ORIGIDAL. For the West Jersey Pioneer.

MR. EDITOR:-I am reading an account of the early settlement of our country, written by the Rev. Jehu Curtis Clay, Rector of the Swedish Churches in Philadelphia and its vicinity, which I presume is a book ed,) I might gather some facts that will interest your readers. The first Permanent settlement upon this continent was made in 1607, upon the Powhatan, or James river, at a place which they called Jamestown, in honor of their king.-There were a hundred and five of these

English adventurers. The next settlement was made by the Dutch, in 1614, on the Hudson, which river had been discovered, and named by Capt. Henry Hudson, in 1609. They built two forts on the Hudson, one at Albany, and the other on the island of Manhattan, where now stands the city of New York. The country which these Dutch held, was called New Netherlands, and until the English had got possession, New York was called New Amsterdam. The authority of the Dutch ceased in 1664. They had five Governors, the last of whom was Stuyvesant. On what was his farm, which is in the heart of New York City, there now stands a pear tree of his planting, that is in bloom this

The third permanent settlement, was that of the Puritans, at Plymouth in 1620. The Dutch were the first to settle the eastern shore of the Delaware river, now New. Jersey, which was in 1623.

The Swedes soon followed the Dutch, and settled on the western bank of the Delaware, at a place called Wicaco, now where Philadelphia stands, and also at Christina, in about the year 1636. The first settlers of the Dutch, in New Jersey, in 1623, were all destroyed by the Indians, so that when Capt. De Vries returned, in 1632, he found nothing of them but their skulls and bones strewed upon the ground. When the Swedes came, they found the Indians entire-

Their religion seems in form to have been much like that of the church of England. They had two churches, one at Wicaco, which is now the old Swedes Church, Swansom St., Philada., and the other at Christina, I believe the latter is standing and is the oldest church in Penn-

In 1664, there was a sttlement of English families on Ferkins' creek, (now Salem, N. J.,) who bought of the Indians all the land between Ferkin's creek, and Raccoon

There is nothing in all this history more interesting, than what we witness in the not often seen by the public, and I have low down to our time. Charles was called thought by way of retaining something of Carl, Matthias was called Mats, Benedict was Bengt, Stephen was Staphan, William was Wilhelm.

The Delaware was called South Ever to distinguish it from the Hudson of North Schuylkill signified hidden creek, from its mouth being concealed from view in pasup the Delaware.

We have here in our country, a family by the name of Hoffman, which is pronounced Hoppman. With the Swedes there was family which spelled its name Hoppman, showing that though we have changed the orthography, yet the pronunciation is retained. In the uper part of the county of Cape May, there is a large and navigable creek that was formerly called Dennis' creek, and now known as Dennis creek. At the time of the settlement of Wicaco, among the Swedes, I observe there was a man by the name of Dennis, with many other equal ly familiar names common to our country, and I suppose this creek took its name from Dennis of the Swedish settlement

To confirm the suspicien, I will mention a few other persons of the Swedish settlements, whose names are equally amiliar to the inhabitants of this county. Bpringer, Peterson, Camp, Henderson, Johnson, Steelman, Stiles, Stevenson, &c. Every one of these names can now be found among the living of Dennis' Township. Although strong and continuous efforts were made by the home government of the Swedes, and the colony itself, to retain in the colony the Swedish language, yet we find in about one tered the Delaware, or at the time of our Revolution that this language had become extinct. IL G. H., CAPE MAY COURT HOUSE.

These Associations are more than Educational Associations; they are Associations .-Teachers meet in them not merely in the capacity of teachers, but they meet emphatically in a capacity superlatively social. They come from the school-room. There they have met similar difficulties; they have exkindred thoughts, kindred feelings, and kindred sympathics. AN UNWELCOME REVELATION.

