For the West Jersey Pioneer. LIGHT AFTER DARKNESS BY GEO. E. TOMLINSON.

Choice Loctry.

A maiden sat by the shore of the sea,-Weary and lone and sad was she. The deep waves sounded with hollow tone, The sun went down with his Lanners unfurled, And hid in the West, the light of the world. Then Night on her shadowy pinions flew Abroad o'er the earth as the Day withdrew. The eyes of the sky, serene and mild, With pitying gaze saw sorrow's child. The great white moon from the Eastern main Arose and spangled the watery plain. There was light on the sky and light on the wave, But none in the heart that longed for the grave. The muttering wind went moaning by-To its wail there came an answering sigh. The white mists rose in a ghostly throng, And pale and silendy glided along. Still the maiden sat by the shore of the sea, And weary and sad and lone was she. Sailly she thought of the days that were fled, Wildly she thought of the days ahead. Out of the mists came a gliding sail With its dim escert of phantoms pale. Nearer it came with its pinions white,-Then into the darkness,-and vanished from sight.

Thus had it been with the lone one's life,-Light and darkness ever at strif. White-winged hopes would arise to the view, Then sink in the darkhess and blend with its hue. And the soul had come to despuirs bleak shore To plunge in its waves to arise it, more The night-wind rose with a sadder wail And the rumbling sound of a distan, gale. But another tone than the surges sang To the distant storm, on the night-air rang. Twas a wail of the heart on the lonely shore, More sad than the shricks of the storm-fiend's throng Were the sorrow winged word's of the maiden's song, Why stay I by thee, thou tempest-tossed ocean-Why chants my lone spirit in concert with thee? Like thy feam-erested waves is my soul's wild commo But their deep thunder-tone is no music to me— Tis the shrick of despair-tis the groan of the dying-A brave form is frenziedly struggling with thee-Tis over-that form or thy white sands is lying --Shall I find rest with thee, thou dark reiling bill w? Ah no, I may not rush into the wave,— But a few weary days and my head I will pillow Where the grass shall grow green above my lone grave Ne or again shall invivoice with thy surges be blending -O'er thy wide-spreading surface is nothing but gloom I leave thee, alone and in darkness descending Shall I tread the wild pathway that leads to my tomb.

She turned her steps to her home again. But a form stood by her she had not seen, So wrapped in her sorrows her thoughts had been, No grave was his on the ocean strand, But safe from the wreck, he had reached the land, His hardships over, his wanderings past, He had found his long sought home at last. Two forms are leaving the billowy strand, Two hearts are linked with a golden band. There is light in the sky and light on the wave, And light in the heart that had longed for the grave-

Richards was an inveterate chewer of tobacco. To break himself of the habit, he took up another, which was that of making a pledge about once a month that he would never enew another piece. He broke his pledge just as often as he made it. The last was taking another chew.

"Why Richards," says I, "you told me you "Yes." he replied, "I have gone to chewing, and left off lying."

The other day a boy came tearing round a corner, with his rags fluttering in the wind, his face smeared with molasses, and a shingle flourishing in his hand, while he was shouting to another boy, about the size of a pepper box, who stood nearly a quarter of a mile down the street:

"O, Bill, Bill-get as many boys as ever you can, and as many shingles as ever you can, and come up the street round the corner as fast as ever you can, for there's a big large hogsit of lasses busted on the pavement-busted all to smash.

"Do you think that is right, my child?" I was struck by the impressive tone in which Mrs. Dayton uttered these words, and looking up I saw her seriously awaiting their effect. The child was a sprightly, blackeyed darling of scarce four summers, and the question involuntarily crossed my mind, "How far can such a child be expected to judge of right and wrong?" "Does Emma think she is doing right?"

cheek grew serious, as her eyes fell beneath the mother's gaze, and she bent them upon pirations, which leap like angels from the the forbidden book of costly prints that she had been turning over. The volume was bow and clouds come over us with a beauty ing which, Christ Jesus said, "Never man not injured. The mother pointed out no that is not of earth, and then pass off and torn leaves, no soiled pages; but simply, was her darling doing right in taking the book when mamma had forbidden it?"

