NO NIGHT AN HEAVEN. "And there shall be no night there."-Rev. xxil. 5.

No night shall be in Heaven! no gath'ring gloom Shall o'er that glorious landscape ever come; No tears shall fall in sadness o'er those flow'rs, That breathe their fragrance thro' celestial bow'rs No night shall be in Heaven! no dreadful hour Of mental darkness, or the tempter's power, Across those skies no envious cloud shall roll,

No night shall be in Heaven. Forbid to sleep, These eyes no more their mournful vigils keep, Their fountains dried, their tears all wiped away, They gaze undazzled on eternal day.

To dim the sunlight of the raptured soul.

No night shall be in Heaven-no sorrow's reign, No secret anguish, no corporeal pain: No shivering limbs, no burning fever there; , No soul's eclipse, no winter of despair.

No night shall be in Heaven-but endless noon; No fast-declining sun, nor waning moon, But there the LAND shall yield perpetual light, 'Mid pastures green, and waters ever bright.

No night shall be in Heaven-no darkened room No bed of death, nor silence of the tomb; But breezes, ever fresh with love and truth,

Shall brace the frame with an immortal youth. No night shall be in Heaven! But night is here The night of sorrow, and the night of fear; I mourn the ills that now my steps attend,

And shrink from others that may yet impend. No night shall be in Heaven! O had I faith To rest in what the faithful Witness saith, That faith should make these hideous phantoms and leave no night, henceforth, on earth to me

A LONG SERMON.

A colemporary, speaking of the old meeting-house (a very elegant one, by the way) lately burnt at Saco, says:

"The church was erected during the ministry of the Rev. Elihu Whitcomb, and the dedication sermon was preached by him February 12th, 1806. It was ninety feet in length by fifty-four in breadth," etc. Uncle Toby remarked, as he read this that he had heard and seen some long sermons, but didn't remember any one so long as ninety feet; and that the breadth was uncommon, long sermons being usually slim

Miscellancous. THE WAY TO KEEP HIM.

"Out again to-night?" said Mrs. Hayes, retfully, as her husband rose from the teatable, and donned his great coat.

"Yes, I have an engagement with Moore; I shall be in early, have a light in the library. Good night," and with a careless nod, William Hayes left the room.

"Always the way," murmured Lizzie Hayes, sinking back upon a sofa, "out every night. I don't believe he cares one bit bout me now, and yet we've only been married two years. No man has a more orderly house, I am not a bit extravagant, and yet I don't believe he loves me any more. Oh! dear, why is it? I wasn't rich, he didn't marry me for money, and he must have loved then-why does he treat me with so much neglect?" and with her mind filled with such fretful queries, Lizzie Hayes fell asleep on

Let me paint her picture as she lay there. She was a blonde, with a small, graceful figure, and a very pretty face. The hair, which showed by its rich waves its natural tendeney to curl, was brushed smoothly back, and gathered into a rich knot at the back. "It was such a bother to curl it," she said; her checks were pale, and the whole face wore a discontented expression. Her dress was a ed, her head bent, and/large tears falling neat chintz wrapper, but she wore neither from her eyes. He was beside her in an incollar nor sleeves - "what's the use of dressing up just for William?"

Lizzie slept soundly for two hours, and then awoke suddenly. She sat up, glanced at the clock, and sighed drearily at the prospect of the long interval still to be spent lone before bed-time.

The library was just over the room in which she sat, and down the furnace flue, through the registers, a voice came to the young wife's cars; it was her husband's. "Well, Moore, what's a man to do? I was disappointed and I must have pleasure somewhere. Who would have fancied that Lizzie

"Come, William, your coffee will be stone

the room to her side; and Lizzie's heart bounded as she recognized the old lover's Not one fretful speech, not one complaint fell upon William's ear through the meal .-The newspaper, his usual solace during that hour, lay untquehed, as Lizzie chatted gaily on every pleasant subject she could think of, warming by his gratified interest and cordial manner. "You will be home to dinner?" she said as he went out.

