BY HARRY.

As witnessed by the Author on board the Bark Cordelia, of Camden, being compelled in a furious storm to "lay-to"-two days and way on second night, at 3 o'c,ock, A. M.

See yonder breaks the balmy morn, Far o'er the sea, with mellow light-(Unclouded by the heartless storm) From out the sombre shades of night. Sol's golden disk, from ocean free, Now cheers, the sailors-Morn at Sea.

Now, full above, the ocean tide, He sheds afar, his silver beams. Dispensing comfort, far and wide, As through the starless sky, it streams The bracing air, (to health, the key.) To bless the seamans-Morn at Sca.

With leading breeze, our " Topsails sleep," Now clear away our running gear, Start "Brace," and "Bowline," lift the slicets, Steady !-Steady !-hold her, there .-A sparkling glass, and pipe, give me, Our trusty ship .- The morn at sea. Phila. March 21, 1862.

TOUCHING INCIDENT. But a short time ago there resided in Woodbury a family who were highly respected and moved in the affluent circles blessed with an infant daughter, but before the child could comprehend its own existence, the mother died and was buried. The little girl grew to the age of five years without remembering how her mother looked, or even hearing her name .keeping from her everything connected with her ,and, as reason began to dawn with all the emotions of a child's wonder s syer comfort On one oceasion the httle child was missing. Scarch was made thrown into a state of excitement-persons were seen hurrying rapidly along in search of her; but she was nowhere to be found. The shades of night began to house was searched, and this time the unoccupied room was entered, when to the inexpressible joy of the inmates, there sat the little child, with her playthings all arranged in nice order around her, right in front of the portrait of her mother. -They clasped her to their bosoms-imprinted upon her cheeks kisses of loveand when asked why she had been there so long, she replied in the artless simplicitv of her little soul :- "I wanted to play where my mother could look at and watch me!" This answer drew tears to the eyes of the spectator, and exhibiting as it did, the influence of a pious mother on the heart of her child, even though dying bemother. Advice of a Successful Dairyman. Albert Yale, a rich and successful daiyman, of Guilford, New York, gives the following advice relative to feeding cows in Winter:-To farmers that are keeping bringing your cows through the Winter in proper condition to be profitable the next Summer. Then give them enough of this and no more. When I see a far mer forcing his cows to eat straw one half of the time, and the other half daisies, weeds or dry woody stuff called hay, with mark that man as one who will never get rich from his dairy alone: The proper place for the straw is under the cow -Give her a good soft bed, and keep her When the Fall rains begin, I put my cows in the stable through each storm -During the Winter months they are most of the time in the stable and are let out twice a day for water.

Another point. If dairymen would ake more pains in selecting their cows, and breed them to some thorough-bred bull, of the best milking families, and feed them better, it would not be necessary to keep but one-half the number of the general average of cows to make the he accordingly saddled the old mare, and same amount of butter. During the Fall and early Winter I prefer to feed roots; but after they are well dried off, comthen increase to one or two quarts once a day; after calving, two quarts at a time, twice a day. Keep them on this feed until they have been to grass eight or ten days, when I decrease the feed gradually each day.

APRIL.

The last words of the Farewell Address of the Father of his country, read in ev ery village and city in the loyal States or the late anniversary of his birth, are stil lingering in our ears. "Relying on its kindness in this as in other things, and actuated by that fervent love towards it which is so natural to a man who views in it the native soil of himself and his pro genitors for several generations, I antici pate with pleasing expectation that retrea in which I promise myself to realize, with out alloy, the sweet enjoyment of partiak ing, in the midst of my follow citizens, the benign influence of good laws under a free government." No wonder that he looked forward with such eager anticipation to his scenre retreat upon the shores of the Potomac. Virginia had been the home of his fathers for four generations, and Mount Vernon had been the home of his affections, and the scene of his industries before he assumed the cares of State. Amid all his public cares at the head of the ar mies of his country during the war of independence, and at the head of the government after peace was declared, he nev er lost sight of his private affairs. There was a constant supervision not only of the general plan of farm operations at Mt. Ver-non, but of all details, extending to the rotation of crops, the planting of particular fields, manuring, tillage and marketing.