The little lip quivered, the large eyes filled with tears, and with some effort the child replied, "No, mamma." Then raising the volume from the carpet, where she had been bending over it, she replaced it upon the table, and turning back, she hid her face in the folds of her mother's dress and burst into tears.

The triumph was complete, and it was the triumph of principle. I was aston-

A pause ensued, but I awaited expectant, and Mrs. Dayton proceeded.

Mrs. D. ceased speaking, while the triumph of right argument, and the glow of enthusiasm beamed on her countenance.

PAPER IN THIS STATE.

It affords us pleasure to announce to our readers that Mr. Geo. E. Toinlinson, late Principal of the Shiloh Union Academy, has become associated with us in the publication of the PIONEER. The increased patronage of the establishment in all its branches, has warranted this arrangement, which we trust will be of mutual benefit to all interested.

Mr. Tomlinson is not an entire stranger to the duties which devolve upon an editor, having heretofore employed his pen in the production of articles for the press. Neither is he a stranger in this part of the State, being a native of Cumberland County, highly esteemed and respected for his high attainments, won by untiring industry and perseverance, which combined with his moral worth, should insure that success in his new field of labor which will justify a long continuance in the performance of such arduous duties as should be well compensa-

The readers of the PIONEER may be assured that they will be the gainers by havto fill the position of an editor, as our new associate. This will give us more time to devote to other branches of the business .-The typographical department, for which we have heretofore received so much praise, shall still be improved, and all other interests connected with the printing business receive more of our personal attention, while at the same time our pen shall not remain idle. The contributors to the columns of on Saturday evening next. the PIONEER, will continue the same as lic interest will be maintained.

Thankful to our patrons for past favors and the extensive patronage at present be- meeting. stowed upon us, we trust that the increased labor upon the PIONEER will receive a corresponding increase of patronage.

JAS. B. FERGUSON.

In entering upon the duties of a new vocation, it does not become me to make tash promises. I shall not do so, preferring to let the future speak for itself. Mr. Ferguson is already well known to you. His success in the business to which he has devoted himself needs no remarks from me. The present circulation of the PIONEER, and the flourishing state of affairs connected with it, is the fruitful index of his energy. The increase of labor demanded seemed to make it necessary that the time of more than one individual should be devoted to the paper and its interests. Accordingly I make my introductory bow to the public. hoping for its lenience until time shall make me more fully acquainted with the duties of my position and the wants of the public .-My engagements for the next three months are such that I shall be unable to devote but a small portion of my time each week to the paper. But at the close of that time, if health,-by the failure of which I was compelled to abandon my labor last Spring, but which now seems restored-should continue, and if my acquaintance with and attachment to the business should warrant, I then hope to devote myself wholly to it, and in asking the favor of our patrons, I feel that, if an earnest desire to enhance their interests, close attention to business and constant efforts to improve, be qualities desired, that favor will not be bestowed in GEO. E. TOMLINSON.

Our attention has frequently of late been called to the importance of not being "too late," in meeting Cars, Stages, Steamboats, &c. "Time and Tide wait for no man," is a very true saying, yet it cannot be applied to the accommodating Stagemen and Steamboat Captain of this part of the country. Illustrative of the fact, we might refer to many instances within our observation where they have put themselves to considerable inconvenience for the accommodation of the public. This will not be the case on our Railroads when they are comple ted. When the minute for starting arrives, the cars will be off, no matter who may be

Merchants and others visiting Philadelphia, for the purpose of purchasing Dry Goods, would find their time profitably spent in inspecting the choice and profuse selection of seasonable goods at the extensive and old established store of Messrs. Eyre & Landell, at the S. W. Corner of Fourth and Arch Sts. The establishment spoken of enjoys a degree of popularity among wholesale and retail buyers, that is certainly enviable and perhaps unprecedented in the Annals of trade. Purchasing direct as they do, from sermon in the evening, to a very large aufirst-class Auctions, and also ordering from Europe for their own particular sales, in addition to their selections from the large New York Importers, the best and most fashionable fabrics in the Market: the firm are prepared to present special inducements to cash buyers, and to sell at extremely small advances. We are satisfied from personal inquiry and observation, that to the title of a "Model Wholesale and Retail Store," no house in report several new cases. Six have died with it, the City can claim a better right than Eyre all children.