"Can't to-day, Lizzic. I have business out of town, but I'll be home early to tea. Have something substantial, for I don't expect to dine. Good-bye," and the smiling look, warm kiss and lively whistle, were a marked contrast to his careless, lounging gait of the evening previous. "I am in the right path," said Lizzie in a low whisper. "Oh! what a fool I have been for the last two years! A 'FRETFUL DOWDY! William, you shall never say that again." Lizzie loved her husband with real wifely devotion, and her lips would quiver as sho thought of his confidence to his friend Moore; but like a brave little woman she stifled back the bitter feeling, and tripped off to perfect her plans. The grand piano, silent for months, was opened, and the linen covers taken from the furniture. Lizzie thinking-"He shan't find any parlors more Coming in sight of them, the untroubled waters seem drawn faster and more aslant towards the fearful place of their fall, then suddenly are drawn from sight. The channel has opened in the certre and the middle of the river has gone. As at Niagara, and many other waterfalls, so here, the water seems to have run long enough in a channel tending too high, until found out of place In a course the continuous of which would carry them from the ground. So they must at once, by a perpendicular plunge, take a lower channel. This seems like an awful case when so large a river in its course, with its channel taken out, has nothing to run upon. A great cavern, cloven and forked yawns towards it. In wild commotion the regular current is broken up, and dividing oves the ledge some of the water goes this way, and some that, (as best it while that, carried out before you leaps from the jet. The middle portion of the river (without hesitation) falls into the open cauc while the outside portions continues in two streams, racing along each awful brink approaching each other, but before their junction, are swallowed up and seen no more.-There, a wide sheet spreads away over a table of quadrilateral cliffs running down an unfit channel-thus clearing the heaviest of the fall :- while some takes through a se cret passage underneath. On yon side, volumes of water wind in violence sgainst an abutment until so far in return the two streams on each side appear crossways pouring into the boiling chaldron. The heary deep is in a state of grand ferment. The water pouring in from all sides would seem to condense it, but it instead, it continually drives the air into it, causing the whole mass to boil and foam like a pot. Thus in turbulence it marches away in one big, bulbous stream though the defile and under the bridge descending to the more expansive and calmer passage be-

Selections for Scrap Books,

BE NOT CONFORMED TO THE WORLD .-John Pawson, a worthy man among the early Methodists, published a pamphlet, entitled "A Serious and Affectionate Address to the Junior Preachers in the Methodist Connexion." Therein he says, "For a preacher of the gospel to follow the foolish fashions of the men of the world in dress, appears to me to betray a weakness and littleness of mind of which we ought to be ashamed. That conformity to the world is breaking in upon our people with a full tide, cannot be denied. Surely then no preacher should give it the least countenance; but on the contrary, bear a pointed testimony against it in all its forms. Time was, when a Methodist might be known by his dress, as well as by his serious and devout behaviour; but this is far from being the case now. It is much to be lamented, that many of our people do not differ at all from the rest of the world in this respect, but run into all the changeable fashions of the times. however foolish or expensive; and I fear that some of our preachers see no evil in this,

He then refers to John Wesley, who, he to me; and if I should be a little egotistical says, "saw with sorrow of heart, this deadly of my adopted home, I hope that I shall be faithful testimony against it, even to the the rising generation to be, if we suffer those to go unreproved who so openly break the rules of society? And supposing patheir daughters, to run headlong into all the fooleries of the most fantastical dress? -dress that is so far from rendering their persons more comely or pleasing in any respect, that it certainly deforms those who wear it, in the highest degree."

> THE VAIN FASHIONS OF THE WORLD .-If there were a greater concern on the part of Christians, to be beautified with salvation, and a more ardent desire to assist the poor and neddy, there would be less time and money wasted in carnal decorations, and more spirits redeemed from everlasting perdition. This mad rage after the vain fashions of the world is eating the very core of godliness from the Church; is pulling down the strong holds of Zion, and building up acknowledgement, by the individual, that the body is of more importance than the soul. These childish vanities will soon perish with the decaying tenements which they would adorn. The cold grave will soon enclose their possessor within its bosom! Alas! what will such ornaments and decorations avail, when death shall forever set its seal upon the character? Let each, then, as they would value their temporal and eternal wel fare, seek that "beauty of adorning" which will brighten unto the perfect day; that robe of the everlasting righteousness of Christ, which no man shall take away.—James E. Griffin, A. M.

