The following parody is respectfully dedicated The sun's hot rays were falling fast As through a Southern city passed A man; who bore, 'midst traitors low,

A banner with this strange motto-

SECESSION.

His brow was sad; his mouth beneath Smelt strong of FIRE at every breath; And, like a furious madman, sung The accents of that unknown tongue-

In happy homes he saw the light Of household fires gleam warm and bright Above the spectral GALLOWS shone; And from his lips escaped a groan-

"Try not that game!" Abe Lincoln said, "Dark lower the thunders overhead; The mighty North has been defied:" But still that drunken voice replied-

"O, pause," the Quaker said, "and think" Before thee leaps from off the brink!" Scorn was in his drunken leer, And still he answered with a sneer-

"Boware the ring tree's bristling branch! Beware the Northern avalanche!" And this was Scott's restraining voice; But still this was the traitor's choice-At the close of war, as toward their homes

And turned to God a thankful prayer, A voice whined through the startled air-A traitor by a soldier keen. Suspended by the neck was seen,

Our troops, as victors, hurried on,

Still grasping in his hand of ice,

A voice, like angel's warning note

That banner with this strange device-There to the mournful gibbet strung, Lifetess and horrible he hung; And from the sky there scemed to float

After spending a few days, and accomplishing the object of our visit, we were taken by a friend to the Williamstown and Troy Rail Road. In passing east and west through that country, one would suppose it to be impossible to build a railroad where there is so many mountains and hi'ls. But science and industry can overcome great difficulties. This Railroad follows up the valley of the Hoosack river, until it strikes the mountain, and they have expended millions of money, and years of time in digging or drilling through this mountain of rocks, and yet they have several miles to bore before they complete the work. This railroad connects with one to Bennington, Vermont, and with another for Rutland, Vermont, at Eagle Bridge. Our ride on this road was but a few miles, when we exchanged it for a country stage coach, and then a few miles on foot, when we arrived at our destination, among our friends and acquaintances. How agreeable, after being long among strangers to meet the companions of our childhood-yes, the aged mother who gave us birth.

Knowing that we were near the place of were anxious to visit the spot again. One pleasant morning we started in one of those country carriages, and after crossing the hills and valleys, we ascended an eminence, from which the Green Mountains were in plain view, and there before us in yonder valley, was the spot that gave us Capt. Kidd, Bloobeard, Monro Edards, birth,—the dearest spot on earth. But O the ravages of Time! How altered, how changed did everything appear. I seemed for a moment to be transported back half a century, when with fishing pole in hand, with our neighbors' boys, we wanthose days are gone, and that generation have passed away, and strangers have ta-

Our readers, and especially the young among them, should peruse the following piece of advice, which we clip from the Williamsburg Times:

"No woman will be likely to dispute with us when we assert that marriage is her destiny. A man may possibly fill up but a woman with nothing to love, cheraly in the universe - an existence without is the want of her nature; and nothing can satisfy her heart with such a void unfilled. Now with the exception of some cccasional irregularities in the relative proportions of the sexes, produced by circumstances such as the nettlement of new countries, there is no reason why every man should not have a wife, and every woman a husband, and this would casily be brought about, by the exercise of common sense and less ambition, Each sex is looking up for something above its own sphere. The son of an industrious and successful mechanic must be a professional man, or a merchant, instead of following in his father's footsteps; and this is the neat, industrious daughter of a mechanic like his father is not good enough lady, who is one age in advance—that is set her cap for a gentleman forsooth.-

Now, this is all wrong-deplorably, wretchedly wrong. Girls should know that men superior to themselves in education and position do not always associate with them for good. ### THE WEST JERSEY RAILROAD.

We contemplated giving a glowing description of the grand opening of this road, which took place on Wednesday last, but like many others who participated in the good things furnished on that occasion, we have been on the sick list ever since; not from the effects of the lemen-aid, which proved too strong for many, but as country Editors so seldom get anything in the eating line rich enough to produce a deleterious effect, we presume the sudden change of diet is what knocked us into "pi." However, we cannot refrain from saying that it was the grandest affair of the kind we ever witnessed. At half past twelve a train of eleven cars, drawn by a powerful and switt it acted most upon the moral part of the locomotive, handsomely decorated with flage, brain, there the growth would be. We understand there were several barrels of 'lemonade with a stick in it" in another part of the building, which we did not visit. After all had been thoroughly "filled to their stomach's content." they were addressed by S. J. Baird, Esq., Hon. L. Q. C. Elmer, Abram Browning, Esq., Dr. Kenzie, of the Philadelphia Press, Jasper Harding, of the Philadelphia Inquirer, Paul T. Jones, of Philadelphia, and David Naar, of the Trenton American. Most of the speeches were appropriate and interesting. Paul T. #### READING.

