BY EMMALINE EVANS. The Summer sun went down blood red On old Manhattan town, As back his band brave WYNDAM led. Of soldiers, worn, and brown, Worn was their garb, yet firm their tread,

THE ZOUAVE'S MOTHER.

As on that fatal day-When thrice their gallant loader led His column o'er the ensanguined dead, And kept the foe at bay.

And the' the lurid shades of night, Closed o'er the Northern army's flight. Yet never, since the rolls of fame First glittered with a hero's name, Did prouder laurels deck the brave, Than crowned that day each gallant Zovave.

A thrilling shout of welcome rose Up to the evening say, And friends and brothers round them close-And woman's tearful eye Gleams bright, as wives and maidens press Their leved ones in a fond caress.

"My son! my son!" a widgw cried: "Oh captain! where is he? When last I saw him at your side, With spirit blithe and free; No higher heart, no bolder hand, Went forth with all your train, Waits he the foe, in Southern land? Or is he 'midst the slain?"

The captain bowed his manly head, His lips refused to speak; The mother's heart her answer read Upon his tearful check.

"And is he gone? my only only one, Oh, Gon! that he should die, Pressed to the dust, 'mid shout and moan, And battle's mad'ning cry! Was it for this I gave him birth? Let me sleep with him in the earth."

She swooned a space; then rose again, And queenly was her air-"Avenge me, Heaven! for this my slain, And in my country's sacred name, Before thee, thus I swear.

"That ne'er shall sword in scabbard rest, Or cease the booming gun; Whilst traitors rankle in her breast Ard tear from off her asure crest The stars our fathers won.

"For every Northern patriot slain, A traitor's bones shall bleach the plain; For every Northern mother's tear. A traitor welter on his bier, And he,* who since the morning star Fell from Ligh heaven-none fell so far-Shall on a gibbet rise so high, Against the frowning Northern sky. That all the world, aghast shall see Him downward burled to infamy."

The following affecting incident of the war is from The Leader: "On the first breaking out of the rebellion, Capt Stewart, a Virginian by birth, announced to his wife that he would resign and go South to seek employment.-Though a devoted wife, the lady held patriotism superior to all minor obligations; and, after vain end avors to dissuade him from his criminal intention, declared firm- Davis, Theoph. An ignorant fellow, who was about to et married, resolved to make himself perfect in the response of the marriage ceremony; but by mistake he committed to memory the office of baptism for those of riper years, so when the clergyman asked him in church.

"Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" the bridegroom auswered very solemnly: "I renounce them all." The astonished minister said:

Can there be anything on which we should so harmoniously and vigorously cooperate as in maintaining the Constitution? leretofore American differences as to that instrument have been those of mere interpretation, of en subtle, and mostly ardent, but always peacefully disposed of. Now, however, we are required to abandon, give up, surrender, abolish the Constitution altogether, to reduce to dead letter its clearest clauses, to forego its crowning product -the Union, and to accept in its stead something crudely fashioned by avowedly | Chief Executive and people of the Uniexasperated and unfriendly hands!

We can't do that: and I will try to tell you why. Taking for granted, fellow citizens, the absolute necessity of some form of government, this fundamental charter has victoriously borne the test of time and talent. Its steady operation for seventy-two years drew to it the homage of universal admiration. No wonder; for it was the offspring of the wisest and purest delib erate council the world has ever seen, and its rich truits of human prosperity, happiness, strength and glory, have in unceasing progression, riveted the astonished gaze and awakened the yearning sympahies of men everywhere. From the great date when WASHINGdent, April 30, '89, down to a very recent period, what purpose contemplated by the but, unless the Fifth Article had been Fifteen dollars a month each woman ses, as enumerated in the preamble, were "to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of Liberty;" a summary, compact and which a nation of the highest civilization could hope to achieve. Amid the countless and unavoidable vicissi udes of human affairs, every dangerous ordeal had been met and passed; foreign war, domestic insurrection, financial panic and fraud, traitorous conspiracy and factious strife, had all successively proved its efficacy; while fied by the Legislatures or Conventions of its beneficent influence was attested by vast accessions of States, Territories and people, by the boundless spread of industry, education and comfort, and by the of events have paralyzed this article. A Constitution founded upon considerations connected with the genius, pursuits, wants, prospects, and even the climate of a numerous people, is always designed to be permanent, to be unalterable or alterable only after measured care and in the manner prescribed within itself. Hence, the original formation of a Constitution is confided to the best intellects, soundest hearts, and most enlarged experience; and hence, too, it is that so important an arrangement-fixing and fastening the roots of social and political being for all time - in subservient meskness to envenomed opif once adequately tried, and found in every respect appropriate, must be clung to our enemy's cannon. The editor of The Richmond Examiner is a reckless sort of fellow, and insists upon grumbling in fine style in spite of the rebel despotism, and the censorship of the press. He is an undoubted fir eater, and a classically educated desperado. Our readers have heard of him - John M. Daniels, late Minister to Sardinia. We find the following in his paper of August 30:

