THE LAND OF REST.

There is a land where beauty will not fade, Nor sorrow dim the eye; Where true hearts will not mayed, And love will never die. Tell, I fain would go, For I am burdened with a heavy woe. The true, the tender from my path have gone, And I am weak and fainting with despalr; Where is it? Tell me, where?

Friend, thou must trust to Him who trod before The lonely path of life; Must bear in meekness, as He meekly bore, Sorrow, and toil and strife, Think how the Son of God These thorny paths has trud; Think how he longed to go.

Think of his loneliness in places dim; When no man comforted nor cared for Him; Think how He prayed, unaided and alone, In that dread agony, "Thy will be done!" Friend, do not thou despair, Christ, in His heaven of heavens, will hear thy prayer.

INTERESTING.

There are a great many interesting hings in this interesting world of ours .-Some things are decidedly interesting and others particularly so. It is interesting of a stormy day, when you are calculating on a snug pick up dinner, and just as you get comfortably seated, to have the bell ring and find some friends coming in to line with you: thus taking you at a disadvantage. "They hadn't the least idea that you was at dinner." Oh, bosh! they know better when they say so; they had planned it just so; and they found that their plan worked to a charm. That is decidedly interesting. It is interesting when you and a friend are engaged in private conversation, to have a third person intrude himself very unceremoniously; and although your conversation immediately subsides, the greeny hasp't brains sufficient to take the hint, and policely and quietly leave. It is interesting when you are writing a confidential communication to a friend, to have a brainless spoony come up and engage in conversation, whilst he attentively eyes your writing, in order to get an idea of the subject upon which you are communicating. You turn your written page over to prevent his further scruting, and even then the spoony does not take the hint.

But the most interesting of all interesting things, is to have a person in your parlor, who is continually demonstrating the folly of a chair having four legs, when two are all that is necessary. He tips up on two legs, and daubs your paper with a greasy head, while at the same time his lower extremities are busily engaged in rubbing the paint and varnish from your chair rounds. If the papered wall is not convenient for him, he will tip up against your piano, or table-it don't make the least difference to him; in fact, we may say, it is all the same to him. If he has ocuasion to change his position, he will not get up and move his chair, but grind it across your carpet, and very likely make s hole in it. What is the odds to him? The carpet and chairs cost him nothing, and when they are worn out, you can get some more. This is most distressingly interesting, while at the same it shows

AMERICAN AFFAIRS IN EUROPE. THE BATTLE OF THE 21ST JULY.

From the London American, August 14. The great question is not why the Union troops were defeated, but why the battle was fought at all? General Beauregard. educated at West Point, and acknowledged to be a skillful engineer, had selected Manassas Junction as a place combining all the natural advantages for defence, and had been engaged for more than two months, assisted, as it is stated, by about ten thousand negroes, in throwing up earthworks, erecting batteries, and in putting the position in a complete state of se curity. He had manned it, according to statements made by the Unionists prior to the battle-which statements have since been confirmed—with sixty thousand men. He had another large body at Richmond within railway call, and a reserve of twentv-five thousand within two days' march, on the Harper's Ferry side.

The place should have been nearly impregnable except to a regular siege, or, at any rate, capable of resisting an atrack from three times the number of its defenders. Gen. Todleben would have held it against the assaults of one hundred thousand of the best troops of France and England. Gen Jackson, at New Orleans, with less than five thousand men of a similar description and like military experience to those under Beauregard, defended bar-If two persons are to occupy a bed-room ricades improvised at the moment from cotton bags, against the assault of twelve ing scales as they retire, and then again thousand of the best troops that ever enn the morning, and they will find their gaged an enemy-the Duke of Wellingactual weight is at least a pound less in ton's men from the Peninsula-beating the morning. The Times has asserted that understating losses is an American trick; if so why should it not hold as good in this instance as in any other? The fact is, there was a desperate struggle, with abundant proof of individual courage, se f-devotion, of personal intrepidity, and the Americans should raise a monument to those noble fellows who offered their lives in defence of the patrimony received from heaven, by the hands of Washington and the other heroes of the Revolution It is asserted by some whom the panic has reached on this side the water, that France will now acknowledge the "Confederates" as a Government, and that England will follow the example. We have no fears of such an issue. Neither Government will so far outrage the sympathies and good sense of its own people as to assist in establishing a power based, according to its own unblushing declarations, on slavery; of which human servitude is the corner stone, and the extending and perpetuation of it, by the re-opening of the African slave trade, its main objects. We look upon such a recognition as an utter impossibility; and should it by any unaccountable means occur, it would be an evidence beyond all possible dispute that the auti-slavery professions of both countries have only been a sham and delusion, "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

The arrangement of regular times for meals, harmonizes, there fore, with the universal policy of nature, and is, moreover, of the highest social conveniense. Yet it is impossible to subject all to the same regulations of time. De Combe remarks:

"The grand rule in fixing the number and periods of our meals is to proportion them to the real wants of the system, as modified by age, sex, health, and manner of life, and as indicated by the true re turns of appetite." As the blood is usually most impoverished after eight or ten bours' fast of the night, breakfast should be early. The stomach is usually vacated addressed them: of its nutritive contents in about four bours after eating, but it may be an hour or two later before the blood begins to call upon it for a renewed supply. Persons engaged in active labor, in which bodily expenditure is rapid, of course require to eat more often than the indolent and the sedentary; and children need nourishment oftener than adults. But too long abstinence, especially if the digestive power be not strong, sharpens the appetite, so that there arises dangers of excessive eating.