The privilege of reading has an impor ance that is far reaching and world wide It accelerates thought and gives new en ergy and life power to every departmen of society. The proportion in which th savage or barbarian falls behind the spirit of our progressive age, indicates the elevating tendency of the mental feat of intelligent reading. As the sun is the contre of the solar system, likewise all literary culture revolves around the central focus of knowing how to read. Before the student can unravel the mysteries of his text book, he must know how to read that book. Before a people can be thoroughly acquainted with the laws by which they are governed, they must have the power to read and digest those laws. Before mankind can be fully conscious of the sublime principles and maxims of the Bible, they must read and catch the electric impulse of universal truth. It is the great boon and blessing, by which we become instructed in the experience and lessons taught by historic ages. Oral communications the human race have always had-a power confined within the narrow limit of cutting the atmosphere with the vocal organs, and extending only a few rods at furthestbut the art of printing, and the ingenuity of man in perfecting the system, has put in motion such enterprise and advancement, that if a being, who lived before printing was known, should reappear, he would be home-sick and hurt in his feelings, to see fanatacism in vogue and rampant. The growth and refinement pro duced by reading is immense, it is all around us, its influence pervades the hum ble cot as well as the stately mansion. I develops the boy, and continues the development of the aged. It creates an expausive power in the regions of the cranium, reminding us of the case of an exhibitor in a Fair near London, who had for exhibition a scull, which he said was the scull of Oliver Cromwell. A bystander remarked that he hardly thought that it could be the scull of Cromwell, for he had a large head, and died quite an old man. "Very true," replied the exhibitor. but you see this is the scull of Cromwell when he was a boy." If a person could leave behind him two sculls, one when he was a youth, and the other when he was old, the difference between them would depend to a great extent upon how much reading had been done, and also upon what kind of reading it was. If it had been such as appealed only to the animal propensities, there the development would

A FEW WORDS TO ALARMISTS.

In the plarm and anxiety caused by the disastrous battle at Manassas, some persons are already inquiring what will England and France do now? They seem to think that the policy of those Powers is as fluctuating as the accidents of war, and that tiey are only waiting for a victory, on one side or the other, to make up their minds whether to aid the north or recognize the south. To these alarmists we would address a few words of comfort -The statesmen of the old world do not act upon impulse, but upon a steady line of policy; and one rule upon which they proceed is not to recognize a people or confederation as an independent nation until it has indisputably proved its power to aintain itself as such. Thus, for instance: In 1830 the Poles rose up in rebellion against their Russian masters, drove them precipitately out of Warsaw, and completely routed them at Grodno, killing fourteen thousand of them, and capturing all their artillery and baggage. They gained several other battles, so that the Russians were glad to retire across the frontier. The victorious Poles then invited revolutionary France to recognize nations; they solicited the same of England. Now here was a prima facie case of success; but what did France and England do? They well knew the power and resources of Russia, and that in a long struggle Poland must give way. They were not disposed to aid the latter, so they declined recognizing her. A still stronger case in point was that of Hungary in 1849; for then the Austrian empire had almost fallen to pieces; its armies had been everywhere beaten, and by far the most important portion of it had seceded into open rebellion. Hungary was for some months de facto independent, and demanded recognition by France and England. But again those Powers reflected, and they perceived that the success of the Hungarian patriots was evanescent: that the elements of national and European development were not yet ripe for the admission of a new member among the nations; besides, they saw Russia looming in the distance, and so they declined to recognize Hungary. Even in the recent case of Italy the recognition did not come until many months after the successful result of the contest was known. There are too many interests involved n the action of the two great European Powers with regard to ourselves, to enable them to act with such precipitation as some of our citizens dread. England has declared her determination to remain absolutely neutral, until we shall have settled our troubles one way or the other .also rest assured that not one nor a dozen hurry her into recognizing Jeff Davis as Eastern Europe against Hungary; and we may easily anticipate the conclusions she will draw. Nor is the Emperor of the tately in the matter than England is. He is a man who calculates contingencies. and any direct action on his part just now would as assuredly be resented by England as by ourselves. She has no notion of seeing the French flag become an object of permanent interest in the Gulf of Mexico, nor of an Imperial protectorate over South Carolina. The probability is that the two Powers will follow the same policy-- that of neutrality-until some very marked development takes place on this continent, and that then they will be found pulling different ways But the truth is that we are so unaccustomed to defeat that when it comes upon us, for the first time in fifty years, we do not know what to make of it. Now both England and France have sustained severe defeats in their time, and have learned to look on them with greater coolness. In their civil wars the party that ultimately won met with the greatest reverses at first; so was it with us in our war of independence; and it is possible that it may be so

