Earthly and Heavenly Interest. Ben Adam had a golden coin one day, Which he put at interest with a Jew;

Year after year, awaiting him, it lay, Until the doubled coin two pieces grew. And these two, four-so on, till people said, "How rich Ben Adam is!" and bowed the servila head.

Ben Sellin had a golden coin that day, Which to a stranger, asking alms, he gave, Who went rejoicing on his unknown way-Ben Selim died, too poor to own a grave.

But when his soul reached Heaven, angels with pride Showed him the wealth to which his coin had multiplied.

The philosopher was not far from right who said "let me write the songs of a nation and I care not who makes their laws," for the words of song melt their way into the heart. No one can doubt that at least on President of the United States owed much of the enthusiastic support given him to the spirited songs everywhere sung during the canvass. THE FEMAL CHOICE.

A young girl, havi satigued herself one hot day, with running but the garden, sat down in a pleasant art where she presently fell asleep. During er slumber, two female figures presented buselves before her. One was loosely habit in a thin robe of pink, with light green timmings. Her sash of silver gauze flowed to the ground. Her hair fell in ringlets down her neck; and her head-dress consisted a artificial flowers in terwoven with feather. She held in one hand a ball-ticket, and in the other a fancy dress all covered with spangles and knots of dress all covered with spangles and knots of gay riband. She advanced smiling to the girl, and with familiar air thus addressed her: "My dearest Melissa, I am a kind genius who have watched you from your birth, and have joyfully beheld all your beauties expand, till at length they have rendered you companion worthy of me. See what I have brought you. This dress, and this ticket, will give you free access to all the ravishing delights of my palace. With me you will pass your days in a perpetual round of evertorying amusements.

Like the gay butterfly, you will have no

flower, and spread your charms before admiring spectators. No restraints, no toils, no dull tasks, ere to be found within my happy domains. All is pleasure, life, and good humor. Come then, my dear! Let me put on you this dress, which will make you quite encharting; and away, away, with me!" Melissa felt a strong juclination to comply with the call of this inviting nymph; but first she thought it would be prudent at least to ask her name. "My name," said she, "is DISSIPATION.

The other female then advanced. She was lothed in a close habit of brown stuff, simply relieved with white. She wore her smooth hair under a plain cap. Her whole person was perfectly neat and clean. Her ook was serious, but satisfied; and her air was staid and composed. She held in one hand a distaff; on the opposite arm hung a work-basket; and the girdle round her waist was garnish d with scissors, knitting ncedles, reels, and other implements of female lator. A bunch of keys hung at her side. She thus accested the sleeping girl.

"Melissa, I am the genius who has ever been the friend and companion of your mother; and I now offer you my protection. It is time for you to choose whom you will follow, and upon that choice all your happiness depends. If you would know my name, it is Housewiffeny. Melissa heard her with more attention than delight; and though overawed by her manner, she could not help turning again to take another look at the first speaker. She beheld her still offering her presents with so bewitching an air, that she felt it scarcely possible to resist; when by a lucky accident, the mask with which dissipation's face was so artfully covered, fell off. As soon as Melissa beheld, instead of the smiling features as they ornament her rooms and her person, of youth and cheerfulness, a countonance wan and ghastly with sickness, and soured by fretfulness, she turned away with horror,

Here is Miss Line, a tall, robust, Eaglish looking girl, with light brown hair, blue eyes, and a very unromantic double chin. Her self-possession is something truly marvellous-very diguified, very graceful, and a little haughty. She is dressed in white silk, vailed in a cloud of tulle, looped up by broad velvet ribbons of that brilliantcombination of colors that ladies call "421 plaid." For the benefit of womankind, we mention that these ribbon loops, about half a dozen in number, extend from the waist half way down, and the tulle berthe is caught up by the same. A wreath of searlet geranium buds among their green leaves, with long drooping sprays, and a necklace of seven or eight cordons of dazzling pearls, complete Miss Lane's tout cusemble. Suc is literally surrounded by flowers, gracefully disposed on tables and pedestals around her the superb willow-leaved acacia, with its nodding plumes of gold—the crimson azalea, whose bright cups tremble at every footstep-peerless japonicas, resting like molded wax on their slender green columns, and soarlet leaved poinsettas, giving a strange tropical glow to the whole room. It is said that Miss Lane is destitute of the usual wamanly fondness for flowers, except in so far but she certainly has taste in her pose. Now we cross the vestibule into the East

God's Plan of Your Life. - Never complain of your birth, your training, your employment, your hardships; never fancy that you could be something, if you only had a different let and sphere assigned you. God understands his own plan, and he knows what you want a great deal better than you do. The very things that you most doprethey are poisons. No! a truce to all such impatience! Choke that foolish envy which gnaws at your heart because you are not in the same lot with others; bring down your soul, or rather, bring it up to receive God's will, and do His work, in your lot, in your sphere, under your cloud of obscurity, against your temptations; and then you shall find that your condition is never opp sed to your good, but really consistent with it.