An extensive and varied assortment of those adjuncts of dress, at the very lowest prices, may always be found at this establishment. Read their advertisement in another column.

We give place in another column of this week's Pioneer to a communication written and endorsed by Caleb Henry Sheppard, in reply to an articl ewhich appeared in last week's Bridgeton Chronicle, over the signature of Jacob Dailey, Town Marshal. If liberal advertising will insure extensive paro nage, our enterprising Dry Goods Merchant, Mr. Samuel McGear, certainly deserves success. Judging from the crowds that flock to his store, he is certainly doing a rushing business. Mr. McGear not only advertises extensively and thus secures customers, but by having a large and splendid stock of goods and polite attentive salesing the products of one so highly qualified men to show them, he cannot fail to sell largely,

Bridgeton District Preachers Association.

This association which is composed of the Pastors of the M. E. Church, within the Probasco and others; of the beautiful landscape Bridgeton district, met on the 18th inst., at Harrisonville. The day was fine, and the matters of interest, but we must forbear. In will find the name of one of the Committee; attendance, both lay and clerical, was large, there being some 20 preachers present -After the usual details connected with the organization, the Rev. Mr. Margerum read review of a book entitled "Inside views of Methodism." From the reviewer's analvsis of the book, I understand the author to mantain that experience rather than any peculiarity of doctrine, or polity, is the essential and distinguishing characteristic of Methodism. The criticisms and discussions clicited were quite extended and highly interesting, and with them closed the morning

In the afternoon Mr. Ashbrook read short essay on "The social means of Grace peculiar to Methodism." Essays were also read by Mr. Atwood, of Camden, and by literary which comes before this association must be subjected. There were several other essays, and also questions for discussion on the programme, of which, as engagements at home made it necessary for your correspondent to leave at this stage in the proceedings, he cannot speak. tural Exhibition. The seventh annual Exhibition of the Agricultural Society of Cumberland County, was held on Wednesday the 20th inst. The day was fine, J. W. Proctor & Co., 708 Chestnut and at an early hour carriages were flocking in filled almost to overflowing. The grounds selected for the occasion, and lately purchased by the Society, were much more spacious and conveniently arranged than those formerly occupied .-We had feared that in consequence of the protracted drowth of the past senson, the display of agricultural productions this year would not be equal to that of former occasions; but we think that, upon the whole, this Exhibition, both in the number of attendants and articles displayed, fully equals the best of previous ones. In some sections of our country where displays of this kind are held, after a few years the interest declines, the effort to succeed relaxes, and the exhibitions become second-rate affairs. But we are glad that the citizens of Cumberland, after having embarked in an enterprise which is so well calculated to develop the agricultural and mechanical resources of the county, do not lose their interest, nor cease their endeavors, but seem determined that the proud position already reached shall be maintained, and all possible advances made. Twe therefore glady announce the success that has crowned the efforts of the present year. privilege of being heard through the col- much space this week in enumerating the various articles deposited; but by referring to a few representative features of the occasion, would give general view of the whole affair. The quantity of fruit and vegetables, we think, was not so great as on some former occasions; but any deficiency that there may have been in quantity, was certainly compensated for in the quality of the display. Where none were poor, but all excellent, we think it must have been hard work for the committees to decide upon which to confer the premiums. There was, as usual, a fine lot of grapes. This county is bewell adapted to it are our soil and climate, that almost every family might, just as well as not, supply itself with this healthful luxury. This part of the State, from its very position, as well as nature, must become emphatically a fruitgrowing country. The fruit and vegetable departments of our County Fairs have always been a noticeable feature, and are such that should call forth thoughts of our practical farmers. A number of times we heard persons, from a distance, say of our fruits and vegetables, that they were worthy of the highest praise, and that they had never seen them equalled. Of potatoes we noticed a large lot, both of the common and sweet. Of the latter class was a basket of very large, fine ones deposited by our friend Adam Graff, of Buckshutem, which might have taken a premium had he been a member of the Society. We examined them on the ground, and thought them good, since then they have been left at our office, and having thus had more time for examing them, we think them better; and we expect soon to have the opportunity of subjecting them to a still more thorough examination, when we have no doubt that we shall find them best. Mr. G. has our thanks for this expression of his generosity. The ladies, in their department, showed that their interest is unabated, and that the cultivation of their taste industry goes hand in hand. There was a very fair display of manufactured articles, and agricultural tools and machines .-We would call especial attention to the steampower Threshing Machine manufactured by Fredcrick Bowen of this town; to Clayton C. Whitaker's rotary machine for drying clothes, and to and iron castings with the fine iron fence that enclosed them, deposited by James D. Moore.