THE LOVE OF FINERY.—The frivolous affectation and vanity which constitute the love of finery; the time, attention and expense wasted by those who are attached to such decorations; and the proportionable neglect of the inward adornings, which is uniformly connected with it, sufficiently prove that the more moderate and indifferent about these embellishments Christians are, from proper principles, the more respectable and amiable they must appear in works of charity performed to the distressed. with the money necessary for purchasing or-naments of gold and costly attire, will render women much more beautiful in the eves of God and man, than if they were decked have been a heavy tax on their owners for with all the vain ornaments in which the > CHRIST'S MISSION .- Our Holv Redcemer's mission was for a heavenly purpose.-As a little child, he taught man humility and dependence. Of humble parentage, he showed him that birth was of no importance. His vesture of the humblest attire, with no outward decorations, he clearly indicated how utterly worthless were all such things. By example he manifested their fallacy; by precept he cautioned his followers against all such adornings. The same principle of moderation and economy in dress, is inculcated throughout the Scriptures. It would be preposterous to suppose that Christ could approve of that in his followerers which he discarded himself, and taught his disciples to view as of no value. - The Mind of Christ.

A LIVING TESTIMONY .- The lives of distinguished men are a living testimony of the deteriorating effects of extravagant dressing. Howard visited the dungeons and prisons of Europe; Sir Matthew Hale was the companion of kings and nobles; Sir Isaac Newton was the wonder of his age; yet these men were noted for their modesty and the simplicity of their dress .- Testimony to Plain-

OUR Young Men .- Why is it that so few of our young men, receiving lucrative com-pensations, have nothing left at the expira-tion of the year? Simply because they are too extravagant. Parents are referred to the advertisement of this Boarding School for boys, at Freehold, in this State. Freehold is easy of access from Philadelphia several times a day by Railroad. The school excells, for systematic arrangement, high character of its appointments, and the capabilities of its instructors. Parents interested in schools should apply for circulars.

Freehold Young Ladies Seminary. The Principals of the Freehold Institute inform parents who have sons and daughters both to educate, that there is also a flourishing Ladies' Boarding School in Freehold, under the care of Prof. A. Richardson, to whom applications may be made.

As Mr. Daniel T. Davis, of Newport, was returning home on Monday evening, with some of his friends, from Fortescue, in his carriage, he was run into by three boys driving a blind horse, at the top of his speed. The shaft of the sulkey ran about 9 inches in the breast of Mr. Davis' horse, killing it in a few minutes afterward.

Topographical Map of New Jersey. We have before us the prospectus of a Topographical Map of New Jersey, to be made from the State geological survey and the U. S. Coast survey, and from surveys by G. M. Hopkins, Jr. This work is under the direction of Mr. William Kitchell, superintendent of the Geological Survey of New Jersey, and published by H. G.

Bond, Philadelphia. We are assured, and from the means furnished by the State, together with the well known ability of Mr. Kitchell are satisfied, this map will he by far the most complete and accurate ever published of our State. All former maps have been made without an actual survey. but this one is based upon the observations and surveys of gentlemen expressly engaged, and who have already been over the county of Cumberland. The location of Churches, School Houses, Mills, Hills, Mountains, &c., will be accurately laid down. ' It contains a Meteorological Map of the State, showing mean annual temperature, depth of rain, &c. A Time dial. showing the time at different points as compared with Trenton. The Map covers an area of about thirty square feet, and is engraved and manufactured in the best style of the art. It can only be procured by subscription at the price of $6.00 .-The prospectus has appended to it, the recommendation of many of the best men of our

On the 2d day of March 1854, the Legislature of New Jersey, passed an act entitled "An act to cause a geological survey," but owing to the expense attending its prosecution it was abandoned. But at the last session of the Legislature, after reciting the importance of the work, an act was passed authorizing Dr. William Kitchell to prosecute the work to completion, but " without any further expense to the State."-Mr. Kitchell was authorized to make use of the wood cuts, field maps, apparatus, and other materials apportaining to, and used in the State survey, but the articles to remaim the property of the State and to be returned to the State Treasurer after the work is completed.