Some avoid inneheon for fear of "spoiling the dinner," whereas, the thing they most need is to have it spoiled. Where as to produce pressing hunger, something should be taken between them to stay the appetite and prevent over-cating. Late and hearty suppers are to be reprobated. Active digestion and sleep mutually disturb each other, as at night the exhalation of carbonic gas is slowest, and tissue changes most retarded, the overloaded blood is not relieved, and invades the repose of the brain, producing heavy, disor- old man. dered dreams and nightmare, followed by headache and ilt humor in the morning. -Still there is the opposite extreme, of sitting up ate, and going to bed wearied, hungry, and with an 'indefinable sense of sinking," followed by restless, unrefreshthe rabbit said to the fox and monkey: such cases may prevent these unpleasant and dead leaves effects. It is questionable if much exercise before breakfast be generally proper. When we rise in the morning the system has passed the longest interval withour food, and is at the lowest diarnal print of weakness from want of nourishment. It is well understood that the body is more susceptible to the merbid influe ce of colds, missms and all nozious agencies, in the morning before cating, than any other time, and those exposed to the open air before getting anything to cat, in aguish regions, are infinitely more hable to be affected than those who have been fortified by a comfortable breakfast. Cases may be quoted, undoubtedly, in which early exercise has produced no injurious results-perhaps even the contrary. Yet in most instances, especially if the constitution be not strong, breakfast should follow shortly after rising and dressing, be fore serious tastes are attempted. Dr. Combe justly observes, that in Roburding schools for the young and growing, who require pleuty of substance, and are often obliged to rise early, and early breakfast is almost an indispensable condition of health."-Household Science.

The people of the loyal cities of the United States will be deeply gratified by the perusal of an official letter from Prince Gortschakoff to the Russian Minister at event the American nation may count on the most cordial sympathy of the Emperor, during the important orisis which it is passing through at present."

The Colossus of the north of Europe and Asia, having just made a vast bound in the march of human progress, by the emancipation of his eerfs, is thus prompt in setting the seal of his rebuke upon a rebellious people, who would turn the advancing tide of civilization back upon the dark ages, by founding a new empire upon human slavery. THE RABBIT IN THE MOON. A STORY FOR CHILDREN.

This story was originally written in the sacred language of he Hindoos I transfriends, who like all others, are ever if need of the lesson it conveys.

The Hindostans believe that they can see a rabbit in the moon. The Chinese, when they represent the moon, paint in its centre a rabbit pounding rice. This ingular belief recalls a curious legend. which passed from India to China.

There is near Benares, a forest, in the middle of which is a religious monument The Three Quadrupeds. The following story explains to us the cause of its consecration: Three animals, a fox, a monkey, and a rabbit, lived most friendly toter of the gods, under the garb of a poor old man, appeared before them and thus Rebel Killed by a Lady.

From the Quincy Herald, August 22. A Union man by the name of Glover. residing in one of the counties west of this city, owning a number of valuable horses, and having reason to fear their appropriation to Rebel uses, concluded to place them in the hands of a company of Home Guards in the neighborhood for safe keeping. A day or two afterwards while Glover was absent from home, a Rebel called at his house to inquire for him. Mrs. Glover was in the garden adjoining a cornfield, some distance from the house, when the Rebel approached her and made several inquires, to which she gave no very satisfactory answers --He then insisted on being informed where Glover was, and, with revolver in hand, threatened instant death if not told He also at the same time demanded her to deliver up a valuable gun owned by

The two started for the house through the cornfield, and on the way Mrs. Glover succeeded, without being observed, in getting possession of a large corn knife that had been left in the field, and watching the oppertunity, took a favorable moment for striking a blow, which she did most effectually, the knife severing the skull and killing the Rebel instantly .-Mrs. Glover had a small child with her in the garden which she left when starting for the house, intending to return for it immediately. Fast-day was observed in this town on Thursday last in a becoming manner. Public services were held at all the Churches in town. The stores and places of business were closed, and the town presented a Sabbath like appearance.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Thomas W. Evans & Co., which appears in anothbest Dry Good Houses in Philadelphia.-Country merchants will find a large and splended stock of goods there, which can be bought on the most reasonable terms.

We learn from the Salem standard that Henry F. Chew, late First Lieutenant of the Johnson Guards, has been commissioned by the Adjutant Gen. eral of New Jersey to raise a Company of Sharp-Shooters to be attached to the Rifle Regiment now being formed in this State by Governor Olden for the War Department. This Regiment, we have the highest authority for saying, is to be armequiped in the best manner. Young men by enlisting in this Company, will receive pay and rations from the date of enlistment, and be entitled to all the advantages which accrue from serving under the banner of their own State. Young men who wish to enlist can do so by making application at the head-quarters, Nelson House, Salem, where full particulars can be learned.