The display of stock was unusually good. We cannot forbear mentioning the fine lot owned by Harris Ogden, Jr. Mr. Ogden deserves credit for what he has done in the way of importing blooded stock. One that he has lately imported, Beauty," a full blooded Durham heifer, aged named. The handsome bull, "Stalwart," imported and owned by J. D. Holmes & Co., is also worthy of especial mention. The display of sheep was very fine indeed. Among other good poultry, we noticed a very handsome lot of Cochin Chinas deposited by Mr. Joseph P. Allen.

It will hardly become us to say much of the norse trutting; but if we should, we should certainly refer to "Snap" owned by Mr. Charles Daxis, which took the first premium for speed, under the skillful horsemanship of Mr. L. II. Dowdney, who, if there is any "go" in a horse, will brin it out, and that, too, without the cruel use of the whip, which characterizes some others.

Had we space, we intended to have referred to the large display of grain; of the flowers, and among them of the duhlias deposited by Mrs. Thos. R. Jordan; of the paintings by Mrs. Emma needle-work deposited by J. Bogg; and of other conclusion, we would take the liberty of urging if that does not suffice, you can have the upon all those who have the interest of our county at heart, and who have not yet joined this Agricultural Society, to do so before another year shall roll around, and do what they can for the Exhibition of 1861.

THE END OF GOVERNMENT.

Society is the outgrowth of humanity in its progress of development. No person in it can possess an isolated existence with independence of interest, but the welfare of each one is interwoven with the interests of all. As the will of an individual produces its correspondent action, its results are brought upon others. The influence of mens' deeds are interacting, so that each ossesses an interest in each. Thus in the natural progress of Nature's development, we find Society-a community of men naturally united by like desires and common interests. The good of the whole becomes the vital interest of each Mr. Dobbins, of the Commerce St. Church, But since the vicious choice of one going out Bridgeton, which passed through the inev- into action may conflict with the legitimate initable critical ordeal to which everything terest of all. Society, in its natural development as a unity, by virtue of its inherent right, at once proceeds to govern itself. Government may thus be said to be the agent of Society-or rather the natural working of Society in securing its own highest benefit. It therefore beomes the object of Government to effect and secure the highest well-being of Societies. This is its ultimate, and this cannot be to attain its ied them from the Pionega, and spoke for highest welfare through the individual moral them a noble word, and remarked that "Mr. worth of its members. Its vision is too dim to penetrate the sanctuary of the inner man. Its arm would be powerless to control the inward preference. Satisfied if the outward life be regular, it exercises its inherent right to restrain, and by legitimate sanctions to prevent the clashing of the outward manifestation of vicious choice with the community of interests. This is the immediate end of government, but in this it has reference to an enl more remote. In all the exercises of this restraining, controlling power over the manifestation of vicious desires as the immediate end of government, it holds constantly before it its not fur from the point where they were ultimate object, by virtue of which it receives its adopted, who have got back-bone enough to rightful power to govern; the securing of the pub lic freedom. For the West Jersey Pioneer. A WORD TO MARSHAL DAILEY.

