For the West Jersey Pioneer. Nature—the source of Poetic Inspiration. BY WILLIAM F. DEMARIS. Delivered by him at the anniversary of Union Academy, Shiloh, N. J., March 22d, 1860.

Nature is still the Poet's darling theme. His youthful glory and his manhood's dream, For her his fullest notes have ever rung; To her his golden lyre is daily strung. For her he sings, in softly flowing lays, Melodious measures to record her praise.
Her lightnings' flash, her thunders' heavy roll, Her gleaming meteors' track from line to pole, Her northern lights, whose bluzing banners fly With lurid glare, across the glowing sky,— The earthquake's rumbling shock, the tempest's roar, The billows grumbling on the hollow shore. The wild tornado's thundering, crashing course, And all the strange phenomena whose source Is Nature, to the Poet's raptured gaze. Are wrapped in deep enchantment's awful maze He hears her hidden voices loud and clear,

Interprets all, yet when he sounds her praise. Though high his thoughts and softly sweet his He speaks of her with reverent air, as one Vho claims a tribute higher than his own. When Inspiration aims to tune a song. Which as it melts or flows or bounds along, Shall win from two dark eyes a radiant smile, To chase the gloom and life's lone hours beguile t turns to some island far away, Whose golden peaks eatch the last sunset rav. Paints some deep, grassy "honeysnekle glen," And deems this spot the paradise of men. Or over classic Italy will rove, And singling out some lonely orange grove, Build there some youthful dreamer's airy cot, And sing that here's the longed-for Aiden spot: The time-you golden sunset's nectared hour, While straggling sunbeams kiss the burnished tower, While perfumed zephyrs fan the myrtle trees, And deep voluptuous voices swell the breeze, While sweet and clear and mellow from afar Ring out the tones of some unknown guitar. While from the silver tide, all still and clear, The night-song of some youthful gondolier ust strikes the listening ear, then sinks and dies As the last sunbeam from the cross-top flies. Just then the fairy bark will strike the shore, And as it leaves again there's one form more Within the bark, and in the song we hear, Iwo voices blend in music sweet and clear, While muffled cars keep time as on they glide Over the surface of the moon-fit tide, o word of rapture stirs the evening air To tell their joy: enough-we leave them there. If thus the Poet when he sings of love Would fail without the aid of lake and grove, If tender tales and still more tender tears Can only flow when Nature interfores. Much less could proud and stately measures roll, Her pen paints every passion on the mind And says to song "flow on, flow unconfined;" The lofty form, the martial tread, the brow Whose varying shade doth truth avow, Blazing from feature, lip and eagle eye. Are not first pictured as it flows along, But stamped by Nature on the Poet's soul, Then reproduced to till the magic roll. Cature within the true outline has made, This man fills out and adds the melting shade. a deep river, whose perpetual source

THE THREE FIGHTING DEACONS.

In a small neighborhood in Geauga couny lived three deacons. The first is a Metholist, the second a Presbyterian, and the third their respective meeting houses, and as traveling is excessively bad at this time of the year, they concluded to hold meetings in the little red school house in the neighborhood. The question then arose which denomination should hold the first meeting. The Methodist claimed the privilege of opening the hall. The Presbyterian demanded it.-The Baptist insisted upon it. From the Orange Journal. SUCCESS.

In all the undertakings that engage the attention of mankind, the result aimed at and honed for is succes. Without a reasonable expectation of this, no one would be found laboring and toiling unceasingly, amid hope of the eagerly sought reward. It is well that there is a motive influence of such mighty power, constantly actuating the human mind. Without it, we should all, sooner or later, yield to despondency, and cease from every effort to attain wealth, standing, influence, and every desirable good.