We hope when our citizens are called upon by the agent, who will be in our county in a short time; they will show their approval and appreciation of this long needed enterprise by subscribing for the best, and most complete map of New Jersey ever published, and likely to be published for many years,

The attention of our readers in Millville and vicinity is directed to the advertisement of Mr. Alfred Whalton, who has purchased the News Depot formerly owned by Mr. G. H. Leeds of that town. We are pleased to learn that Mr. Leeds' Watch and Jewelry business has increased so much as most ample arrangements to have this fair to warrant him in disposing of his interest to Mr. Walton; and it is also a source of gratification that the business has fallen into the hands of one so worthy of public patronage. If any person needs a large amount of patience and politeness, it is certainly one who undertakes to serve so great a variety of tastes and dispositions as a newsman is called to. If a single paper is missed once in a year, we be unto the newsman or the carrier no matter how reasonable the excuse offered, to say nothing of a hundred other "botherations" to which he is subjected .-Our readers in that vicinity may depend on being faithfully and promptly served with the Pioneer in the future, as they have been

WEST JERSEY RAILROAD.

If the coming winter shall prove favorable, the Railroade between Bridgeton and Camden, in silvery foam far down the sloping chanand Millville and Camden will be com pleted early in the Spring, and certainly before the middle of April: The company are urging the work forward with great zeal. Several causes have conspired to give us this road. The enterprise of Mr. Richard D. Wood, may be classed among the first. The persistent endeavors of Judge Yorke, the Treasurer of the W. J. Company, have exerted a great influence, and now are freely acknowledged and commended. We do not think we will be anticipating more than the truth, and stepping beyond the bounds of discretion, when we congratulate Mr. Yorke, upon the success which has crowned his endeavors.-For about ten or twelve years, he has been untiring in this struggle-and we presume no one will feel prouder, and, indeed, no one will have right to feel prouder, than the Treasurer upon its completion.

The securing of this road, has induced a few reflections upon our business relations with, and which to approve in their movement here the want of enterprise of Philadelphia Mer- than in the staid rocks, which so sullenly chants. Heretofore the trade of Southern Jer- sit in one place, unwilling for anything; sey has been almost exclusively confined to that city, except in the nature of shipments of corn. wheat and potatoes, of which thousands of bushels are yearly sent to New York, Baltimore and Richmond. But outside of this, Philadel- and stability amid the actings of matter; for phia has received our custom, and furnished the market South of Camden. This is all natural; it resulted from proximity, and the difficulty of intercourse with New York. We might reasonably expect that enterprising merchants would wish to continue this trade : to add to the facilities of communicating with their marts, and place their customers under some obligation to continue the trade with them. It appears to us ling the one hundredth, or the one fiftieth that the most ordinary business foresight would point to this; but Philadelphia merchants, true to their reputation of blindness, (for this is far from being the only instance where the want of enterprise has been displayed, as witness their direct Steamer communication with Liverpool, &c.,) almost absolutely refused to lend a hand to construct a road which must bring customers to their door. We lie about to have a road, but no thanks to Philadilphia; indeed, we are perhaps more indebted to New York for it, than to the city to which we might naturally look for The trade of New Jersey has and will increase n a ratio not surpassed, if equaled by any of the original thirten,-and no portion of New Jersey has distanced the Southern counties. The census of 1840, showed a population in Bridgeton of a little over 3000: now the inhabitants number more than 5000 according to the census just taken. Millville has increased in population and manufactures even more rapidly The cotton, iron and glass manufacturing interests of Cumberland County alone are very extensive; and as regards soil, no township in the United States, according to the census of 1850, urpassed our own Greenwich, in the number of bushels of wheat per acre. From this increase of population and wealth, results a greater demand upon the cities for goods of domestic and foreign manufacture: in fact for the thousand things, for which the county depends upon the ple, which are, to some extent, aided of city. We presume, to place the trade of Bridgeton with Philadelphia at from 700,000 to 800,-000 dollars would be under-estimating it. Now add to this the trade of Millville, and the many ing the earth to bring forth abundantly, other enterprising towns in our county of Cum- which has brightened the prospects of the berland, and we must have an aggregate of country, especially of the west, and filled some 1,700,000 dollars. But this, according the hearts of its population with confidence to the opinion lately in substance expressed by and hope. The cast recovered sooner from the Philadelphia merchants, is not worth securtime our merchants and traders were looking merchants had had the opportunity offered them, of bringing and securing the trade of any district of county like South Jersey, they would instantly have availed themselves of it, and in fact, the moment a charter can be obtained, a railroad will be commenced to connect the South-

