For the West Jersey Pioneer. TWO ANGELS.

BY MRS. J E. A. Two angels, one of Life and one of Death, Pass'd o'er the village just at eventide; , shadow veiled their faces, and the earth Was sombre, for the light was roll'd aside.

heir attitude and aspect were the same. Alike their features and their robes of white; But one was crowned with amaranth as with flam And one with asphodels, like flakes of light. saw them pause on their celestial way; Then said I with deep fear and doubt oppress'd,

Beat not so loud, my neart, lest thou betray
The place where thy beloved is at rest!" and he who wore the crown of asphodels. Descending at my door, began to knock, Then my soul sank within me, as in well:

The waters sink before an earthquake's shock. recognized the nameless agony. The terror, and the tremor and the pain, Phat oft before had fill'd and haunted me, And now returned with threefold strongth again The door I open'd to my heavenly guest, And listened, for I thought I heard God's voice; And knowing what soe'er he sent was best,

Dared neither to lament nor to rejoice. Then with a smile, that fill'd the house with ligh "My errand is not Death, but Life." he said: And ere I answered, passing out of sight,

On his celestial embassy he sped. Twas at thy door. O friend! and not at mine. The angel with the amaranthine wreath Pausing descended, and with voice divine Whisper'd a word that had a sound like death.

Then fell upon the house a sudden gloom, A shadow on those features fair and thin: and softly, from that hush'd and darken'd room, All is of God! if he but wave his hand The mists collect, the rain falls thick and lo Till with a smile of light on sea and land, Lo! he looks back from the departing cloud ingels of ife and death alike are his; Without his leave they pass no threshold o'er: Who then, would wish or dare, believing this, Against his messengers to shut the door. MILLVILLE, August. 1861.

Reader-a word to you. Are you in possession of a restless, craving, unsatisfied ambition? If so, I would say, through the grace, of God, sanctify that ambition .thirstings ever be satiated by fresh and repeated draughts from the living fountain; it will bring a sweet fruition of soul to its possessor; it will bless and enoble mankind, and reflect honor upon Him who, for that purpose, created it. An unconsecrated ambition is monocular; self is its adorable Deity; and at that shrine every good is sacrificed. And when such is the case, how deplorable the result!-Burning desire is not realized in the consummation of ecstaic bliss; but new fuel is added to the already towering flame; and thus will it forever unceasingly burn, till all hope of restoration is past! Behold Alexander the Great—that man great alone in "blood-guiltiness!" When his ambition had conquered a world, he wept because there was not another to conquer, and died a wretched inebriatedied with less honor, and less happier than a brute, and with a far less prospect of felicitous hereafter.

And see the for-a-time victorious Napoleon Bonaparte. In the hight of his success as a conqueror, his thirsting for glory was not slaked; he was a slave still to an ungovernable ambition. Ah! When a reversion of fortune came; and he set upon the rock-bound coast of St. Helena, a banished prisoner of war, left free to meditate upon the frivolities of human life, methinks he was a far happier man than he would have been had he triumphed over Europe, and had become its undisputed

As we have already intimated, an unholy ambition is never satisfied; and it could not be although it could ascend the skies, oule the battlements of Heaven, dethrone the King of worlds, and wield a universal sceptre. The aspirations of an immortal mind can be realized only by becoming God-like, in goodness. If the following has been the declaration of one in the wave of life, it has been endorsed by thousands: "With goodness to men and reverence to the Creator, for the object of every pursuit, man alone can be happy, the mind reconciled, the soul's felicity met." Then I would say unto you again, dear reader, if you are in possession of a rest-less, craving, unsatisfied ambitiou, thro' the grace of God, sanctify that ambition.