There are various ways that are thought to promise success, and they are all thronged by a busy multitude. There is a straight road-somewhat hard to follow-especially in these fast times-because so few walk in it. It is the path of patient, upright effort, and he who chooses it must expect small but sure gains-will be called fogyish-out of date-behind the times, and what not The man who travels in this path and seeks to be successful, is somewhat cautious in respect to the number of irons he keeps in the fire. He knows very well that it will not "pay" to have half of them burn, and he accord ngly limits the numer to what he can easily manage. Such a man will not find at the close of his days on earth that his life has been a failure. He will have been saved from the many temptations that destroy multitudes, because he had not the means to purchase it's a woman's duty to consider. Can I afthem. As the night of death approaches, he will be far more likely than the man possessed of broad lands, to feel that this has been the only true kind of success-that he logue bottles filled and his cigar-case supplied has acquired a title to an inheritance that with the best Colorados? Who's to foot can never fail him.

We live in a fast age-everything is done upon the high pressure system. If a man against a rainy day, he soon becomes anxious to see a larger stream flowing into his coffers. Where there had hitherto been but a hundred dollars, he wishes to see a thousand. To do this he "enlarges" his business, increases a number of his "irons." makes a fortune in a short time, lives expathy with any human being-lives unhapthe human heart, and when the grave closes as one who sought for wealth, honor and abplause, by every possible means, yet died disappointed. To such men life has been little less than a complete failure. The to imitate them and gain a similar end. Many a young man sets out in life with the fairest paospects, and his friends are sanguine in the expectation that he must he will succeed. If he chooses the right path he will succeed. It must be followed patiently, perseveringly. The interest of fastened to extravagant husbands, his employers must become his own, must be sought with the strictest integrity, and with singleness of purpose. He must ac quire, must possess a reputation for trustwill watch him, and will observe his falterings and short-comings. HAPPY WIFE'S DAY .- It is thus decribed by a correspondent of the Ohio

"Were I to trace the record of a day, it would run in this wise: arose at six, dressed, washed and combed my children, got breakfast, washed the dishes, swept and dusted the rooms, made the beds, got dinner, washed the dishes, swept and mended till supper time, got supper, washed the dishes, read a little, wrote less, sewed or mended more, and now it is bed-time. And all this has been spiced with a multitude of little chores whose name is legion, and yet with a few elight variations, such as baking, washing, ironing, making cheese and butter, it is the history of my life."

From Life Illustrated. THE OTHER SIDE OF THE QUESTION.

BY MRS. GEO. W. WYLLYS.

The latest outery about matrimony is that people can't afford it. Young men find the girls so dreadfully expensive. You see a fellow might as well sport a pair of fast horses as a fast wife. Both very nice things, no doubt-for those that can afford them .trials and obstacles that almost forbid the If it didn't cost so much, a pretty wife would rather add to one's importance—say nothing of keeping the stockings in order, and getting up nice little dinners and tempting breakfasts. But then, between the operaboxes, poke-bonnets, diamond brooches, and brocade dresses that the sweet creatures remire, there wouldn't be a thread of broadcloth left of any unfortunate chap! A wife needs a new dress forty times a year, and a horse don't - that's the philosophy of the matter! Oh, yes! matrimony's decidedly a fine thing, but too expensive by half. Ladies must really learn to haul in their expenditures a little, if they expect to avoid being old maids! This is what the delightful young creatures whom society calls "eligible gentlemen" glory in proclaiming on every possible and impossible occasion. But haven' the ladies a word or two to say on the same

"Don't think I mean to be severe, Augustus-I wouldn't hurt your feelings for the world. Only, my dear little man, you are so 'fast.' Don't you think it would be a worth ness. The keen eyes of experience more manly life for you to be splitting wood and carrying water for your mamma, instead of screwing up your eye-glass at the girls on Broadway. Well regulated would be twice as apt to like fou. And wouldn't it be a to-day, will give him renewed strength for better plan for you to be reading Cornell's Geography by the back parlor fire than driving on the Bloomingdale Road? Depend upon it, your chance for a good home, under the protection of a sensible wife, would be a dozen to one greater. Nice rosy-cheeked girls can't afford to throw themselves away on miserable milk-and-water, lancer-dancing, white handed, good-for-nothing jack-a dar ing. If employed in the mechanic arts he dies like you! You're an expensive article, Augustus and you won't wash and wear ."