Walk of Life.—We talk of human life as a journey, but, how variously is that journey performed!—There are those who come forth girt and shod, and maniled, to walk on velvet lawns and smooth torraces, where every gale is arrested and every beam is tempered. There are others who walk on the Alpine paths of life, against driving misery, and though stormy sorrows, over sharp afflictions; walk with bare feet and naked breast, jaded, mangled and chilled; whilst there are still others, whose pathway lies between these two extremes, who preserve the even tenor of their way, and buy their garments at the "One Price" Fashionable Emporium of Granville Stokes, No. 607 Chesnut street. BROWNING & BROS.

The enterprising proprietor of CHESNUT GROVE WHISKEY, (The Purest Medicinal Agent ever known,) has furnish ed the community a Stimulant, Pure, Healthful and In vigorating, at the same time a mild delicious beverage. It is calculated to do away with the vile drugged stuff that is palmed off on the community, and which is injurious to body and mind. In addition to the certificates beneath, he has received a Diploma from the State Agricultural Society, and additional testimony from DR. JACK-SON, of Boston, who testifies under oath to its absolute purity.

Certificates. We have carefully tested the sample of Chennut Grove Whiskey which you sent us, and find that it contains none of the Poisonous Substance known as Fusil Oil, which is the characteristic and injurious ingredient of

BOOTH, GARRET & CAMAC, Analytical Chemists.

New York, Sept. 3d, 1858.

I have analyzed a sample of Chesnit Grove Whiskey, and having carefully tested it, I am pleased to state that it is entirely free from poisonous or deleterious substances. It is an unusually pure and fine flavored quality of whiskey.

JAMES R. CHILTON,
Analytical Chemist.

Analytical Chemist.

Bosson, March 7th, 1859.

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of Chemui Grove Whiskey, which proves to be free from the heavy Fusil Oils, and perfectly pure and unadulterated. The fine flavor of this Whiskey is derived from the Grain used in manufacturing it. Respectfully, INPECTINE, THE PERSIAN FEVER CHARM. For the prevention and cure of Fever and Ague and Billious Fevers. This wonderful remedy was brought to the knowledge of the present proprietors by a friend who has been a great traveler in Persia and the Holy Land.

who has been a great traveler in Persia and the Holy Land.

While going down the river Euphrates, he experienced a severe attack of Fever and Agne. On discovering his condition, one of the Boatmen took from his person an Amulet, saying, "Wear this and no Fever will touch yau." Although incredulous as to its virtues, he complied, and experienced immediate relief, and has since always found it an effectual protection from all malarious complaints.

On further investigation he found that the boatman attributed to it miraculous powers, and said that it could only be obtained from the Priests of the Sun. Sometime afterward, the gentlemen in conversing with a Priest, obtained from him the secret of its preparation, and ascertained where the medicinal herbs were found, of which it was compounded. The wonderful virtues of this article have induced a full belief in the minds of the natives in the miraculous healing powers of their Priests.

Since his return to America, it has been to be a content of the second.
