such friendships where disparities of years or circumstances put the idea of love out of the question. Middle life has rarely this advantage; youth and old age have.

We may have female friendships with

For the West Jersey Pioneer. AYARICE. Among all the guilty passions that pervade our fallen humanity, there is none more general in its influence, or more direful in its effects upon the peace of society than Avarice. It corrupts the morals of the community, foments jealousees in neighborhoods, begets strifes between parties, broods alienations among friends, stirs up conflicting interest, and arrays hos tile forces in mortal combat, and makes the nation an arena of discord, and the world a field of blood. Avarice is preeminently The sin of the American people. Whatever may be the names or the attributes of the Gods to which the other Nations bow, and to whom we send missionaries to turn them from "their dumb idols," ours is the god of this world whose names are "Covetousness, Lust of gain, Pride of life." &c. And whose inspirations prompt to fraud, deception, slander, alienation, abuse, envy, strifes, &c., with thefts, robberies, piracies, burglaries, murders, and wars, with their attendant devastators and blood-shed. The almost unanimous practice of the American people reverses the testimoney of the Divine Teacher, and proves that "a man's life Does Consist in the aburdance of the things which he possesses." Hence the frenzy and the fever, the game and the glory of the ninetynine hundredths is that every man shall gain the whole world and loose his own soul. It is this Demon spirit that has driven the Southern States into secession and rebellion, disguise the fact as they may and cover it with as many flimsey pretexts as they can fabricate, the truth still stands confessed, that an indomitable desire of gain, a determination to be rich -rich in land and territory, rich in slaves and chattles, rich in trade and commerce, and rich in consequent influence and honors among all Nations, has been the mainspring of their actions, the lever which has heaved up the foundations of our social compact and thrown the whole comfore, seldom counsels you to do an impru- munity into confusion and war. And the overwhelming disasters that are coming upon them will be their just recompense of reward. But if the rebels suffer the most direful calamities in retrebutive justice for their Avarice, what shall "the doom be" of the Northerners who are scarcely less greedy of gain, but less audacious and unprincipaled in manifestations. Every day discloses, "Gigantic Speculations," "Stupendous frauds," "enormus impositions," "abominable swindles" &c , &c. And men who were reputed honest when "honesty was the best policy," are now ready to take advantage of the Government necessities to amass fortunes they not could realise by honest business transactions. And while the American government with honest Abe at its head, is making every effort to crush the Southern traitors and robbers, the public service is thronged with unscrup llous mercenaries whose only sense of p triotism and devotion to country, is meaing." Female friendship, indeed is to a sared by the amount of money they can make. Hence the longer the war lasts the better for their interests. For this object immense expeditions are fitted out at enormous expense to strike a decisive blow somewhere, but the movement is carefully delayed until the traitors are ap-ing about how to prevent frauds and how spect for old age as a beautiful trait of to meet the growing expenses, and yet lars. character. Be kind to those who are in are accomplishing nothing. After all who is to pay the debt? From whom must the money come to fill the pockets of these great swindlers? The a swer is as plain as it is appaling! For the West Jersey Pioneer. A SURPRISE PARTY.