Here was undoubtedly the secret of his su eess as a farmer. No business can b made to pay unless a man will give hi close attention to it. If a man holds his lands as speculation, and is always ready to sell out to the first man who offers him a handsome advance, he can not expect to make money by the culture of the soil. He not only gave close attention to his business, but he managed his lauds skill fully. He was a progressive farmer, mak ing free use of books and correspondence. as well as his own experiments, to advance himself in his favorite art. He quickly observed that the system of culture prevalent among his neighbors, was fast exhausting their lands and making them of no value. At a time when they were thinking of abandoning their culti vated fields, he adopted a most excellent system of rotation of crops; and substituting grains, grass, and root crops for tobacco, he soon restored the soil to good condition, and found his income increasing, while his neighbors who pursued the old system grew poorer. Every field was mapped out, and the crops assigned to it, for several years in advance.

How completely this peaceful farm life filled the cup of his bliss, we see in his letter to Oliver Wolcott: "....To make and sell a little flour annually, to repair houses fast going to ruin, and to amuse myself in agricultural and rural pursuits, will constitute employment for the few years I have to remain on this terrestrial globe. If also I could meet now and then that it is very natural that we should the friends I esteem, it would all the measure and add zest to my enjoyments; but der. if ever this happens, it must be under my But we find among his papers and letters own vine and fig-tree, as I do not think it that he was quite as goad at tilling the probable that I shall again go beyond twenty miles from them."

The Exhibition of the school as Bowentown occurred on Thursday evening, March 20th. It has seldom been our privilege to attend exercises of the kind more interesting. The speakers displayed an amount of training which is very unusual in a district school. Some of the essays read by the little girls, were excellent, and would reflect credit upon much older pupils. The dialogues were unusually good and deserve particular notice. The singing, conducted principally by the teacher and pupils, added much kind of proceeding has passed, and Spain to the interest of the exercises.

Persecution of Protestants in Spain.

To us, accustomed to enjoy and to accord to others the largest liberty in matters of religion, without perceiving any bad effects therefrom, it seems hard to realize that there are portions of the world, claiming both christianity and the right to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. Yet so it is. Spain, which has a most unenviable reputation for bigotry and persecution, according to Spanish papers has again let loose the spirit of persecution against her protestant citizens. For the crime of selling Spanish Bibles, M. Manuel Matamoras, who is represented as a quiet conscientious christian, has been condemned to the galleys for seven years. Several, both men and women, are now in prison; a young girl of seventeen summers is included among the prisoners.-About fifty fathers and heads of families have been compelled to fly, leaving their families in a state of utter destitution.-Sensible of the odium of the measures, the government seeks to palliate it by representing that these persons are punshed for political offences, and yet not a document has been produced to prove

THE PINAL ADJOURNMENT.

Gaturday, March 29
Legislature but fust adjourned abrupty, in ill humor, in confusion—and without passing the Incidental Bill, which has been in controversity between the two houses throughout the evening. The Senate refused to agree to the House amendments striking out the appropriations to the State officers and $100 cach in addition to the salaries of the Assistant Secretaries of the Scholar and House. Committees of Conference were repeatedly appointed by each, which resulted in yie ing only a little at each stage of the barpman are accustomed to After hours spent in these proceedings petween successive committees, the whole hill having been several times lost and reinstated in the House, the Senate Committee finally conceded all the points demanded by the latter except the allowance of the extra compensation to the assistant Clerk. While the result of this last action was being reported to the Sen ate, that grave body was surprised by the entry of the members of the House, with the Speaker at their head, who formally announced that having finished their bus ness, and the time for final adjournment having arrived, they were ready to close the session! The President and members of the Senate were completely thrown off their guard by this unexpected proceeding and at the same instant Senator Robbins moved to adjourn, which was at once carried; and in less time than the scene can described, the Logislature was pronounced adjourned sine die! The whole affair was so sudden that scarcely a word was spoken for a moment or two, when the conversation became very animated, and the comments of the Senators upon the preceed ing of the lower House were not complimentary, nor altogether forbearing the neglect to pass the Incidental Bill, large number of needy persons will be deprived of their dues for a whole year, unless the State officers assume the respon-

The War News

On Thursday the 27th, the main body of the Army of the Potomac advanced upon the rebel outposts, beyond Warrenton Junction, driving the advance guard of the enemy some ten thousand strong, before them along the line of the Gordonsville railroad. The Junction is only ten miles from Rappahannock where a large body of the enemy are said to be concentrated, and twenty from the Rapidan, which forms the exterior line of their forces, bearing the same relation to them as Bull Run does to Manassas. It is scarcely probable that the enemy will make a decided stand this side of the Rapidan; they are rapidly pursued as they retreat. by our forces, and a collision cannot be much longer averted.

