WHO WANTS A GOOD BOY!

We were standing gazing thoughtfully in the street, a few evenings since, when our attention was arrested by the approach of a boy of some eleven summers. "Please sir," said Willie, that was the boy's name, "I have come to see if you could get me a place to live in the counfriend of yours wanted a boy and that of such appropriation you would write to him." I replied that I had not written, but that I would write sons of African descent as can be used in a few days. "O sir if you would be to advantage etc. so kind." said Willie as the tears started to his eyes. This little incident set us to thinking. How different, thought we. from scores of good honest people who are constantly breaking up, and retiring from the innocent atmosphere of their farms to bring their families into the temptations and idleness of town and city ment of Groceries also kept by E. Sayre. life, under the allusive plea of getting their children educated, just as though our country schools were not just the place for children to get a good common school and common sense education, at least until they attain to years to go to a boarding school. Willie is a good boy, attends his Sabbath school regularly and is sincerely anxious to relieve a sick father from his support. Now is not this noble? Such a boy deserves a place, and a good place at that. There are not many boys eleven vears of age who are eager to leave a kind father and mother's house and their little brothers and sisters to go among strangers, and buffet with the great world, merely to relieve and lighten a parent's cares We look forward, full of hope, to this boy's future. This nobleness and self reliance of spirit needs but a fostering hand to develop a man of great usefu'ness. Such have risen, and still shall rise, to be the ornaments of society. Such boys should have good "master."-Great is the responsibility of those who undertake their care. The address occupied about one hour, being partly extemporaneous.

We are supplied with much interesting intell gence, both as to the strength and position of the army of the Potamac, and that of the enemy, through files of Southern papers which have been received. The Petersburg Express of July 8th and 10th, acknowledges the formidable character of the position no occupied by Gen. McClellan, but denies its impregnability. It says he can and will be disloged in spite of the heights on which he has planted his army. The same papers say that the army of Metlellan has extended and advanced its fines, and that the reinforcements that and reacted him had increased his atrength to 100,000 men. And it mysterlously alludes to movements of importance wilch have been made by a portion of the rebel army, the particulars of which will be made known in a few days, but which it refrains from making public for good reasons. On the other hand, an escaped Union prison er, who escaped from Richwood on Tuesday last, gives the following estimate of the rebel force. He says that prior to the recent battles they were estimated at from 217,000 to 220,600 strong, large reinforcements having joined there from the direction of Petersirg for ten days and nights. Fort Darling us been greatly strengthened and the batteres iron clad, and a division of the rebel army has been passed over the the James river for its defence. The bridges in the vicinity of Hanover Court House, which had been de-troyed by Gen. THE WAR IN MEXICO. The account of the second fight in Mexico, in which the french troops were defeated by the Mexicans, will show our readers that their first success at Las Cumbres and La Puebla, was not a mere accident, nor altogether the result of a strong position. No withstanding the losses sustained by Juarez's troops. under Gen. Tapia, the french and their alies were compelled to retreat, leaving the battle field in the posession of the Mexicans, who buried their own dead. carried off all the wounded, and plundered the field. The fighting in the mountain pass appears to have been of the most desperate and sanguinary character the troops of the Mexican government exhibiting as good military qualities as the French, and leaving the latter nothing to boast of It will perhaps do these Europeans good to try their hands at a serious war in America. They have been in the habit of considering all American races as degenerate, and stamping all our wars as puerile. They wanted to show us in Mexico how easily they could dispose of us, and have got themselves into a pretty mess in consequence.