THE CONTEST.

The following instance of such a contest. alluded to, occurred a few years since. A gentleman, sitting by his fire-ide one evening with his family around him, took the spelling book, and called upon one of his little sons to come and read. John was about four years old. He knew all the letters of the alphabet perfectly, but happened at that moment to be in rather a sullen humor, and was not at all disposed to gratify his father. Very reluctantly he came as he was bid, but when his father pointed, with his knife, to the first letter of the alphabet, and said, "What letter is that, John?" he could get no answer.

John looked upon the book, sulky and sitent. "My son," said the father, pleasantly, "you know the letter A."

"I cannot say A," said John.
"You must;" said the father, in a serious and decided tone. "What letter is that?" John refused to answer. The centest was now fairly commenced. John was wilful, and determined he would not read. His father knew that it would be ruinous to bis son to allow him to conquer. He feit that he must, at all hazards, subdue him. He took him into another room and pruished him. He then returned, and again showed John the letter. But John still refused to name it. The father again retired with his son, and punished him more severely. But it was unavailing. The stubborn child still refused to name the letter, and when told that it was A, declared that he could not say A. Again the father inflicted punishment as severely as he dared do it, and still the child, with his whole frame in agitation, refused to yield. The father was suffering from the most intense solicitude. He regretted exceedingly that he had been drawn into the contest. He had already punished his child with a severity which he feared to exceed. And yet the wilful sufferer stood before him, sobbing and trembling, but apparently as unyielding as a rock. I have often heard that parent mention the acuteness of his feelings at that moment. His heart was bleeding at the pain which he had been compelled to inflict upon his son. He knew that the question was now to be settled, who should be master. And after his sen had withstood so long and so much, he greatly feared the result. The mother sat by, suffering, of course, most acutely, but perfectv satisfied that it was their duty to subduc the child, and that in such a trying hour, a mother's feelings must not interfere. With a heavy heart, the father again took the hand of his son, to lead him out of the inconceivable joy, the child shrunk from enduring any more suffering, and cried, "Father, I'll tell you the letter." The father, with feelings not easily conceived, took the book and pointed to the letter. "A," said John distinctly and fully. "And what is that?" said the father, pointing to the next letter.

" B," said John. " And what is that?"

"C." he continued. "And what is that?" pointing again to the first letter. "A," said the now humbled child.

"Now carry the book to your mother, and tell her what the letter is." "What letter is that, my son?" said the mother. "A," said John. He was evidently perfectly subdued.— The rest of the children were sitting by, own a stake that you will go so far and no and they saw the contest, and they saw

Which party actually possesses the more strength, the Juarez or the Miramon. is a matter of grave doubt; which of the two is the actual de facto government is a difficult question to decide. It has been adopted as the policy of our government to recognize the Juarez as the legitimate one. Mr. Buchanan in his message pledges himself strongly to its fortunes, and also presses upon Congress the necessity of authorizing him "to employ a sufficient military force to enter Mexico for the purpose of obtaining indemnity for the past and security for the future." Now it must be admitted if the followers of Juarez are in the minority, and Miramon rallies around him the great body of the Mexican people, that of the country; for if we pretend to be governed at all by numbers, we must acknowledge the supremacy of majorities. A member of the conservative party states that the five provinces in which the authority of Miramon was acknowledged, contained larger reputation than exists in the twentythree states in which it was not acknowl edged. He also states the active men of the country are with Miramon. We must acknowledge these declarations have some appearance of truth, for Juarez has been shut up in a sea port, which certainly would large number of friends and acquaintances, not have long continued if the sympathies principally from Fairton, called on this of the people, or at least the motive powers in Mexican politics were with him. HON. J. T. NIXON. Hon. J. T. Nixon left Bridgeton on Monday afternoon last on board the Steamer Patuxent, on his way to Washington. This is only the second time that he has visited his home since Congress has been in session, arriving here by stage on Saturday afternoon. his visit among his friends was very brief. By request of Capt. Blew and the passen gers on board, Mr. Nixon gave what he styled "a little talk," but what was pronounced by those who heard it, a very interesting and able speech. In reply to an allusion made by Rev. I. D. King, of the Trinty M. E. Church, of this place, who in maksome remarks after calling the meeting to order, said that as all of the young men on board doubtless expected to go to Congress some day, it would be well perhaps for Mr. Nixon to give some of the advantages of occupying the position of a Congressman, the Hon. representative stated his honest conviction, that if they were seeking for honor, free from care and strife, toil and disappointment, they had better stay away from Washington, although he had succeeded far beyond his expectations in accomplishing his