In the early days of the State of Indiana, he capitol was Corydon; and the annual session of the General Assembly usually brought together as wild a set of mad wags as could e found in the State, who had to rely upon their own resources for amusement, for there were then but few theatres, concerts or shows. These lovers of mischief had established mock Masonic Lodge, into which they ould entice such as were a little green, and ake them through a variety of ridiculous eremonies, to the infinite amusement of the On one of these occasions, it being understood that a good natured, athletic young on board that train. self behind a screen. After takeng the candidate through a variety of ceremonies, he was brought to a leave the track before reaching the bridge, like, you can never shake me, for I feel him stand before the screen, and told that he had I could not determine. I knew it was imthen to confess all the crimes he had committed during his life. The candidate confessed some trivial offences, and declared that he could recollect no more. At this the judge came out from his hiding place, groaned and shook his chains. The frightened candidate related some other matters, and declared that he had disclosed all the crimes he had ever committed. At this, the groans of the pretended devil became furious; the chains rattled, and he shook his norms in the face of the terrified candidate. who, starting back in alarm, cried out:

"H-h old on, M m-m-ister D-d evil. If nust tell you. I d-d id k kiss J-judge Grass' ife a c-c-ouple of t-times.

A TRIFLING PREACHER.

A clergyman once preached a very awaken ing sermon. A young man in the congrega-tion was much impressed, and finding that the clergyman was to walk some distance home, joined him, in the hope of having some conversation as to how to be saved. The clergyman was walking with several others, and instead of the conversation turn. ing on religious matters, it was light, and even indecorous. Some years afterwards. the clergyman was called to see a dying man in an inn. As he entered the room, the dying man started.

"Sir." said he, "I have heard you preach." "Thank God for that!" said the clergy-

"But, sir," continued the man, "I have heard you talk, and your talking has ruined my soul, Yes, sir, do you remember the day I heard you preach? That sermon brought conviction to my heart. But I sought a conversation with you, and I walked home with you, hoping to hear something about my soul's peace; but you trifled—tri-fled—TRIVIED! Yes; you did; and I went home, believing that you knew all the solemn things you said in the morning were lies.-For years I was an infidel; but now-now I am dying—I am one no longer. But I am claws. The conductor came forward to not saved! I will meet, and accuse you before the bar of God!" And so the man died.

In New Orleans last Saturday night two men, while drinking in a grocery store, became involved in a dispute about the prize fight betten Heenan and Sayers. One Weyman, who was arguing in favor of Heenan, gave the lie to Daniel Cunningham, a Sayers partisan, and when the latter attempted to strike him with his fist, Weyman jumped cape, not having been arrested since.

Mr. S. was a man bitterly opposed to the P. S. system. A book agent desiring to etrect the sale of a recent work on Education did not accept the offer, thinking, perhaps, teachers too possess an entitle core. A was informed by Mr. S. that he had a book that their right was better than Penn's. It long time did he, of evenings, loiter about already, and the idea of having two such appears that Penn. by way of granting new the stores and other public places of the vil.

LIFE UPON THE RAILROAD.

The best part of my life having been spent upon railroads, and the last ten years as a locomotive engineer, I am prepared to speak from facts, and the first one is this: It has always seemed strange to me that the traveling public took so little notice whether they have a good, careful and sober engineer to guide them on their journey .-That fact is never thought of. But let me say to them, that the man who holds the throttle valve in his hands, he who regulates and guides the awful power that drags them with almost the speed of thought, has more to do with their safety than they usually get credit for. In the first place we will admit that trains perienced like joys, like corrows; they have are liable to accident, and especially passenger trains, that at times run at almost light. ning speed. There are a great many kinds of danger to be apprehended when upon a sisters. The Institute is their family meet- fast run. In the first place, think of broing. They look forward to it as the New ken rails; and upon a night run it is impossible for an engineer to see them, until it is too late. Then again, there are switches set wrong by villians, or by the stupidity of educational intellectual feasts, but to a great- those who have charge of them, which is er degree by the social intellectual repasts not an uncommon occurrence. Then there they have enjoyed, to labor in the school are cattle upon the track, rocks falling down from deep cuts, embankments giving out, and a thousand and one things that the traveling public never give a passing thought. I was led into the above reflections by an incident not long since, in which I was the engineer on the night express from — to -; our leaving time was 10 P. M., but we did not get away before 11 P. M., on account of waiting for connection trains.

Our regular running time was 35 miles per hour, and it was expected that I was to make up the lost hour, by fast running. A speed far too great for the condition of our road at that time; however, if the wheels kept under the engine I was bound to make

I knew that a few rods from the spot we passed through a large covered bridge, and whether those horses would possible to come to a stop before we reached it, at the speed we were running. I was also well aware that the horses could not get tion and the weepings of the world; but over the bridge, as there was nothing but ties for them to walk upon.