How beautiful it is to see how God blesses the operations of his great moral law, "love thy neighbor," and we should oftener see it, should we look into the hidden paths of life, and find that it is not self-interest; not riches, not fame, that binds heart to heart. The simple power of a friendly act can do far more than they. It is these - the friendly acts, the neighborly kindnesses, the Christian sympathy of one towards another - which rob wealth of its power to curse, extract the bitter from sorrow, and open the wells of gladness in desolate homes. We do not always see the golden links shining in the > Practical Joke of a Chicago Fire Zouave. A member of the New York Fire Zouaves, who went from this city to join Col. Ellsworth in April last, and who, until then, had been an industrious typo in the Chicago Tribune office, was out on picket duty one day last month, when the following incident occurred:

> An F. F. V., with rather more than the usual superciliousness of his race, rode up in a carriage from the direction of Alexandria, driven of course by his "servant." Zoo-zoo stepped into the road, holding his bayonet in such a way as to threaten horse. negro, and white man at one charge, and roared out "TICKETS." Mr. V. turned up his lip, set down his brows, and by other gestures indicated his contempt for such mud-sills as the soldier before him, ending by handing his pass over to the darkey, and motioning him to get out and show it to Zoo-zoo.

"All right," said the latter, glancing at it, "move on" - accompanying the remark with a jerk at the coat collar of the colored person, which sent him spinning several paces down the road. "Now, Sir, what

On Sunday morning last, about five o'clock, many of our citizens were aroused by a very loud report of thunder, which accompanied the storm. The 2d Presbyterian Church, of which Rev. Mr. Hubbard is pastor, was struck at that time by lightning, and considerable damage done to the steeple. The current, in its passage down, made a "clean sweep" of the boards on one side, and shattered or loosened many others. One hundred the owner of the property or his legal dollars, perhaps, will cover the loss. The rod was not properly arranged for conducting the lightning, which done considerable damage in its descent to the base ment.

PLEASURE EXCURSIONS.

Nothing shows the cheerful elasticity of the American people, or the confidence in the ultimate triumph of the principles of free government in a stronger light than the tenacity with which they adhere to their accustomed amusements, even in the midst of a fierce internal war, which threatens in its course to endanger both their civil and political rights.

Although the large watering places have not been patronized probably beyond half their usual amount, yet in the small towns and rural districts, there is at this time but little less than the usual indulgence in the less costly, but none the less enjoyed amusements of the season. For the last two or three weeks "Bay Parties," comprising both sexes, in various sailing craft have been enjoying the fishing, ovstering and bathing, for which Delaware Bay is so justly celebrated. Within that time upwards of twenty-five vessels and schooners have gone from Bridgeton, Cedarville and Fairton, on these excursions. East point and Fortescue are the usual landing places, at both of which accommodating landlords may be found ready to "do up" the fish and oysters "in a style

On Monday morning two military companies, a company from Woodstown, under Capt. Dickinson, and the "Independent Rangers" under Capt Kelsay, with accompanying baggage wagons, passed thro' Bridgeton on their way to Fortescue, to spend the week in miniature camp life, in the regions of oysters and blue fish .-On Thursday, in presence of some two hundred visitors, these companies were reviewed by Gen. Foster. The proficiency of drill, and especially the charges of the Rangers with the bayonet, not only elicited general admiration, but gave to Fortescue an animated, gay and lively appearance, equal to that of any of the more pretending places of recreation .-To those who prefer quiet enjoyment, plenty of good oysters and fish well served up, and ordinary life untrammelled by the arbitrary shackles of fashion, Fortescue offers a strong inducement as a place of resort. Mr. Peacock, the obliging and good-humored proprietor of the "Fortescue House." is the very kind of man to make a sojourn at his house both pleasant and agreeable Let those who don't believe us go and try it, as we have.

A Victory and a Masterly Retreat.

GEN. LYON KILLED!!

8,000 UNIONISTS PITTED AGAINST 23,000 RERELS.

THE REBELS LOSE TWO GENERALS. The Enemy lose their Tents and Wagons.

Ninety Rebel Prisoners.