Friend, did you ever attend a Surprise Party ! No! I am sorry for that, for you tions in the country. Perhaps you were not at the third Quarterly Meeting of the M. E. Church, on the Pittsgrove and Woodruff charge, held at Olivet, on the first and second of November. Sunday was a levely day, one of nature's master pieces. I wonder that you were not there, if you live anywhere in travelling distance. If you had been there I dare say you would have been at our Surprise Party; for it was there that the subject was first introduced by the Rev. Willis Reeves, who took particular pains that the minister, Rev. J. F. Morell, (for whose benefit the affair was intended,) should be absent from the room when it was proposed. The subject seemed to "take," generally, as the sequel will show. The whole family of the Rev. Mr. Morell remained in blissful ignorance until the time had nearly transpired for the Party to come off, which was the following Thursday afternoon and evening. Thursday afternoon, about one o'clock, Mrs. M. was surprised by several Ladies coming in and informing that she would have no further control of the house for the remainder of the day, as, by special appointment, they, with some others, were to have the whole charge. From this time, until late in the evening, two or three were kept busily engaged conveying bonnets, shawls, and overcoats, upstairs to the dressing room. Wagons might also be seen driving through the "big gate" well stored with provisions. About halfpast four the tables were spread in the dining-room, and, from that time until half-past nine, the board was crowded around with eager and smiling faces. I will venture to assure you that none arose from the table until they were almost ready to say "I shan't want anything more to eat for a week," for there was evcrything there to tempt the appetite of the most fastidious epicure. Just as the table was ready for one set to sit down, Mr. Reeves might be seen wispering slyly iuto each one's ear, "The Bank sits right in the middle of the table." We hardly have taken them had he been disposed; understood these omnious words at first, but I did not suspect him. I had then but when our turn came we marched forward boldly, with our eyes directed toward the centre of the table, and what did we behold? why one of the most tasty articles a lady's fair fingers ever constructed. A Bank it was, sure enough, for each one, when sufficiently near, was observed to drop something into it, very closely resembling a bank-note. I shall not venture a description of this Bank, suffice it to say, it seemed one large boquet of the most beautiful flowers. We were sorry when toward the hour of midnight, some one cried, "Mr. Reeves has broken the Bank!" but our sorrow was sion to go to my store, and I entered my merged into pleasant surprise when he announced that it contained fifty-one dollars and twelve cents. Previous to the two or three of a private nature, and I opening of the Bank a handsome Buffalo Robe was presented to Mr. Morell, accompanied by an eloquent and appropriate presentation speech from Mr. in acknowledgement of the kinducss of not in the store at the time, but I supthe donors, &c. THE ACCUSED CLERK BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

I spent an evening with Mr. Lamson have missed one of the best social institut and after tea the conversation turned up on the subject of Honesty, as applied to business. I advanced the idea that some merchants made their stores schools of Dishonesty. They taught their clerks all the tricks of trade for their own benefit; and the clerks, thus educated would in after times, practise those same tricks for themselves. Mr. Lamson admitted the truth of the assertion; and then, with a smile, assured me he could not plead guilty to the charge.

"But," said he, "I have committed errors in business; and I have committed errors in my judgment upon my follows. When I was young I was taught to look upon all species of dishonesty with a feeling of horror, and I grew up to manhood with that same feeling in possession of me. I do not believe that a real virtue can be carried too far; but I believe that any line of conduct may be carried so far as to cease to be a virtue. I can look back now and see that, in my extreme ideas of rigid honesty, I became self righteous and unforgiving, In short, I forgot that greatest of the heavenly graces-CHARITY.

"Let me tell you a little story. It has not so much to do with the moral of the subject we have been discussing: but it has to do with the frailty of man's judgment, and is, at the same time, interest

"Thirty years ago-mercy! how time flies !- I took George Sayers to be one of my clerks. He was then sixteen years old, and one of the most active, intelligent, and efficient clerks I ever emhe was an only son. He had one sister, two years older than himself, who had been brought up with him. Mrs. Savers was an excelent woman, and I knew that she had endeavored to rear her children in the way of virtue and strictest honor. Ellen, Sayers-the sister-was one of the fairest maidens in our town, and one of the best. She was kind and genhim to the aprenticeship of lower ser.

"Time passed on, and at the end of a ar I gave George Sayers charge of my books. During that year there had been several small sums of money missing, of which no account could be given .-George was in a situation where he could no particular reason to suspect him.

When I refolded the letter I must have brought the parts of the wafer so nicely together, that my clerk did not notice that the seal had been broken: when his eye rested upon that money, how easy for him to take it, and destroy the letter, and in case it was missed, to tance from Gibson away with them; and lay the blame upon the mail; for the mail did sometimes make mistakes. It letters beneath the ruler upon the desk, appeared to me an absolute certainty that the money must so have gone. And this was not all. Llearned that George had recently been spending considerable money in repairing his mother's house. "lu the evening, after all others had gone, and the outer doors had been closed,

I called George into the counting-room, and once more asked him concerning that letter and that money. He paled and he trembled, and declared that he knew nothing of it. I told him that it could not be. I told him how I had seen that very letter, and how I had left it upon the desk with other letters. The other letters were all accounted for, but wrong; and then I asked him to forgive not that one. Still he declared that he | mc. I told him I would make the same knew nothing of it. BRIDGETON, N. J., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1862. VOL. XV No. 768 before me. George Sayers must have desk. I remembered how I had found taken the money? And thus I reasoned: two private letters, and that this letter two private letters, and that this letter from my friend in South Carolina was one of them I also remembered that this letter from my agent I had opened. Furthermore, I remembered that on that occasion I had a pot of varnish with me. It was with a dab of varnish that the two letters had been stuck together .-When I picked up those two private letters, and put them away in the pigeonhole, I had unwittingly laid the remitin my hurry, as I placed the remaining I did not notice what I had done.