We would here take occasion to say, that notwithstanding Mr. N. underrates his own merits, yet it is a well known fact, that the respect and influence which he commanded among his fellow members in the House of Representatives caused the election of Mr. Pennington as Speaker, and organized the house at an earlier day than it would have been had he taken a different course than the judicious one which he invariably pursues. We will not attempt even a synopsis of this interesting speech, which occupied most of an hour in delivery. After referring to social life in Washington and giving a description of it, the speaker remarked that to a man who prized his social relations at home and loved the quiet retirement of a happy fireside, Washington was no place for nim. As to the labor and duties of a Congressman, he stated that he had not labored so faithfully in the same length of time within the past fifteen years. When it is inderstood that Mr. Nixon is on a committee that has one third of all the bills of the House to come before it and prepare for presentation, and that when at home no man works harder than he in his profession, it is easily perceived that one who goes to Congress and attends to his duties has something else to do than prepare and deliver buncomb speeches. In reply to inquiries ade by some of his constituents lastingly making speeches simply for the sake of hearing themselves speak and seeing their productions in print. He referred to the fact which we have before stated to our readers, that many of the printed speeches sent from Washington by the members to their constituents were never delivered, or if at all, in the presence of but half a dozen persons, and empty benches. He also alluded to a Democratic member of the House who had occupied a position there for a longer period of years than any other member, yet he had never took occasion to stained with the other's blood, the police of make a regular speech, since he became a the district very conveniently step in and mation as far as applicable, be invested with the fact that most of that class of men in Congress who occupy the time in making buncomb speeches, are not considered the men of weight and influence, and many of them are looked upon with contempt by those who have the good of the country at heart and wish to see the business progressing for casion demands it, there are men in both branches of Congress who are able and ready to make speeches on any subject of interest to their constituents or the country.-

A NEW FEATURE IN BUSINESS!! A NEW FEATURE IN BUSINESS!!

EVERY One his own Salesman!—Jones & Co., of the Crescent one-price Clothing Store, 604 Market Street, above sixth, Philadelphia, in addition to having the largest, most varied and Frashiomable Stock of Clothing in Philadelphia, made expressly for retail sales, we have constituted every one his own salesman, by having marked in figures, on each article, the very lowest price it can be sold for, so they cannot possibly vary—all must buy alike. The goods are well sponged and prepared, and great pains taken with the making, so that all can buy with the full assurance of getting a good article at the very lowest price. Also, a large stock of rices goods on hand, of the latest styles and qualities, which will be made to order in the most fashionable, and best manner, 25 per cent. below credit price. Remember the Crescent, in Market St., above Sixth, Philadelphia. precent time. Read their advertisements, There are now living in Bridgeton and Even nature is anxious to change her dormant state as quick as possible, and already the fields begin to wear their green aspects, in order to remind us to chanfe our habits. To save time, is to save money; we therefore will say in a few well-meant words, for a decent suit of SPRING CLOTHING, go to Jacob Tuck's Union Clothing Store. He receives new goods every week; his prices are as iow as any in the city, and no one need go in a shabby suit, while there is an opportunity offered to buy a whole suit, made of fashionable materials, at a very low figure. Call at the store opposite the Post Office for coats, pants, vests, and Hats; there you are to get suited in quality; style and price.

The Japanese Embassy.—The Japanese Embassy will probably reach this city in the course of two or three weeks. We learn that it is the design of the authorities here to take the illustrious strangers a grand round among the lions of the city, commencing, of course, at the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth. The United States Government will make a special appropriation to procure each of the Ambassadors an elegant suit at this popular establishment.