DEATH OF STEVENS' CHILD. - Isabella Jane Stevens, only daughter of James Stevens, recently executed in the city prison for the crime of wife poisoning, died on Saturday morning, from fever, induced, it is believed, by the depressing effect that her father's execution had on her mind. The child was about nine years of age, and remarkably sensitive and intelligent She was examined as a witness on her father's trial, and after listening intently to the sen-Now we cross the vestibule into the East tence of the Judge, exclaimed, "Come Room, where a throng of brilliantly attired along, father, it's all over now." Inconsistency of Professors.

The inconsistency of professors of religion is very often an occasion of hindering new converts in making an open profession as soon as they otherwise would. They fear, last they too should dishonor the gospel; they hesitate to wear the soldier's uniform, though the loyalty of the soldier's heart beats within them .- Dr. Gordon.

The Blessings of Affliction

I consider myself as under deep obligsverse situations may be improved by us to the happiest purposes. The spirit of resignation to the will of Heaven, which they in culcate, and the virtuous exertious to which they prompt us, in order to make the best of our condition, not only often greatly amend it, but confer on the mind a strength and elevation which dispose it to survey with less attachment the transient things of time, and to desire more carnestly the eternal happiness of another world. - Lindler

PROFESSING CHRISTANS .- The enemy of ill righteousness has none who serve his purpose better, no agents which more steadily or firmly support and promote his cause amongst mankind, than professing Christians, who are not willing to be found coming up in the practical part of true religion; for the great profession such are making, the more they talk about religion, the more they deceive themselves as well as others; instead of coming to partake of that living and eternal substance, which will cadure, they are but following an empty shadow .--It matters little by what devices or stratagems satun prevails, so long as he can satisfy mankind, and prevent them from coming to the true knowledge of God, and keep them from an acquaintance with that Power which can save. This great adversary of man's happiness, will let people go to their place of worship; he will not hinder their pleuding for rites of ceremonies; he will furnish them with argument from the holy Scriptures to support their cause, so long as he can keep them worshippers in the outward court, and hinder the inward work from going forward in the temple of the heart, his purposes are fully answered .-

Sure Foundation for Happiness.

That which alone can lay a sure foundation for happiness, both in time and in eternity, is hardly thought of by many with dasire, or even with any degree of seriousness, unless it be to shun and evade the force of cate as fatal limitations or obstructions, are that power, which thereby would separate probably what you most wint. What you them from their beloved lusts and fleshly call hindrances, obstacles, discouragements, gratifications. In order to effect this, many are probably God's opportunities; and it is and exceedingly absurd have been the connothing new that the patient should dis- jectures and dreams of a great part of manlike his medicines, or any certain proof that kind; but all to shun the cross; that corrupt self, with all its seeming rich treasure and adorning, might be sivel. This self, in many, has been more fond of a religious kind of ornament and treasure, than those of any other sort; towards whom the subtile transformer hath not been wanting plentifully to furnish all those minds who have a religious turn. Antiobrist, as an eminent author observes, can bring forth in his church a likeness or imitation of everything that is to be found in Sion. O then! how greatly it behaves mankind to press after a certainty; since nothing can possibly center the soul in a more deplorable state, than s mistake of this kind .- Griffith.

Influence of Newspapers .- It is not easy to imagine the sum of advantages which would result if the periodical press not only excluded that which does harm, but preferred that which does good. Not that grave moralities, not, especially, that religious disquisitions, are to be desired; but that every reader should see and feel that the editor maintained an allegiance to virtue and to truth. There is hardly any class of topics in which this allegiance may not be manifested, and manifested without any incongruous associations. You may relate the common occurrences of the day in such a manner as to do either good or evil. The trial of a thiof, the particulars of a conflagration, the death of a statesman, the oriticism of a debate, and a hundred other matters, may be recorded so as to exercise a moral influence over the reader for the bet-tor or the worse. That the influence is frequently for the worse needs no proof; and it is so much the less defensible because it may be changed says.