COMMISSARIAT. We have said in the beginning of this war, and we repeat it, that "behind every victory or defeat stalks the ghost of a comruissary." Whatever the fortune of particular battles, that of the campaign will be mainly decided by the health of the army. The penny-wise, pound-foolish policy which we have witnessed in the transactions of the furnishing department, is as false to the spirit of the South as to its the absence of bakers and cooks in a country where they abound, is one chief permanent cause of ill-health in our camps; another is insufficient protection from the inclemencies of the weather. So many tents without fly cloths, let the rain spatter through and wet everything. Surely tar, at least, might have been found to make them water-proof. Finally, the neglect of cleanliness, alike personal and pubis circulated through our camps, comes to swell the sick list. * * *

This state of things occasioned great discontent. The camp was al ways grumbling, but no member of the company ever took upon himself to obtain or even demand redress of grievances. A few deserted - more would, had they dared-dissatisfaction with the service was general. Treated worse than any negro slaves, they said among themselver: What if the South whips, we die, the nonslaveholding whites will get nothing by it. They said much worse than this for they were virtually abolitionized by their posttion, and they had not culture or reason enough to understand the comparative advantages which even the poorest whi e man in the South enjoys, in consequence of a system which checks foreign emigration and keeps arable lands always open to his industry. This company which contained a fair proportion of intelligence and manhood submitted passively to the privations above mentioned within hail of their own homes. Here they were camped in a very healthy location, and too few in number to vitiate the air. The waters within shot abounded in fish. There was everything to tantalize, to provoke the explosion of individual energies; but the very idea that they were soldiers paralyzed them. When the writer, visiting the camp, represented its wants to its Captain, he was told that the Commissary Department had refused to furnish more than we have mentioned, and afterward, at another place, the only additions made were of rice and molasses, some sheet iron cump kettles, half full of holes, and some little axes, beside what the Captain purchasel for the Company out of his own picket.

The experience of this company is still very favorable, on the whole, as compared with a great many others we could name.

Patriots of all parfier are invited

We are pleased to find that Capt. Perrine is meeting with marked success in his efforts to fill up his company to be attached to the "Olden Legion" Regiment of New Jersey. A number of moral and religious young men of Bridgeton and vicinity have enlisted at the rendezvous of sergeant Leeds, and still there is room for more. Let every young man who ean, go forth to serve his country now. Volunteers are needed. Soon a grand strike will be made by the victorious McClellan.

Can the Militia be Called Out of the

The ball is in building the works. Our troops made perform military duty in the service of suitable for any gun of the right size, themselves busy by taking from the housthe United States.

The Constitution being the source from which power is derived, it is to that instrument we must look for whatever authority the government may have for calling out the militia. The eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States gives to Congress the nower "to provide for the common defence; to raise and support armies; to provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions, and to provide for organizing, arming, and discipling the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States." By the second section of the second article of the Constitution, the President is appointed 'Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several States when called into the actual service of the United States."

From these clauses of the Constitution it seems to be entirely clear that Congress has a right to call the militia to any point whatever within the United States. If the militia cannot be called out of their respective States, of what use is the provision to provide for the common defence? A country can only be defeuded where it is attacked. It is only at those points where an attack is made, threatened, or tary could be required at all: and as they can only be called upon when danger is called, any or all of them, to that point where their services can be required. -The Belvidere Intelligencer very Prudence and economy might indeed dicmoment questioned. Important Advance of Gen. McClellan.