Washington, Aug. 13 .- The following official report was received to-night by

Headquarters Western Dep't. St. Louis, Aug. 13, 1861. To Col. E. D. Townsend:-Gen. Lyon, in three columns under command of himself, Siegel and Sturgess, attacked the enemy at 61 o'clock on the morning of the 10th, nine miles southeast of Springfield.

The engagement was severe. Our loss was about 800 killed and wounded. Gen. Lyon was killed in a charge at the head of his column.

Our force was 8000, including 2000 Home Guards. The muster roll reported to have been taken from the enemy gives their force at 23,000, including regiments from Louisiana. Tennessee and Mississippi, with the Texan Rangers and Cherokee half breeds. This statement is corroborated by the risoners taken.

Their loss is reported to be very beavy, including Generals McCullough and Price. Their tents and wagons were destroyed n the action. Gen. Siegel lost one gun on the field, and retreated to Springfield, whence, at 3 o'clock on the morning of the 11th, he continued his retreat upon Rolls; bringing off his baggage trains and $250,000 in specie from the Springfield Bank J C. FREMONT. (Signed)

> General Lyon fired the first gun at wenty minutes past six o'clock, when the battle immediately commenced.

A severe cannonading was kept up for two or three hours, when the fire of Torten's artilery proving too severe for the enemy they gradually fell back toward their encamament on Wisson's creek. Lyon's cavalry on the left flank and Siegel's artillery on the right then began a terrific attack, and spread slaughter and dismay in the ranks of the rebels, pursuing them to the camp. The shells from Totten's artillery set fire to their tents and baggage wagons, which were all destroyed.

Oa Sunday morning, General Siegel, fearing that the enemy might recover, and attempt to cut off his command from Springfield, fell back on that city, where the Home Guards were stationed. Then, fearing that the great numbers of the encmy might induce them to get between him and Rolls, General Siegel concluded to fall back on Rolls, with his prinquers and baggage trains, and meet reinforcements.

At the time of the departure of the messenger the enemy had not been seen, and it is probable that General Siegelhad not been disturbed on his march. Ninety rebels were captured, including colonel of distinction, the messenger not remembering his name. The sword and horse of Gen. McCulough were among the trophies of the bat-

Reinforcements for General Siegel were on the way to Rolls, and the army may be considered as safe.

Additional Particulars.

ROLLA. Mo., Aug. 13 .- The following dditional account of the battle at Springfield is furnished by an eye-witness, who left Springfield on Sunday morning, and came through to this place on horseback. Our army marched out of Springfield on Friday evening, only 5,500 strong-the House Guards remaining at Springfield.

The attack was made in two colums, by Gens. Lyon and Sturgis; Gen. Siegel leading a flanking force of about 1,000 men and four guns on the north of the enemy's camp. The fight raged from sunrise until l or 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Gen. Price was not killed.

Our loss is variously estimated at from 150 to 300 killed, and several (hundred?) wounded. The enemy's loss is placed at 2,000 killed and wounded. Our boys captured 100 horses of the doned the idea of excise upon domestic ces, it would require a great deal of cumbrous machinery to do the work. The levy of $20,000,000 is upon real property and incomes. Every resident is enti tled to exemption in the property upon is levied. All above $800 pay three per ceut on the excess. The income tax will personally affect all who receive regular wages or salaries, all companies whether by the act, and all who have incomes derived "from any source of business, trade or vocation, dividends of stocks, interest legacies, annuities, or derived from any day, (Saturday) where we know they will other source, within or beyond the boundaries of the United States." For the purpose of this war tax, we take it that 'income" will be defined to be just about the same as "net profits." Non residents who draw income from estates or business in this country, pay five instead of three per cent. The direct tax is limited to $20,000,000. While there is provision for the apnointment of the necessary assessors and collectors - a small army in itself—there is a saving section which ought to render nearly all such appointments unnecessary. This section permits each State to do the assessing, and collect in its own way, by its regular officers for such purposes, and allows any such State 15 per cent of the apportioned tax as compensation. Every State ought to accept this office. It would not materially add to the duties of their annual labors, while it would save the necessity of creating a host of officers the most unpopular, by reason of their calling, that can be imagined. In New Jersey alone, nearly $70,000 might be saved to the State in this way.