Our loss is from 2500 to 3000. The fortifications around Washington are strongly reinforced by fresh troops. Washington, July 22 .- After the lates information was received from Centreville at half-past seven o'c ock last night, a series of events took place in the intenseest degree disastrous. Many confused statements are prevalent. but enough is known to warrant the statement that we have suffered in a degree which has cast a gloom over the remnant of the army, and excited the deeplest mel-

The following particulars have been received from a gentleman who accompanied the Eighth New York regiment: The men reached the battle field after a fatiguing march of nine hours, and immediately attacked the enemy. The rebel batteries were concealed as well as their infantry, while our men moved steadily forward without being able to direct their fire with as telling result as if they had been in the open field. None of the field or staff offiers of the Eighth regiment were injured. Sherman's battery, or the greater part of t, has returned to the city. COMMENDATIONS:

From Hon. Lewis D. Campell, M. C., of Ohio.

My family and friends all concur in the opinion that the (Newell) Picture is more life like than any thing they ever saw. My likeness has been repeatedly taken by different Artists in various ways, but I have never yet had one which presents so true to nature, all the features and expressions of countenance as this.

as this.

From E. Jor Morris, late Minister to Italy.

The exquisite finish, beauty and softness of your portraits, conjoined with their durability of color and faithfuiness as likenesses, cannot fail to commend them to the attention and patronage of all who apreciate true art.
From Col. James Page. From Col. James Page.

Having occasion for a portrait, I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a ministure in Oil Colors, under the new process discovered by him, and take great pleasure in expressing the satisfaction given me, not only by the accuracy of the likeness, but its artistic finish in all respects, and recommend him to the patronage of those disposed to encourage the beautiful art.

By ROBT. J. CULVERWELL, M. D.,
AUTHOR OF THE "GREEN BOOK," &c.
The world-renowned author, in this admirable lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of self-abuse may be effectually removed without medicine and without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, rings or cordials, pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter which his condition may be, may cure himselfcheaply, privately and radically. This lecture will prove a boon to thous ands and thousands.

Encourage Home Industry. Ready-Made Clothing! Ready-Made Ciolning:

I have now on hand, and am constantly making up, a good stock of ready-made clothing, which is made of good strong material, and manufactured in a superior manner. As the times are hard, and there are many persons out of work, I have concluded, in order to give employment to as many as possible, in our town, to buy no city made goods this season, but to have made up here all the goods I can sell; thereby retaining that much more money in our own town. As I pay particular attention to the manner in which these goods are made up, my customers may depend on getting good goods, and at less prices than city made goods of the same quality can be sold.

HOME INDUSTRY WEST JERSEY WOOLEN FACTORIES. WEST JERSEY WOOLEN FACTORIES.

THE subscribers would direct the attention of farmers and others to their increased facilities for manufacturing superior WOOLEN GOODS, such as Satinetts, Cloths, Blankets, Horse Blankets, Flannels, Stocking and Carpet Yarn. We manufacture a durable article, of the best quality, and at low prices. We guarantee our goods not only to be equal to the imported in texture, but to stand hard wear much better. Mechanics and laboring men generally would find it to their advantage to purchase of us, instead of wearing foreign goods which will do them no adequate service.

We will pay the highest market prices for WOOL, which can be sent to our Factory at Bridgeton, or Allowaysfown, and there manufactured to order, or cash paid. Also, all wool left with Daniel Sheppard, agent at Greenwich, will be promptly attended to.

We do not buy up this staple on speculation, and therefore, whilst paying the highest rates, we insist that a preference should be freely extended to home manufacturers, and claim that, since no loss is incurred, we should have a priority among wool growers, or those who have wool to sell.

Buckeye Premium Mower, WITH FLEXIBLE FOLDING BAR. WITH FLEXIBLE FOLDING BAR.

THE unprecedented success of this Machine is a convicing proof of its execulence. It has never failed, wherever introduced, to take precedence over all other Mowers, and the important principles embraced in its construction, and covered by its patents, are now universally conceded to be indispensable to a Perfect Mower. This concession is in the strongest manner attested by the fact that so many Mowing Machine manufacturers, are now modelling after

The Buckeye as a Reaper, The important advantages of the Buckeye as a Mover are retained in the Reager. The two driving wheels and flexible bar make it the ONLY Reaper perfectly adapted to uneven ground.

The Platform is very readily adjusted to any required height of cut.

The Reed is attached with a flexible joint, which allows it to follow all the movements of the platform on uneven ground, and can be raised or lewested according to the height of the grain.

By removing the Reed, which can be done in a few mements, the platform can be folded against the side of the Machine, to allow it to pass through bars or narrow passages.

tirely out of the way of the team on the next round.

The outside wheel, which sustains the platform, is in a direct line with the driving wheels. This is a great advantage in turning corners, as the wheels all work together, obviating all straining and crampting. C reulars forwarded by mail.