CELESTIAL VALLEY .- God will make vou a blessing as long as he shall keep you in the dust before him. O that most levely valley of humiliation I the safest the most lovely, the most fertile spot between the city of destruction and heaven. May you get into it, and never get out of it till from thence you may be called to glory. O I could say a thousand things concerning this more than celestial valley. The air is so salubrious, the ground so fertile, the fruit so wholesome; while from the branches of every tree, the voices of prayer and praise are heard in delightful concert with each other. While living in this valley no weapon that is formed against us shall prosper, as all the fiery darts of the devil are sure to pass over our heads, since the enemy of souls cannot shoot low enough to reach us to our hurt .--Take this hint from a very old man, Just Another can adopt their successful plans and profit by them without creating a competition or diversity of interests. Unlike mechanics or manufacturers, who are specially interested in keeping their improvements to themselves the raising of a large crop by a neighbor does not lessen the price to the rest; but on the contrary the raising of large surplus crops by an entire neighborhood, has the effect to attract buyers and enhance the value

ANOTHER MORGAN AFFAIR.

Every body is, of course, familiar with the Morgan disappearance, which caused so intense an excitement a number of years ago, not only in this country but also in Europe. It was said the Masons made way with him for revealing the secrets of the Order, and many believe the story to this day. A somewhat similar occurrence is now exciting the citizens of Zanesville. The Aurora not long since published what purported to be a full statement of the mode of initiation, signs, secrets and mysteries of the Sons of Malta, which was extensively copied. This was considered a good joke, got up by some wag to amuse the Sons, and was laughed over by not a few. It, however, assumed a serious aspect when it was discovered that one Curtis was the author, and that he had suddenly and mysteriously disappeared. Suspicion pointed at once to the Sons of Malta, and it is feared that unless the mystery which enshrouds the case is cleared up the citizens will rise en masse against the order. We are sanguine, howappearance had not the remotest connection with any joke he may have perpetrated on

A Singular Affair.

One of the most singular phenomenas heard of for some time past, was related yesterday by Mr. Wm. Whitely, an engineer upon the Northern Central Railway. He stated that on Friday night last he was running a freight train over the road, and when near Lutherville Station, about ten miles from the city, he was suddenly startled by seeing directly before him what he supposed to be the front light of another eng no coming towards him - not over a hundred yarda distant. He immediately blew the whistle to put down the brakes, and finding he was about to run upon it, reversed the engine, and did everything in his power to stop. but finding it impossible, give the alarm to the fireman, and rushed to the rear of the engine for the purpose of jumping off to save his life; when, upon turning again to take another look ahead, he was completely astounded by the discovery that the light had disappeared, but where to, or how, no one was able to say. The story was substantiated by all those who were on the train, who state that they all saw the light directly ahead, very distinctly, and rather larger than the usual front lights. After running a short distance the train was stopped, and those engaged upon it instituted a search for the cause of this mysterious light, but all their efforts were in vain, as there was no light of any kind to be seen in the entire neighborhood. - Baltimore American.

Fight with a Mad Dog - Fierce Struggle and Narrow Escape .- A few nights ago, Mr. Owen Hamilton, of Chester county, Pa., was aroused by his dog going mad in the room occupied by himself and family. Lighting a candle as quick as possible, he saw the dog coming towards him as if to make battle. Not knowing what to do, he jumped upon the bed, but seeing the danger of brought to light in that city. It appears his wife and children, and having no weap-that money letters have often disappeared of on at hand to kill him with he made an efon at hand to kill him with, he made an ef fort and succeeded in catching him at the back of the neck. After a desperate struggle-we might say for life and death-be overpowered the dog. Then came the trou-ble to dispatch him—being almost overcome in the struggle. A gun was brought, but it was unloaded; the axe, but both hands were required to hold the dog. Finally a rope was procured, and his wife tied him. He was then killed. Mr. Hamilton fortunately received no injury, but one hand was completely paralyzed for a time from the effects of the struggle.

A FIRE DOG. Our late efficient Chief Engineer Hadley was a large but not very beautiful dog, which has become so accustomed to the hurried departure of his master from home at a cry of fire, that he now makes it his business to repeat the alarm in canine language prompt his answering howl, that in several cases his owner has been able. when awakened from sleep in the night by the warning howl, to reach the fire almost as soon as the engines, though his residence is nearly a mile from the centre of the city.