When I first discovered them I whistled "down brakes." We were gaining upon them, when, after reaching the bridge, in the place of turning on, they both, side by side, jumped through the track between the ties, and their whole bodies lay above the track. Now I had rather run over any four-footed animal in the world than a horse; they are almost sure to throw a train off the track, and in this case I had two to contend with, both fast in the middle of the track, and that in a wooden bridge with a span of eighty feet below. I saw at once our case was desperate, and, as a desperate case needs a desperate remedy, I instantly whistled "off brakes," pulled the throttle valve wide open, and resolved to strike then at fifty miles per hour, for that I knew was our last and only chance. Frank, my Fireman, saw how things stood. Poor fellow, he had been on the road a long time, but this was the first time he knew fear. His face was deadly pale. He crouched down in the tender among the wood; I knew that he saw death ahead. As for myself I der roar we were upon them. I felt the old honor, which this life can bestow.—Shacengine quiver, and then a dull, grinding kleton. sound, as if flesh, blood and bones were being ground together. For a moment I knew and in fact, the whole engine was perfectly clogged with gore and horse flesh. were yet thundering on. I whistled down the brakes, and we stopped about one mile from the spot. The engine looked like some huge fiend blowing for more blood, and scraping the ground with its ponderous how matters stood. Frank was yet down in the tender, and I did not know but what he was frightened to death. We soon brought him out of that and put him in the baggage car; he was too weak to fire that night The baggage master came and took his place, and we were soon under way once more. Not one passenger on that train ever knew how near eternity they had been that night, and it was best, perhaps, that they should not -It has been acknowledged by all competent railroad men, that the tremendous speed we were running at, was all that saved us from destruction, as it was impossible to stop, and having the train fully stretched out, with all couplings extended it did not give the care a chance to bound frem the track.

A client once burst into a flood of tears after he had heard the statement of his

West Jersey Railroad

The oft repeated question. "when will the West Jersey Railroad be commenced," has been solved. All the surveying, and other necessary preliminary arrangements, being looked upon by many, as so much for "buncomb"

On Tuesday afternoon last, the first shove full of earth was removed on the the site for the depot, on the property known as the Wm. Nixon place, at the North end of Bank street. Several of our most prominent citizens were present and took part in the exercises. Several wheelbarrow loads of earth were removed which inaugurated the work. The contractors of this end of the road were present, and are going on with the work immediately. It is expected that in one year from Bridgeton to Philadelphia.

We understand that the Glasboro' and Millville road is rapidly progressing, the rails having already been laid on about ten miles of the road When both of these roads are completed, South Jersey can no longer be looked upon as behind the age for railroad facilities.

Our Salem and Cope May neighbors, are moving in the direction of a Railroad, and will doubtless in a few years at most, be blessed with this mode of conveyance. If they are able if they will only put forth the exertion, we think friend Leech, Editor of the Ocean Wave, will be entitled to a free pass for himself and family, for life. The movement originated in that source and has been ably advocated in the Wave ever since.

The stockholders of the West Jersey Road, are reminded by a notice in another column of the Pioneer, that the second instalment of five dollars per share is requested by the 20th inst.

With such a purpose, can any one, even the sceptio or infidel, find fault? Is not the morality hereby secured, to say nothing of the spiritual good derived, sufficient of itself to commend the Bible and Bible societies to all mankind, whether professing christians or not?

It has been the opinion of various learned writers on Ethics that no system of moral law contained in all the writings of the ancient philosophers compares with the morality of the Bible "From the Bible," says Soame Jenyns, author of the " Internal Evidences of the Christian Reliour Cape May friends ever should be so gion," may be collected a system of ethics, in highly fovored as to have a Railroad, and which every moral precept, founded on reason, is carried to a higher degree of purity and perfection than in any other of the wisest philosophers of preceding ages. Every moral precept founded on false principles, is totally omitted, and many new precepts added, particularly corresponding with the new object of this religion." Mr. Locke also remarks that 'in morality there have be en books enough written, both by ancient and modern philosphers, but that the morality of the Gospel so exceeds them all, that to give a man a complete knowledge of genuine morality, I would send him no other book but of Oriental scholars and an humble Christian, corroberates these opinions in the following expressions: "I have carefully and regularly pe rused these Holy scriptures, and am of opinion that the volume, independently of its divine origin, contains more sublimity, purer morality, more important history and finer strains of eloquence, than can be collected from any other book, is whatever language it may have been written." If, then, the Bible were nothing more than the best authority on the subject of ethics or moral law, it would be worthy, for the good it might accomplish, a circulation in every por tion of our globe; and if it merits a world-wide distribution simply on account of its morality, much more should it find its way to the home and heart of every one, for the more weighty reason that it is God's own book-the word of

MORTALITY AMONG CHILDREN.

