ye who watched the pure heart fading In its youthful bloom away, Saw ye not the patient waiting Of the spirit, day by day?-Waiting for that peaceful slumber, Death the angel, kindly brings,

When he bears each new-born scraph Upwards on his snowy wings? When ye saw his holy signet Resting on that gentle brow, Manhar'd not each warm heart, fondly "Our helove I sleeps sweetly new?" Like a reserve durally opened, Waking suffly into light, Thus you left the maiden sleeping In her shroud of basted white.

O the jey to die akus early In the trish on University bours," When our rain ow dreams are brightest And the dew is on the flowers. Sweet to sleep and be forgotien, In the green earth's quiet breast: Calm abode, serene dominion,

Where each weary heart shall rest. Sometime at the hush of even, When the wind-harps faintly sigh, And the crimson glory dieth Faintly from the summer sky, Will a spirit, free, exalted, Earthward plume her snowy wing, And with love and peace unbounded, Around her loved her presence fling!

THE SEWING MACHINE.

BY A CONNECTICUT YANKEE. "(lot one? Don't say so? Which did you get? One the of kind to open and shut? Own it, or hire it? How much did you pay? Does it go with a crank or a treadle? Say. I'm a single man, and somewhat green. Tell me about your sewing machine." "Listen, my boy, and you'll hear all about it-don't know what I should do without it. I've owned one now for more than a year, And like so well I call it "my dear." 'Tis the cleverest thing that ever was seen, This wonderful family sewing machine.

It's none of your angular Wheeler machines. With steel-shod beak and cast-iron wings; It's work would bother a hundred of his. And is worth a thousand. Indeed it is: And has a way-you needu't stare-Of combing and braiding its own black hair!

Mine is not one of those stupid affairs That stands in a corner with what-nots and chairs And makes that dismal headachy noise. Which all the comfort of sewing destroys; No rigid contrivance of lumber and steel. But one with a natural spring in the heel.

Mine is one of the kind to love, And wears a shawl and a soft kid glove; lias the merriest eyes and a dainty foot, And sports the charmingest gaiter-boot, And a bonnet with feathers, and ribbons, and

None of your patent machines for me. Unless Dame Nature's the patentee! I like the sort that can laugh and talk, And take my arm for an evening walk: That will do whatever the owner may choose,

With the slightest perceptible turn of the screws One that can dance, and-possibly flirt, And make a pudding as well as a shirt-One that can sing without dropping a stitch. And play the housewife, lady or witch-Ready to give the sagest advice, Or do up your collar and things so nice.

What do you think of my machine? ain't it the best that ever was seen? 'Tisn't a clumsy, mechanical toy, But flesh and blood! Hear that, my boy, With a turn for gossip, and household affairs, Which include, you know, the sewing of tares.

fut, tut-don't talk. I see it all-You needn't keep winking so hard at the wall; know what your fidgetty fumblings mean, Would you lil a, yourself, a sewing machine? Well, get one then-of the same design-There was plenty left when I got mine."

SABBATH SCHOOL EXHIBITION. MR. EDITOR :- Please ramble back in lancy to medeival times; when Fairy's had a veritable existence; and a full faith in the supernatural was common; when the faint outlines of truth was filled in with the glorious and beautiful, by the light minds, and warm hearts of those golden times, then, when you are fully imbued with their spirit, you will bear a transit back to the 30th of Sept. last, past 64 o'clock, in the crowded church at Mauricetown; to sit as umpire on what may follow.

Enraptured sights and sounds, full on your eye and ear. Before you is a blaze of youth and beauty, bedecked and jeweled with costly gem, and brilliant ore, with faultless form, and snow-white flowing robes; and as each fair forehead is encircled with a flowery wreath, you might suppose from the quantity before you, that Flora's kingdom had been invaded, and that there was not enough left to seed the future. And while lost amid your wonderment of sight, your ears are filled with a rushing gush of melo-Antioch, to

"O! for a thousand tongues to sing," and it would take no great effort for you to suppose yourself a Shepherd on the plain of Beinichem; and if those before and above you were not Angels, they must be Fairies, though they had grown some since medetval days. In this happy frame of mind, you Garner H. Tullis sends up un carnest, fervent petition to God, to crown and consecinte the effects of the Sabbath School.

A Poor Blind Child.

It makes the heart sad to look upon a poor blind child-one who has never beheld the light of the glorious sun, nor once looked ors of the rainbow and the beauties of the rose are alike. All is dark, without a sin-

But, as is such a picture, yet many of our youthful readers are far more blind, and stand much more in need of pity. True. you have bright and sparkling eyes, and can look upon those you love; but oh, how blind to the truths of the Gospel, and to all the Saviour's charms and loveliness!