Mr. Dailey: you, in common with all men, know that there should be no conflict between a man's duties as a man, and his ducoming quite noted for its grape-culture. So ties as an officer. From your article it may be plainly seen, that you consider it to be your duty as a man to be humane and tender-hearted-"that you do not wish to see your fellow men suffer imprisonment." "that you desire to treat all men in a gentlemanly manner." From your article it may also be plainly seen, that you consider it to be your duty, as an officer, to throw aside all of your humane and tender-hearted feelings-to aid you will walk firmer, breathe freeer and do in imprisoning an innocent fellow being-to your own thinking. treat a fellow being in a very ungentlemanly I know not, nor care not what honorary demanner, by aiding to return him to that bondage from which he had a right to escape. Now the object of those Resolutions, which you so much detest, was as a small beginning to bring about that state of affairs, when you shall no longer be compelled, as an officer, to ignore and trample in the dust every noble impulse of your nature—that you shall no longer be compelled, in your official capacity, to banish from your soul every sacred emotion of your manhood, and become a catch-poll for that class of men whom Coldridge describes as a "legalized banditti of men stealers." Remember, if you will. that you were a man before you were an officer-that the rights of man and the laws of our being and of civilization are somewhat cerely hope that you will not get down-hearted and think that everything is going to ruin. You are ecrtainly correct in saying that you have National and State laws upon your side; you have also the public opinion of the country in your favor; why then become the large assortment of agricultural implements alarmed and call for help in the execution of the laws? Is it possible that a few Resolutions have knocked out the underpinning from all these much respected laws? -If such is the case, they have met with greater success than any one anticipated .-If you believe it to be your duty to obey and execute laws because they are called one year and three months, is appropriately laws without any regard to whether they are right or wrong, then you are to be pit-older than the Fugitive Slave law. I sin-

ied more than condemued. If you were in certain States of this Union, and was found reading this piece, you would be convicted and condemned; when the officer in the discharge of his duty, you, of course, with reverence for law and the duties growing therefrom, would exclaim then, as now, "Is an officer to be called a scoundrel for obeying the laws of his country?" The Jews said "we have a law and by that law he is condemned." So they proceeded with what Mr. Dailey would call their duty, and executed the law. You seem to be indig ant because the names are not given of hose who composed the Committee. If you will look at the close of this article, you

We beg of you to say nothing about moral courage. Why did not those individuals who came to this part of the country on such an errand have the moral courage to let their business be known and not come under the false pretence, as can be proved, of wishing to buy rails?-Why should a man take to the corn field to spy out his human prey and then fall back upon his dignity and call upon others to do the dirty work of arrest? NOTICE.

THE excellence of the new and improved oyster dredging machine, patented by T. P. Sink, has now become so universally acknowledged that one or more initations, embodying substantially the same principles have been brought into the market and attempted to be palmed off upon the public. None of them, however, are as cheen and economical as the genuine patented device, and they are palpable intringements of U.S. Letters Patent. The undersigned accordingly caution the public against buying or using the same, and they also give notice that they will immediately bring suit in the U.S. Court against any and every person found making, selling or using any of these infringing machines. The genuine article is sold at low prices by the undersigned and it will pay for itself in a single season by its saving in the cost of labor.