On Tuesday next, the Comberland Bible Society will hold its 44th annual meeting at Million as will be seen by reference to another column.

legitimate children, and it betrays either a great ignorance of physiological laws, or a very criminal disregard of them, that anything like such a mortality should exist .-By refering to our files for the last eight years, we find that the proportion of deaths of children compared with adults, in Bridgeton, is about sixty per cent.

If the same rate should, under any ordinary or general circumstances, prevail amongst any of the branches of domestic stock, if, for example, one half of the colts, calves, or lambs, should die naturally before obtain ing their growth, how the papers would teem with remedies; volume after volume would attest the interest, if not the knowledge upon the subject. A quarter of a century would not be allowed to clapse before it was even perceived. But as they are only children, we have only an occasional stray paragraph upon the subject. This is certainly discreditable both to our philosophy, philanthropy and christianity But since the subject is beginning to excite attention, we hope it will be thoroughy examined, and the causes of it removed as far as practicable. Owing to a different and more luxuriant and enfeebling mode of living. especially among females, we presume one of ly a house or barn in the direct track of the leading causes will be found in an inbreased natural debility of the chiid; and the first remedy, in a more general and perfect The total loss of life is not under sixty obedience to natural and physiological law by the parents themselves. To obey these laws, they must first be understood. There is much too great an ignorance in this country of the laws of health, and too wilful a violatlon of them by those who do profess to understand them. They should be made the object of study in every school, and the child made early to understand that his future life, ession once fairly formed in the young mind, and it would be difficult to eradicate it wholly. Indolence is one of the main predisposing causes to physical debility. Unless the system is strengthened by healthy, active labor or exercise, the body will become weak, the nervous system deranged, and partially prostrated, and a necessary and consequent debility to their offspring. There is no class of society, no favored caste, exempt from the operation of this law. Only by constant and judicious exercise will the nerves acquire, or even retain a proper degree of health and strength. The fact is well known, and generally acknowledged, that if we neglect to use one of our limbs for a time, the nerves leading to it will become incapable of performing their functions, and the limb become useless. What is true of one member of the body, taken singly, is true of all, collectively. Free out-door exercise is one remedy, and employment another. In the cities, damp cellars and close confined rooms, with a large amount of dirt and filth, are too frequent predisposing causes of death to be added to those which exist in the country. Want, and improper and unwholesome food, with more ignorance among certain conditions and classes of society, are also, it is to be feared, not unfrequent causes Without extending this article farther, we would remark that, from what is already known, it would seem to be well established that occupation, exercise, fresh air, knowl-

THE SONG OF THE CITY

DAISIES vs. DUST. BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL.

The country is fair, nature's beauties are there.
In blossoms and sweet scanded flowers:
The fields clad in green, sull of promise are seen,
And birds sweetly ging in their bowers.
These plessings of the on the some of the sod.
Their hearts have attuned to the praises;
But while rare rejoice in harmonious voice,
Wasight in the dust, for the daisies.
There's life in the breese that has trafficked with to Dispensing their bullings on the mountains.
There's health in the ale, which is adapted their pale,
And flows from the cool, money foundable.
The country, alone, gives the system a tone—
The invalid much it amazes—
The invalid much it amazes nen pack up your things, take the cars for your And fly from the dust to the daisies.

Pack up, and be off for the senson:

I write for their good be it well understood,
In rhymes which are ringing with reason.

It really is sweet in a crazy retreat;
In better, I trust, than the breathing of dust,
Is gauffing the air o'ar the daisiea!

The husbands will all at the greet fower Hall,
Procedure at a bergain, their raimont;
Then each of them all, on his lady can call
For love, and succeed as a claimant, to proud she will feel, to her lord she'll reveal—
Her feelings in all of their phases;
Hop towald be in the feel. Hough dust he had left for the dairies.