Connected with those measures is another-an act supplementary to the Loan bill, which allows the Secretary of the Treasury to issue 20-year 6 per ceut bonds in exchange for Treasury notes. It also makes Treasury notes payable on demand redeemable at St. Louis and Cincinnati. and permits $5 notes to be issued (the original bi l's minimum was $10). Treasury notes of less than $50, without interest, payable on demand, shall be received for public dues. The next section repeals, in effect, the Sub Treasury law, as it allows "the Secretary of the Treasury to deposit any of the moneys obtained on any of the loans now authorized by law, to credit of the Treasurer of the United States, in such solvent specie-paying banks as he may select, and the said moneys so deposited may be withdrawn from deposit for deposit with the regularly authorized depositaries, or for the payment of public dues, or paid in redemption of the notes authorized to be issued under this act, payable on demand, as may seem expedient to, or be directed by the Secretary of the Treasury," and lastly, the Secretary in negotating 20-year per cent bonds must not take less than the equivalent of par of the 7 per cent bonds authorized by the Loan bill.

Rebel Reports of Bull's Run.

Each new Southern account of the battle of Bull Run shows most clearly to what a desperate strait the rebels were reduced before their last body of reenforcements came in. An officer of the Palmetto Guard writes to the Charleston Mercury that "the day was lost when our two regiments came up. Our troops were falling back, and had retired some distance. All along our line of march, men were retreating and saying to us that we were defeated." The regular correspondent of the Mercury confirms this statement in the following language:

"Kemper's Battery, followed by the 7th, Col. Cash, hurried to the scene of action. It was met along the way by numbers of the wounded, dying and retiring, who declared the day had gone against us: that Sloan's Regiment, the 4th. was cut to pieces; that Hampton's Legion, coming to the rescue, and the Louisiana Battalion were annihilated; that Gen. Bee the Confederate forces were outflanked the unvarying tenor of the words that greeted us from the wounded and dying and the fugitives who met us during the last mile of our approach to the field of

This gives incontestible proof that the victory was within our grasp, and that only the untimely and causeless panic among our troops snatched it from us. Next time there will be no panic.

This line will leave Millville at 8½ o'clock A. M., and 2 P. M., on arrival of the Tuckahoe and Cape May Stage, arriving in Bridgeton in time to connect with the steamer Patuxent for Philadelphin.

A BIRD'S NEST IN A CAMP -Miss Catharine Beecher, travelling in the west relates in a private letter, the following pretty incident:-"At the camp at Lafayette (Indiana,) we saw quite a novel sight, It was a bird feeding its young, directly in the midst of the camp. The soldiers found it there on coming out-its nest in the grass, with eggs. They drove stakes around to protect it, and when the ladybird saw what brave, stalwart fellows were around her she concluded she was safe.-So among drums, muskets, cannon, and all manner of camp uproar, she sat and quietly hatched out her young. Then the soldiers put the little ones in a cage and hung them in the corner of the camp -and as we drove along we saw the two parent birds feeding them.

From Hon. Lewis D. Campiell, M. C., of Ohio. My family and friends all concur in the opinion hat the (Newell) Picture is more life like than any hing they ever saw. My likeness has been repeatedly taken by different Artists in various ways, but lave never yet had one which presents so true to naure, all the features and expressions of countenance is this.

From E. Joy Morris, late Minister to Italy.

The exquisite finish, beauty and softness of your portraits, conjoined with their durability of color and faithfuiness as likenesses, cannot fail to commend them to the attention and patronage of all who appreciate true art.

Having occasion for a portrait, I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a miniature in Oil Colors, under the new process discovered by him, and take great pleasure in expressing the satisfaction given me, not only by the accuracy of the likeness, but its artistic finish in all respects, and recommend him to the patronage of those disposed to encourage the beautiful art.
