Choice Poetry. For the West Jersey Pioneer.

> BY M. E. GREEKS. Where the pine trees sadly sing, Where the sunbeams daily bring Showers of golden rain; Where the trailing grasses creep, Where the blue-eyed hair-bells weep, Lay me down to sleep.

LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP.

Where the rippling breezes blow, Chanting requiems soft and lew, To the silent dead: Where the dimpling waters leap, Where the stars their lone watch keep, Lay me down to sleep.

Let the dew with silver crest Fall like pearls upon my breast, When I slumber low; Let the towering holly sweep Her green dress across my fest, When I've gone to sleep.

Let the beauteous sunset shed Softened rays of gold and red On the flower-thatched mound; Let the clouds with fringes deep, Their soft rain upon me weep, When I am asleep.

Let the bird with golden breast Tell my schoolmate where I rest, With its silvery notes; Tell them that they must not weep, As I slumber long and deep, Angels soon will break the sleep, Peaceful, blessed sleep. MILLVILLE, Oct., 1861.

A small settlement was made in this County, under the leadership of Jacobus May, a Hollander, about the year 1623 or 4. They had emigrated as farmers, for the purpose of locating on the eastern shore of the Delaware The probability is that they did not succeed according to their expectation; and some of the accounts are that they were all massacred by the Indians, or so much disturbed and interrupted that their settlement was entirely

It seems that both the Dutch and the Swedes claimed these lower Counties, and it led to an unpleasant altercation, which terminated in the Swedes losing their power and possessions. The English, it appears, had a prior claim that they had never relinacknowledgment of the only true source of quished. In .1640 a number of English farmers came over and made settlements in Salem and Cumberland Counties; those in this County were mostly along the branches of Cohansey Creek, and many of the present inhabitants are their descen-

The small portion of land that was tilled was done more from necessity than from choice, and thus it was but a secondary business. No care was taken to replenish the wasting soil, but to get from it all that would grow for their immediate wants, and the result was it became impoverished, so that a large | Sheep proportion of some of the townships were left unfenced, as a poor, miserable public common. The general supposition was that these dormant lands could never be reclaimed, and when the timber was goze the country would be nearly depopulated The consequence has been, many have sought employment elsewhere, and many have left the homes and graves of their fathers, and become inhabitants of the great West. During the American revolution, an officer, not habited in the military costume was passing by where a small company of soldiers were at work making some repairs on a small redoubt. To meet this great want,—the want of mil-ilions, comprising those already in the field, those preparing to go, and citizens at home intensely interested in the subject,-this elegant and complete edition of the Revised Regulations for the Army has been issued, by an order of the Secretary of War, bearing date of August 10, 1861. It supersedes all former issues, and is in all respects suited to the present and prospective condition of the Army. To this end, the work has been greatly in creased and materially altered, thoroughly re-vised and corrected by the highest military authority, with the approval of the President of the United States; and the order of the Secreary of War declares that it "shall be strictly observed as the sole and standing authority upon the matter therein contained." The Appendix embraces the Articles of War.

containing many important corrections: also. selections from the Military Acts of Congress, including those passed at the last session The book is an octavo of 560 pages, is elegantly printed on fine paper, with new and bold type, and has an admirable exhaustive index, for which every officer will be grateful, the moment his eye rests upon it, as no former edition has ever had an index, and the want of one has been long felt in the Army.

Having occasion for a portrait, I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a ministure in Oil Colors, under the new process discovered by him, and take great pleasure in expressing the satisfaction given me, not only by the accuracy of the likeness, but its artistic finish in all respects, and recommend him to the patronage of those disposed to encourage the beautiful art.

The late and lamented Dr. George M'Clellan, one of the most eminent practitioners that the United States could ever boast of, always made it a standing rule when he was called upon to prescribe for a child, to order the AIR OUT, from the fact that the majority of ailments to which children are here are occasioned by having too much weight on the head in the shape of hair. In conclusion, mothers, only reflect for a moment. Is it reasonable to suppose that any child can enjoy good health, or even be comfortable, with a long and thigh head of hair, with the thermometer at 90 or 94 as is often the case. The important fact that the awful consequences of self-abuse may be effectually removed without internal medicines or the dangerous application of caustics, instruments, medicated bottpics, and other empirical devises, is here clearly demonstrated, and the entirely new and highly successful treatment, as adopted by the celebrated author fully explained, by means of which every one is enabled to cure himself perfectly, and at the least possible cost, thereby avoiding all the advertised nostrums of the day.