Sept. 22, 1861. To-day has been one of comparative rest. liffering somewhat from our former Sundays for the past six weeks. Since Cen. McClellan has forbidden any unnecessary work to be done on Sunday, general satisfaction reigns with the men, and their Sabbath is more strictly observed. However t has not been much to the rest and favor of the Cumberland Grays to-day, as our boys came in this morning from off three days' picket duty, at the Old Brick Tavern. While on the outposts all was quiet; there was no firing on pickets, othcrwise called grand guards, our most important post was on the left of the turnpike, near Edsell's plantation, where the rebels have frequented for the past we k, and have appeared in large numbers, both cavalrymen and infantry. They are getting more bold, or else our men are more fearless than heretofore. We can plainly see them at all hours of the day, scemingly making preparations for a permanent encampment. We leisurely watch each other's movements during the day, and at night throw out pickets within three hundred yards of each other. During the past week the rebels have been instrumental in getting hay and provender for their domestic stock, taken from Edsell's barn. Yesterday we saw them moving hay and lumber, while our boys were visiting Couling's plantation, adjoining Edsell's farm, for the purpose of aiding Couling's tenant in getting away his stock, though the moveable property and live stock was going in a different direction from that taken at neighbor Edsell's buildings. Edsell himself has been playing the part of a Unionist, until of late his play is out, and orders come while on picket, from Gen Kearney, to bring him in to head quarters. He acted as our guide when we first encamped near the Alexandria and Orange Railroad. Our boys this time out obtained a good share of booty, by use of blacksmith tools. Had they loaded up the shop, the 3d Regiment would have been supplied with nearly all the necessary implements and house for horse-shoeing.

On Thursday last Fort Taylor was visited by General George B. McClellan and staff. Several shots were fired at the rebels on Edsell's Hill, during the brief stay of our General, but the fase proving about seen to take the cars of the Long Island | two seconds short, the shell bursted high Railroad early in the morning, and it is in the air, about 300 yards short of the ascertained that it proceeded to the ter- enemy. It has cost us a struggle to part with these noble fellows Many sad hearts are among us. Mothers and sisters weep in bitterness, and fathers and brothers have not surrendered them without a conflict. But have they not all really cause for joy that in such a sublime and awful crisis of our country's history, they are privileged to make an offering so worthy of the great issues involved. Our fervent pravers follow these dear friends, and our hearts' desire and prayer to God is that He would' be their shield and refuge; that He would cover their head in the day of battle, bring them thro' all dangers unharmed, and reserve for them yet many years of peaceful and honorable toil and enjoyment, and of consecrated activity in His service.

Hon. James G. Hampton of this town, died on Sunday night last and was buried in the Old Presbyterian Church-yard on Congress. He had many good traits of character which won for him a host of friends. COMMENUATIONS:

From Hon. Lawid D. Campbell, M. C., of Ohio.

My family and friends all concur in the opinion that the (Newell) Picture is more life like than any thing they ever saw. My likeness has been repeatedly taken by different Artists in various ways, but I have never yethad one which presents so true to nature, all the features and expressions of countenance as this.

From E. Jor Monns, late Minister to Italy.

The exquisite finish, beauty and softness of your portraits, conjoined with their durability of color and saithfuness as likenesses, cannot fail to commend them to the attention and patronage of all who appreciate true are. preciate true art. From Col. JAMES PAGE.

Having occasion for a portrait. I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a miniature in Oil Colors, under the new process discovered by him, and take great pleasure in expressing the satisfaction given me, not only by the accuracy of the likeness, but its artistic finish in all respects, and recommend him to the patronage of those disposed to encourage the beautiful art.

The late and lamented Dr. George M'Glellan, one of the most eminent practitioners that the United States could ever boast of, always made it a standing rule when he was called upon to prescribe for a child, to order the EAIR OUT, from the fact that the majority of ailments to which children are heir are occasioned by having too much weight on the head in the shape of hair. In canclusion, mothers, only reflect for a moment. Is it reasonable to suppose that any child can enjoy good health, or even be comfortable, with a long and thick head of hair, with the thermometer at 90 or 94 as is often the case. 'A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment, and Radical cure of Spermatrihea, or Seninall weakness, Sexual Debility. Nervoueness and involuntary emissions, producing impotency, Consumption and Mental and Physical Debility.

By ROBT, J. CULVERWELL, M. D.,

The important fact that the awful consequences of selfabuse may be effectually removed without internal medicines or the dangerous application of caustics, instruments, medicated bougles, and other empirical devises, is here clearly demonstrated, and the entirely new and highly successful treatment, as adopted by the celebrated author fully explained, by means of which every one is enabled to cure himself perfectly, and at the least possible cost, thereby avording all the advertised nostrums of the day. This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands. Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address post-paid, on the receipt of two postage stamps, by addressing Dr. CH. J. C.