The utmost reliance has been placed on the fidelity of the dog, and in no case, since "false alarm." The dog pays no attention to bells; but the human cry of fire eon Manweesemum, the last sachem of the tribe, and the first convert by the Moravian missionaries in that region.

"A FAITHFUL FRIEND IS THE MEDICINE OF LITE" and the right use of money always proves to be a faithful friend, and is further coroborated by Franklin, for he said "there is no companior like the dollar," "ready money is a ready medicine," and the sure way to possess this ready money is to save something from each week's earnings, and deposit at 5 per cent. interest in the Franklin Saving Fund, No. 136, South 4th street, below Chestnut, Philadelphia, where it can be withdrawn at any time without notice. This Saving Fund never suspended.—See advertisement in another column.

INDUCENT.—There is an aged lady who takes her sow-ng, goes into the Maine House of Representatives, seats herself in the area in front of the Speaker, and indulges nersell in the area in tront of the Speaker, and indulges in occasional responses to the speeches of the members, according to her caprice. The other day the speaker remarked incidentally that he thought the most elegant garments in the Union were those made at the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill a Wilson, Nos, 603 and 605. Chestnut street, above Sixth. Philadelphia. The old lady immediately cried "hear!" "hear!" and shook her head approvingly.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. Ballou's Pictorial of 24th July says.—Realizing the true sense of responsibility attaching to the Editor and Publisher of a widely circulated journal, we should deem it ittle less than a crime to recommend any medical com little less than a crime to recommend any medical com-pound the real virtue of which we could not conscient tiously indorse. This balsamic compound has become a home fixture; and all persons who suffer, and have in vain attempted to cure their Coughs, Colds, Bronchial of Pulmonary Complaints, make use of this unequalled remedy.

KETPORT. N. J., May 20, 1858 S. W. Fowle & Co.,—Gentlemen:—This certifies that I was for many years afflicted with a disease of the lungs until I became so weak that it was with difficulty I could walk. My cough during this time was very severe, caus walk. My cough during this time was very severe, causing me frequently to raise great quantities of blood, attended with profuse night sweats,

After using various remedies to no purpose, I was advised to try Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I did so, and before using the first bottle I was restored to perfect health and strength.

I would also mention that this Balsam cured a little girl of mine, of a severe attack of Whooping Cough, when her life was given over by the physician, and all ether remedies had failed. (Signed.) JOSIAH HOFF.

Beware of vice and workliess counterfeits. The only Gentine, Purc. and Medicinal Balsam has the name of "I. BUTTS" writen with a pen, and the printed name of the proprietors, S. W. FOWLE & Co., on the outside wrapper.

for the cure of Coughs and Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma, Difficulty in Breathing, Palpitation of the Heart, and for the relief of patients in the advanced stages of Consumption, together with all Diseases of the Torona & Chest, and which predisposed to Consumption. It attacks the root of disease, and makes the fell destroyer succumb to its influence. It also produces free expectoration, and induces healthy action in the diseased Mucous Membranes and Tissues. It is peculiarly adapted to the radical cure of Asthma. One dose of this invaluable Syrup often gives ease, and consequently sleep, which the peculiar nature of this disease denies him. It is very pleasant to the taste, and prompt in its effects. Try it, and be convinced, that it is invaluable in the cure of Bronchial affections.

Bostov, March 7th, 1859.

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of Chesnut Grove Whiskey, which proves to be free from the heavy Fusil Oils, and perfectly pure and unadulterated. The fine flavor of this Whiskoy is derived from the Grain used in manifacturing it. Respectfully, against the terrific element.

Philadelphia, April 12th, 1856.

Messrs. Evans & Warson,—Gentlemen.—It affords us the highest satisfaction to state to you, that owing to the very protective qualities of two of the Salamander Safes which we purchased of you some few months since, we saved a large perition of our jewelry, and all our books, papers, &c., exposed to the calamitous fire in Ranstead Place, on the morning of the 11th instant.

When we reflect that these Safes were located in the fourth story of the building we occupied, and that they fell subsequently into a heap of burning ruins where the vast concentration of heat caused the brass plates to melt we cannot but regard the preservation of their valuable contents as most convincing proof of the great security off-order dy your Safes.

We shall take much pleasure in recommending them to men of Lusiness as a sure reliance against fire.