I beg leave to call the attention of the citizens of the United States to the above Wines and Liquors, imported by Udolpho Wolfe, of New York, whose name is familiar in every part of this country for the purity of his celebrated S hiedam Schmapps. Mr. Wolfe, in his letter to me, speaking of the purity of his Wines and Liquors, says. "I will stake my reputation as a man, my standing as a merchant of thirty years' residence in the City of New York, that all the Brandy and Wines which I bottle are pure as imported, and of the best quality, and can be relied upon by every purchaser." Every bottle has the proprietor's name on the wax, and a fac simile of his signature on the certificate. The public are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves. CONSUMPTION. WE cannot speak too highly of this TAR CORDIAL a a cure for Consumption. Many persons, once poor and emaciated, can testify that when everything else and effactated, can testify that when "everything else failed, and they were just ready to step into the grave, a new light sprang up—they heard of the FOREST PINE TAR CORDIAL, and its wonderful cures; and as the strong man, grappling with the mighty waves, lays hold of every object that offers a shadow of assistance, they took the Tar Cordial, and were restored to perfect health. To the Consumptive, then, we say, take cour age; the Forest Pine Tar Cordial has cured as hopeless ases as yours—it may cure you at least do not despai intil you have given it a fair trial. Philadelphia, April 28, 1860. CAUTION.

CAUTION.

The success attending the sale of the Forest Pine Tar Cordial, and the wonderful cures performed by it, have induced others to imitate and make an inferior article, so as to impose upon the public, and induce the unwary to believe that in purchasing said Medicines, they were getting our celebrated and wonderful Forest Pine Tar Cordial. Therefore, to protect the public against all such spurious articles, they have had the words "FOR-EST PINE TAR CORDIAL the Great Cure for Consumption, Brouchitis, &c.2" and their mane. "MANDERSON & CO.2" blown on each of the bottles, which are of darkgreen glass—none genuine without those words on.—Remember, we have no connection with any Ppreparation of Tar but this.

WEST JERSEY WOOLEN FACTORIES. WEST JERSEY WOOLEN FACTORIES.

THE subscribers would direct the attention of farmers and others to their increased facilities for manufacturing superior WOOLEN GOODS, such as Sathretts. Cloths, Blankets, Horse Blankets, Flannels, Stocking and Carpet Yara. We manufacture a durable article, of the best quality, and at low prices. We gnarantee our goods not only to be equal to the imported in texture, but to stand hard wear much better. Mechanics and laboring men generally would find it to their advantage to purchase of us, instead of wearing foreign goods which will do them no adequate service.

We will pay the highest market prices for WOOL, which can be sent to our Factory at Bridgeton, or Allowaystown, and there manufactured to order, or eash paid. Also, all wool left with Daniel Shoppard, agent at Greenwich, will be promptly attended to.

We do not buy up this staple on speculation, and therefore, whilst paying

Cash for Wool, at the highest rates, we insist that a preference should be freely extended to home manufacturers, and claim that, since no loss is incurred, we should have a priority mong wool growers, or those who have wool to sell may 26 R. & J. DUBOIS. FARMERS LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST!

BAUGEL ... SUPER-PHOSPHATE OF LIME. ctured from Unburnt Bones by BAUGH & SONS.

No. 20 South Wharves, PHILADEL PHIA.

A liberal discount male to dealers.

In the preparation of this Valuable Manure, BONES ARE USED IN THEIR RAW STATE ONLY. They have never been boiled or active. They are taken as natural has made them, crushed with powerful machinery, and subjected to a process, by which, while all the virtue of the Bone is retained, a Fertilizer is procured, furnishing in a concentrated and soluble form the two indispensable ingredients for the growth of Plants and enriching the soil, viz.: PHOSPHATE, are given to the soil in all their original strength and purity. They assimilate at once with the Boil, furnish all the needful Annomia for the growing crop, giving it ample buxuriance, and leave the land permanently benefitted so that its presence can be traced for years afterwards.

We are now received. manently beneauch years afterwards.

The steadily increasing demand which has followed the Raw Bone Super-Phosphate of Lime is a marked proof that the Parmer and Planter are beginning to appreciate the value of such Fertilizers, as not only produce the first crop but also permanently improve the soil and on this point we have abundant cidence from these who prefer its use to that of Peruvian Guano. Since the introduction of our article we have continually desired to furnish a Manure combining AL, the important constituents of Raw Bones, and we have accomplished this law recognition in particle and the law accomplished this law recognition. portant constituents of Raw Bones, and we have according to this by a process originating with, and used by, ourselves.