Ah, ehildren, better, far better to be blind in this world and yet open your eyes upon the Millenium would arise in all its glory this day; but I do no that skores lay flat on all the glories of Heaven, than to look upon of the missionaries, at the end of three and the Might would be with the Right to the airth, a prayen for mercy as of the spec- and love the sinful pleasures of earth, and enthrone Peace, Love, and Harmony to rule | ted to go rite strate to hell, and Glory be to | never be permitted to see "the King in his beauty, and thee land of far distances."-Alas! how many even of the young are already "blinded by the god of this world." and who, if not taken to the Savior, will be ruined for time and eternity.

HOME. - Let no man ever think of happiness distinct from the happiness of home. The gayest must have their sick, languid and solitary hours. The busiest often relax their labor; and there must be some retreat for them, where they seek refreshment from their cares, and collect the spirits that disappointments so frequently depress. They who live the most for the public, still live for the public but in a small part; and they are apt to find the public service a heavy burden, which gentler encouragement than that of ambition must furnish the strength to support.

An old lady from the country had a dandy from the city to dine with her on a cerain occasion. For desert there was an enormous apple pie. "La, ma'am," said the gentleman, "how do you m nage to han-dle such a pie?" "Easy enough," was the quiet reply; "we make the crust up in a wheelbarrow, wheel it under an apple tree. and then shake the fruit down into it.'

JAMES B. FERGUSON,-EDITOR.

Rail-roads and Correspondents.

In another column we publish an article over the signature of M. censuring our course upon the railroad question. Our columns are open to all, for the temperate discussion of all local questions that are not made a part of the political issues between the different political parties. We not unviews of other correspondents, bearing in mind, that we shall always reserve the right of reply.

In the article before us, M. commences with a blunder, in attributing to "Our Bridgeton Correspondent" the sentiments expressed by ourselves. Will M. please examine the paper a little closer, and distinguish between our editorials, and our correspondents. According to our mode of this king, we "admitted," and even advocated not only "almost," but quite all that ought to be asked. Notwithstanding the position in which our correspondent would seek to place us, we shall endeavor to avoid giving offence to the frienes of the Millville those of the Bridgeton road. If they choose to consider themselves as enemies of the can only regret and cannot prevent it. For Boston. years we have steadily advocated the right of companies to build roads wherever their interests demanded, whenever they could obtain legislative sanction to do so. The right to build a road is one thing, the policy of locating it is quite another, and is certainly a legitimate question for discussion. We have not asked that Millville should not have a railroad, but on the contrary have advocated what its own friends have not, that both New York and Philadelphia, Now appreciation of its merits. can M., or any other advocate of the Millville road, say that they have done as much or even half as much for a road to Bridgeton. NEW ILLUSTRATED AND EMBELLISHED COUNTY MAP, REPUBLICS OF NORTH AMERICA, ith the adjacent Countries and Islands, compiled drawn ad engraved from the United States land and coast and tritish Admiralty surveys, and other reliable sources. and engraved from the United States land and coast and British Admiralty surveys, and other reliable sources. It is on a scale larger by 10 miles to the inch than the largest Map of the same territory ever published, and 13 miles to the inch larger than Monk's or the Map of "Our Country." It occupies a sheet 72 by 80 inches:—larger than Sherman & Smith's Mammoth Map of the Old States (now Colton's) and covering about 4 times as much of the Earth's surface as that work. It is 1,500 square inches larger than Colton's, Monk's, or Mitchell's Map, and gives a geographical delineation of the Countries it embraces with an accuracy and fullness of detail altogether beyond the reach of any other Map. Although there are some Two Thousand Counties in the United States and Territories, each Country is named and colored on the face of the Map.

Opinion of Prof. PHELPS, Principal of the State Normal School, Trenton, N. J.

Normal School, Treaton, N. J.

Mr. A. J. Ionnson:

Dear Sir:—I have never allowed myself to give a public recommendation of any work, for the reason that, once begun, there seems to be no end, and one must frequently be pressed to recommend that which isscarcely worthy. I do not hesitate to say to you privately that I deem your Map, from the examination I have given it, the most martinetous work before the public that has met my eye.—The fact of the Map being in the institution, and in use, is a better testimonial in its favor than any written form of words could be.

Trusting that this brief expression of the second could be. rords could be.

Trusting that this brief expression of my individual riews may be acceptable to you, and wishing you great success, I remain, very cordially yours.
