For the West Jersey Pioneer. THE PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

BY MRS. SARAH S. SOUWELL.

Over the mountains, rivers and plains, They have carried the slender wire, Through, which the nation's palses throb

In wanes of living fire.

From the far Pacific's golden shore, To the woody hills of Maine, Our country is bound in one brotherhood By the links of this mighty chain.

The wild winds, sweeping o'er prairies wide Chaut a triumphal song, And the mighty rivers lift their voice The anthem to prolong.

The enoug peaks and rugged cliffs Echo the joyful strain, And the sounding waves of united seas Fill up the grand sefrain.

Long live the Union of East and West! And the work of their children's hands; Soon may the severed North and South Be joined in as willing bands.

The Monitor and Merrimac. The recent battle between the Monitor and Merrimac has attracted a great deal of attention in Europe. If any intention heretofore really existed of breaking the blockade, it is altogether dissipated now. According to the advices from England, that power feels very insecure at the bare idea of a contingency that might happen. The attention of Parlisment has been directed to the subject, and they are very earnestly discussing the superiority of iron plated ships over stone walls and fortifications. Their own ship, the Warrior, ly to concede, that notwithstanding her great bulk, she could prove no match for the Monitor. Mr. Train seems to be vigorously encouraging the idea, and if the United States were to declare war against them to-day it is panic than ever was known in Old England — The Emperor Napoleon has been quietly adding to his navy until he is said to have a very formidable fleet of iron plated ships, at the sight of which his sensitive neighbor across the channel feels seriously alarmed. All parties admit that the day of wooden navies has national dock-vards. No naval encounter of ancient or modern times has attracted more universal attention than this encounter, and if it was transiently disastrous to the Union cause, it has more than compensated for it by the respect it has caused for our power abroad, and the entire stoppage of the twaddle about the ineffectiveness of the blockade. We shall hear no more about breaking the blockade.

An Incident of the War.

As the United States vessels were on their way to attack Fernandina, Florida, they picked up a "contraband" who had ventured to sea in an open boat, to notify them that the rebels were deserting the place. While questioning the darkey, some of the officers remarked that he should have brought them newspapers to let them know what was going on. "I tought of dat," replied the black, "and fotched a Charleston paper wid me."-He put his hand in his bosom and brought forth a paper, and with the air of one who was rendering a very important service, he handed it to the inquiring officers. They grasped it cagerly, but one glance caused a general burst of laughter, much to the astonishment of poor Cuffee, who could not read, and imagining one paper as good as another, had brought one dated 1822. A remarkable feature of the circumstance is that the paper contains an article in favor of negro emancipa-

Business Reviving.

We see by our exchanges that in spite of the war, business is reviving. The boot and shoe manufacturers of Lynn are as busy as before the war, and the booksellers' trade sales, one of the first pursuits one would think to feel the pressure of the times, has just concluded, at New York, with more success than for manner of doing business at his store is stove, belonging to Centreville School, of while the waste and destruction of the war will call forth the recuperative and active energies of the nation for some years to come.

INCREASE OF INTEMPERANCE.

Notwithstanding the banishment of the social glass" from fashionable parties and private entertainments, and the efvent indulgence in intoxicating drinks, facts and statistics are constantly occurring to show that intemperance is largely | no other country in the world can peoon the increase. Even in Boston, the metropolis of Pilgrim land, and par excellence the moral city of the Union, intemperance has increased, according to the official report of the chief of police, from little more than one per cent. of the population in 1850, as evidenced by the arrests for drunkenness, to eight per cent in 1861. In 1852, in a population of about 140,000, 2060 persons, about one seventeenth part of the population, were arrested for drunkenness. In 1861 the refreshed by food and rest ready to atpopulation amounted to 180,000, and the arrests made for the same cause were 10,598, or more than one tenth of the entire population. The chief says that proved a failure, and they are disposed frank- the number of arrests for drunkenness has risen since 1852, in some years, by thousands; last year the number being 4.000 greater than in any preceding year This rise, he thinks, has been with such probable that they would experience a greater | unfailing regularity and rapidity as to prove, conclusively, that there is some powerful influence at work to increase the prevalence of this vice. The fact that the number of shops where liquor is sold has increased from 1500 at the former period specified to 1900 at the latter, gone forever, and the British have ordered all should leave no doubt to the mind of the work on wooden ships to be suspended in their chief as to what the 'powerful influences' are that tend to an increase of this vice. But it is not in the "city of notions" alone that these agencies have attracted attention. The annals of the army and its movements shows a persistence in spreading intemperance rarely excelled. The profits on the sale of liquor are so large that, in spite of "confiscations," and seizing and emptying on the ground thousands of gallons of it, men are found willing to risk personal liberty, and occasional loss of stock, for a chance of introducing it into the army. The War News.

The past week has added but little to our quota of knowledge of war movements. The most important tidings are derived from rebel sources, and are to the effect that General Burnside had been defeated at Elizabeth City by the rebels, while attempting to land there .-The story is evidently a fabrication.

The previously reported engagement between the troops of Gen. Burnside and a Georgia Regiment, took place on Saturday. The Union troops are said to try? We have to guard the killed and 35 wounded. They were only partly equipped, they say, and many lacked muskets and ammunition. They are said to have run on being attacked while the Union troops held their ground until they had buried their dead, when they retired. Eleven graves of Union soldiers were subsequently counted on the battle field.

One of the refugees visited Richmond last week. He states that there are very few troops either there or at Norfolk most of the force having been sent to Yorktown. Fourteen thousand troops are said to have passed through Rich mond on one day last week, bound for Yorktown.

In the vicinity of Yorktown, nothing lish provisional governments for the exe-cution of the Federal laws over every con-in Fort Wright, a snag almost as hard to decisive has yet taken place; and on the Mississippi, Commodore Foote has found undaunted resolution however, he has addressed himself to the task of surmounting the obstruction and of surmounting the obstruction and of surmounting the obstruction, and expresses complete confidence in his ability to do

THE TIDE OF SUCCESS.

BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL. Will Shakespeare declares,

That in human affairs There's a tide which to good fortune leads. Our soldiers out West With such luck have been blessed, For their valor still shines and succeeds

Every breeze brings its story. Of national glory
Of triumphs unchanging, immense; Till in victories, we Nothing wonderful see,

But regard them as common events. Every great enterprise, When controlled by the wise, And the valorous, scarcely can fail: And in business offairs,

The mortal who dares To be generous, sure to prevail. While illiberal chaps

Are setting their traps, And using their many devices, The men of the Tower Show the will and the power To sell first-rate goods at low prices.

In the contemplation of our great successes battle, and the anticipation of others, let is

Grover & Baker's

CELEBRATED SEWING MACHINE.

I AVING taken the agency for the sale of Grover & Baker's celebrated Sawing Machine. I request all who are in want of one of these degraids machines to call at my store and set their wonderful nerformance. It is now a fixed fact that Sewing Machines must take the place of the old medic. It is not enger an experiment. After ton years experience of the difficulties rendering them almost impossible to be used in the country, success has become complete. It can now bordid with great confidence that the difficulty is now removed. These machines are so simple in all their parts that any ordinary child can learn to work them and keep them in order. The work done by them is

Stronger and More Handsome Stronger and More Handsome than that done by hand. Upwards of fifty them and of them are in daily use, and Grover & Baker are constantly in the receipt of letters hearing unsoficited testimony as to their usefulness and meril. Merrever they are seen they are joyfully recognized by woman as her emancipator from the toil and never censing drudgery of the needle, from which it has hutherto been supposed there was no escape.