From Island No. 10 we have nothing decisive as to results. Much of our fire hitherto has been harmless, the shells of our mortars generally falling beyond the batteries of the enemy. It is certain that the upper battery has been silenced, and sixty nine men had been killed there, and twenty or thirty more on other parts of the Island. The enemy continue to fortify, and their steamers are constantly running from the Island to the mainland. It is evident that its reduction will be a work of time and serious difficulty. They are said to be amply provisioned for a siege, and in view of its importance as the key to the whole lower Mississippi the enemy will make desperate efforts to retain possession of it, or at least to retard us in occupying it.

An immense army is papidly concentrating at Corinth, which is in the N. E corner of Mississippi, near the boundary line of Alabama. According to the rebel accounts, the force already gathered at the rebel camp at Corinth reaches 70,000 men. To meet these the Union columns are pushing forward from Columbia and down the Tennessee, and will probably concentrate at Decatur or Florence, Alabama, or some other point on the Memphis and Charlestown railroad. Already the pickets of the two hosts are within a few miles of each other.

There can be little doubt that the Merrimae has been fully repaired at the Gosport Navy Yard and is now realy to make another attack. She is said to have been provided with a 15 inch rifled gun, carrying three hundred pound shot, with steel points. With these she hopes to make an impression on her formidable adversary the Monitor, who is quietly and confidently awaiting her reappearance.

The Theatre of War in Tennessee. There is evidently a rapid and great ovement of webel forces from all available points toward the fighting line, reach ing from Decatur, Alabama, through Coare but children of a larger growth." The length of the session was be there—is moved westward to the point ten weeks and three days, during which of approaching conflict. They believe we will fight promptly and desperately, both on the Tennessee and on the Mississippi, and that if their line is again broken, the whole western centre is lost to mouth of the Mississippi would be made within a week after the fall of Memphis, and the power of the rebellion would be effectually crippied. For these reasons a desperate effort will be made to retrieve their position, to resist our advance on the Tennessee river, as well as to support the stand they have made at Island 10. If the rebels concentrate all they have at command, abandoning the coast below as well as all their posts in Arkansas, and in addition draw largely from the forces mysteriously flitting about Virginia, they will give us the most desperate battle of the war, and possibly some partial disasters may be the result. They regard themselves as having been disgraced at Fort Donelson, and it is said they are determined to retrieve their honor at any cost in a future conflict. Everything that can induce a display of energy on their part exists in the circumstances of their position. Our hope is that they have had so little time to prepare themselves, and have so many regiments whose experience has taught them a salutary dread of our arms, that their weakness will be disclosed on the part of the rank and file to an extent that will seriously affect them. It has been several times intimated that the Tennessee regiments would take occasion to display Union feeling in any general battle that would give them the opportunity.

Cumberland Mutual Fire Insurance Comp-Uniberiand munal fire insurance Comp.

The Annual Meeting of the members of the Cumberland Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held at the Hotel of E. Davis & Son. in Bridgeton, on Thursday, March 13th, 1862. The directors reported a continued accession of members and of property insured, and while the increase has not been so great as in some other years, the losses have been less than any year since 1850, and the cash funds are now more than they have had since the annual meeting of 1850; thus enabling them to report favorably of the condition of the Company, and they deem it cause for gratitude, that during a year of such general prostration in the trade and usual business of the country, so little loss has occurred to the members from y, so little loss has occurred to the members fron this source—being only $1.048 this year.

WARREN'S GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES!

PRIMARY GEOGRAPHY,

WARREN'S COMMON SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY, WARREN'S PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY.

These three books form a complete geographical course, adapted to all grades of schools. They have recently been thoroughly revised, and now contain all new political and territorial changes, with statistice from the census of 1850. The Maps and Engravings are of the very highest order of excellence; and in all the books the maps are in the same volume with the descriptive text. The series is now used in most of the principal cities and towns of the United States, and has given great satisfaction wherever it has been adopted.