JOHN GOSMAN, A. M.,

PRINCIPAL.

THE following change has been made in the arrangement of the sessions of this Institution. The present session will be continued till Wednesday, July 11th, after which there will be a vacation of seven weeks. The annual session will hereafter commence on the first Wednesday in September, and continue till the 2d Wednesday in September, and continue till the 2d Wednesday in July. The week from Christmus to New large for the sale sufficient to manure an acre of corn in the hill.

TO FARMERS AND GARDENERS.

The subscribers offer for sale 60,000 Barrels of POUDERTIE, made by the Lodi Manufacturing Company, in Lots to suit Purchasers. This article is in the twontieth year of its introduction into this country, and has outlived fertilizers of every other description, for the following reasons:

1st. It is made from the night soil of the City of New York, by the L. M. Co., who have a capital of Siuc,000 invested in the business, which is at risk should they make a bad article.

2d. For Corn and Vegetables it is the cheapost, neatest and handlest turned to the business, which is at risk should they make a bad article.

2d. For Corn and Vegetables it is the cheapost, neatest and handlest turned to the business, which is at risk should they make the crop, and is without disagreeable odor. Three dollars worth or two barrels is all sufficient to manure an acre of our in the hill. Wednesday, July 11th, after which there will be a vacation of seven weeks. The annual session day in July. The week from Christmus to New Years will be given as a holiday.
Pupils can be entered now with the same advantages as at the commencement of the usual summer session.

The principal is aided in the several branches by able and experienced teachers. Students will be prepared for College, or the more active duties of life. For further information address the Principal. REFERENCES .- Revs. S. Beach Jones and J. W. Hubbard, Hon. John T. Nixon, Wm. Elmer, M. D., Bridgeton; the Faculty of Princeton College; Rev Drs. McElroy and DeWitt, New York city;

Have had the surest demonstration in the following cer at length fully warranted the representations which have been made of them as rendering an undoubted security against the terrific element.

Philadelphia, April 12th, 1856. against the terrific element.

Philadelphia, April 12th. 1856.

Messrs. Evans & Watson,—Gentlemen.—It affords us the highest satisfaction to state to you, that owing to the very protective qualities of two of the Salamander Safes which we purchased of you some few mouths since, we saved a large portion of our jewelry, and all our books, papers, &c., exposed to the calamitous fire in Ranstead Place, on the morning of the 11th instant.

When we reflect that these Safes were located in the fourth story of the building we occupied, and that they fell subsequently into a heap of burning ruins where the vast concentration of heat caused the brass plates to melt; we cannot but regard the preservation of their valuable contents as most convincing proof of the great security afforded by your Safes.

We shall take much pleasure in recommending thom to men of business as a sure reliance against fire.

BAUGH'S Raw Bone Super-Phosphate of Lime, Manufactured from Unburned Bones by BAUGH & SONS, Wholesale Office and Store,

20 South Wharves, between Market & Chestnut sts., PHILADELPHIA Cash price $45 per 2,000 lbs. (21 cts. per lb.) Cash price $45 per 2,000 lbs. (24 ets. per lb.)

In the preparation of this Valuable Manure. BONES ARE USED IN THEIR RAW STATE ONLY. They have never been noticed on catains. They are taken as nature has made them, crushed with powerful Machinery, and subjected to a process, by which all the virtue of the bone is retained, a fertilizer is procured, furnishing in a concentrated and soluble form the two indispensible ingredients for the growth of Plants and enriching the soil, viz: phosphoric acid and ammonia. These two ingredients, by the use of "BAUGH'S RAW BONE SUPER-PHOSPHATE," are given to the soil in all their original strength and purity. They assimilate at once with the soil, furnish all the needful Ammonia for the growing crop, giving it ample luxuriance, and leave the land permanently benefitted so that its presence can be traced for years afterwards.

We recommend Farmers to purchase of our agents, BAUGH & SONS, Sole Manufacturers.