MUNSON'S HILL CAPTURED The Rebel Flag Displaced by the Stars and Stripes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 .- During the last week it was so frequently reported from day to day that our troops had taken possession of Munson's Hill, that when last night this long premeditated Richman; 3d, Solomon Dubois. Best pair 2d, Joseph Cook; 3d, Henry W. Brooks; event took place, it found few believers Cloths, Cassimeres, Sattinets & Vestings,

> The American flag now floats there in place of that of the rebels. Detachments from Generals Richard son's Keyes' and Wadsworth's brigades, and also from General Franklin's division, now occupy Munson's Hill, being in command of Col. Ferry, of the 5th Michigan

Early this forenoon the pickets from Gen. Smith's position advanced to and now occupy Fall's Church

Neither this nor the preceding move ments met with any opposition whatever, as the rebel army had on Friday night retreated from the whole line of their positions fronting washington. Upton's Hill this side of Fall's Church, is necessarily included among the points now held by the Union forces.

The works of the enemy at the places they had evacuated were, in a military view, almost worthless, being nothing more than rifle pits of very common construction.

The positions at Munson's and Murry's hill afforded the rebels nearly an unob structed view of all our fortifications and other defences.

The appearance of the ground deserted by the rebels indicated that they were deficient in those arrangements which serve to make a camp life comfortable, having no tents, but merely shelters rudely conthat they had ever mounted any guns there. Our troops are now so employed as to show that they do not merely intend Melancholy Catastrophe—Another Blun-der—Col. Owen's Regiment Fired on Ba-ker's and Baxter's Regiments. The advance of Gen. Smith on Fall's Church from the Chain bridge was attended by events of the most deplorable character. Having passed Vanderwercker's and Vanderberg's houses, on their way to the former place, and when about half a mile from it, by some unaccounable blunder, Colonel Owen's Philadelphia Irish regiment, in the darkness of the night, mistaking for the rebels Captain Mott's battery, which was in the advance, sustained by Generals Baker's California regiment, Col. Baxter's fire Zouaves, and Col. Friedman's cavalry, fired a full vollev into the troops last mentioned, killing and wounding a large number. The California regiment not knowing whence the firing came from, returned it with marked effect. The horses attached to Mott's pattery became unmanageable, and the tongues of the caisions were broken, owing to the narrowness of the road. Lieuten ant Bryant, having command of the first section, ordered the guns to be loaded with grape and cannister, and soon had them in range to rake the supposed enemy, when word was sent to him that he was in the company of friends. All was excitement, and a long time elapsed before the actual condition of affairs was ascertained and confidence reestablished. -Many confused stories prevail as to the parties on whom the blame should rest.

Missouri. - There are at least twentyfive thousand slaves in Missouri, whose masters are or have been in the rebel army, and who are therefore now declared "free men." COMMENDATIONS:

From Hon. Lewis D. Campbell, M. C., of Ohlo.

My family and friends all concur in the opinion that the (Newell) Picture is more life like than any thing they ever saw. My likeness has been repeatedly taken by different Artists in various ways, but I have never yet had one which presents so true to nature, all the features and expressions of countenance as this.

ture, all the features and expressions of control as this.

From E. Joy Morris, late Minister to Italy.

The exquisite finish, beauty and softness of your portraits, conjoined with their durability of color and faithfuness as likenesses, cannot fail to commend them to the attention and patronago of all who appreciate true art.

From Col. James Pags.

Having occasion for a portrait. I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a ministure in Oil Colors, under the new process discovered by him, and take great pleasure in expressing the satisfaction given me, not only by the accuracy of the likeness, but its artistic fluish in all respects, and recommend him to the patronage of those disposed to ommend him to the patronage of those disposed to necourage the beautiful art.

A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment, and Radical cure of Spermatrrhosa, or Seminall weakness. Sexual Debility. Nervousness and involuntary emissions, producing imputency, Consumption and Mental and Physical Debility.

The important fact that the awful consequences of self-abuse may be effectually removed without internal medicines or the dangereits application of caustics, instruments, medicated bougies, and other empirical devises, is here clearly demonstrated, and the entirely new and highly successful treatment, as adopted by the celebrated author fully explained, by means of which every one is enabled to cure himself perfectly, and at the least possible cost, thereby avoiding all the advertised nostrums of the day. This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands. Sont under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address post-paid, on the receipt of two postage status, by addressing. Dr. CH. J C.