My wife, standing near, with her lips to my car,

Rays, "Bardie, while others you're teaching.

Remember, I pray, what the moralists say:

That practice is better than preaching.

We'll leave for awhile!' size exclaims with a smile,

While on me she lovingly igazes;

"We will," I reply, 'ere a week passes by.

Your two threshall bloom 'mid the daisles."

The Fashions of Life ever changing and new, The old and the young all vainly pursue. But one thing is certain, it can't be denied. There is pleasure in EEERING, whatever betide. There is pleasure in SEERINO, whatever betide.

This this buoys us forward, through obstacles many,
If we can't reach the dollar, we catch at the penny,
The rich and the great, while their coffers they fill,
Rejoice at the poor, as they go through the mill.
I went through the mill, got well sifted and ground,
And after five years' perseverance I found.
In order to regain what I lost long before,
I must needs come to Bridgeton, and open a store-I must needs come to Bridgeton, and open a store. They say to find money I lost long before, I must go where I lost it, to dig and explore, I will try the experiment thereby hoping to wing I think by economy, I can bring out the tin. I have opened a room in prospecity row, And filled it with goods, both handsome and new, I purchase for eash, and select them with care, This accounts for the crowds that daily appear.

CONSUMPTION. WE cannot speak too highly of this TAR CORDIAL as a cure for Consumption. Many persons, once poor and emaciated, can testify that when everything else failed, and they were just, ready to stop into the grave, a new light sprang up—they heard of the FOREST PINE TAR CORDIAL, and its wonderful cures; and as the strong man, grappling with the mighty waves, lays hold of every object that offers a shadow of assistance, they took the Tar Cordial, and were restored to perfect health. To the Consumptive, then, we say, take courage; the Forest Pine Tar Cordial has cured as hopeless cases as yours—it may cure you, at least do not despair until you have given it a fair trial.

Baad the following:

until you have given it a fair trial.

Read the following:

To John D. Baurt, Eso.—Dear Sir.—Being a great sufferer for fourteen years, from a confirmed Astlums, the bottle you brought me of the Forest Pine Tar Cordul prepared by Mangerson a Co., restored the to perfect health, after being pronounced incurable by four of the leading Doctors of the city. My sincere prayer is to let the world know it.

Your obedient servant.

Philadelphia, March 15, 1860.

Read the following;
Gents:—Being of a Consumptive tendency, with weakness, pain in the breast and lungs, and general debility.
I was induced to they your genuine Forest Eline, Tay: Condial, and am happy to say, it has been of the greatest benefit, as my pain and weakness have left me, and I am gaining in strength and fisch daily. I believe your Forest Eline Tar Cordial to be the best medicine known, and can with confidence recommend to those similarly afflicted.

Yours, Respectfully.

CAUTION.

The success attending the sale of the Forest Pine Tar Cordial, and the wonderful cures performed by it, have induced others to unitate and make an inferior article, so as for impose upon his public, and induce the unwary to believe that in purchasing said Medicines, they were getting our celebrated and wonderful Forest Pine Tar Cordial. Therefore, so protect the public against all such spurious articles, they have had the words "FORTEST PINE TAR CORDIAL the Great Curelof Consumption." Bronchitis, &c.," and their name. "MANDERSON & CO.," blown on each of the bottles, which are of darkgreen glass—none gouidine without those words on—Bernamber, we have no connection with any Ppreparation of Tar but this.

EREBY informs the public that he has not yet gone to California, but has opened a new Clothing, Hat and Shoe Emporium, in that large and commodious store on Commerce street, formerly occupied by Wm. G. Maul & Co., where he will be pleased to see all his old customers, and as many new ones as choose to give him a call. His whole stock is entirely new, of the latest style and fashion, and has been selected with great care. He flatters himself that he can accommodate all who call upon him, with anything they wish in his line of business, to their entire satisfaction, and at the following reduced rates:

Black Dress Frocks, from $8.50 to $10,00. Business Coats of all kinds, from 2.50 to 2.00. Boys' Dress Frock Coats, from 2.00 to 4.00. Boys' Over Coats, from 2.00 to 4.00. Boys' Pores Frock Over Coats, from 2.00 to 4.00. Boys' Frock Ov