"What should be my next step? I knew now that George Sayers was innocent, and that I had wronged him. I must see him, and acknowledge the error: and the sooner it was done the better. I arose and put away the useless letters. and having locked up the store, I went directly to the widow's dwelling. The family had retired; but I called them up; and when they admitted me, I told to George what I had discovered. There was a flash in his eye; but I did not yet allow him to speak. I caught his hand, and acknowledged that I had done him acknowledgement to all his friends; and employ, I would make ample amends for the mistake of the past.

"The youth could not resist my appeal. He gladly accepted my terms; he forgave me what I had done; and the mother and sister sank down upon their knees in happy thanksgiving.

"On the following day George appeared at my store, and helped me arrange my affairs; and before another night it was known all through the town that me truly and faithfully; and that he had the dark cloud had been lfted. My brother-in-law entered into partnership with me; and at the end of two years I retired to my mill and gave up my interest in the store to George Sayers. He married the daughter of his partner, and is, to day, one of the most honered men of State. I tremble, even now, when I think how very near a mistake of mine came to consigning that fair youth to destruction, and bringing his mother and sister down to mortal sorrow. There is a lesson in the story which every employ-er should heed and understand."

A Husband Frightens His Wife. There are some people who imagine it to be a smart thing to play tricks fright-ening women or children. A Young married man whose wife is naturally timid and nervous, thought two or three evenings ago that he would frighten her a little by what he considered a pretty trick, but which has proved to be the most consummate folly, producing serious and alarming consequences. The details of the case are that the wife went out, leaving the key to their chamber hanging in its customary place. The husband came in during her absence, saw the key and got some one of their friends in the house to lock him in and hang the key where he found it. Presently his wife returned, unlocked the chamber, went and changed her dress, and while arranging her toilette, a man's hand was reached out from under the bed and grasped her leg. Not suspecting, of course, that it was her husband, she gave one piercing shirek and fell senseless upon the floor. Her husband, agonised at the terrible fright he had given his wife, called her by name and cudeavored to make her understand that it was him, and that no harm was intended to her. But all his efforts were fruitless to return her to consciousness and calmness. That night two or three physicians were in attendance upon the unfortunate lady; some of her friends were at her bedside and others were summoned to see her the next day. At last accounts, there were slight hopes that her life might be saved but there were strong fears that her mind would be a wreck forever. The husband as might be expected, is in a state of m'nd bordering on despair, reproaching himself too late with his thoughtless folly. - Suracuse Courier.

JUIE-A NEW PRODUCT. The present and prospective supply of cotton, has had the effect to cause investigations to be made of a variety of materials, for the purpose of procuring a substitute for it. A vast number of plants many of them natives of this State have been carefully examined. While none have been found to compete with cotton, entirely perennial plant called American Jute has been found that for many purposes forms a good substitute In a paper read before the Franklin Institute at a recent sitting. Mr. Howson of Philadelphia, read a very interesting of Philadelphia, read a very interesting until late at night the crowd comes and goes, paper, in regard to the raising of the and his atteries are kept constantly busy Jute, and its manufacture into cordage Jute, and its manufacture into cordage and textile fabrics. This, plant it states is indigenous to the Northern States and grows in abundance in swampy lands in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey. In the marshes of Burlington County is said to be especially abundant. The stalks of the plant in a natural state, when at their full growth the enterprising publisher has spent years of ere from five to seven feet high, and from a quarter of an inch to five eights high standard, and we feel sure that an appreof an inch in diameter. of April last, an acre of match land was ploughed and seeds of the jute. ("Hi. biscus Moscheutes,) was spread along the furrows. But little or no care was taken to weed the ground or to give that care and attention which ought to be bestowed on young plants, yet in September the ground was found to be thickly studded with seedlings. By previous experiment; it was proved, that on cutting the stalks the first season, that a dozen or more canes would spring up from the stumps the next season, requiring no at- of terms. tention after the first year's growth.-By experiments and a moderate calculation, allowance being made for loss from unforseen causes, it was estimated that three and a half tons of disintegrated fibre, can be derived from an acre.-The fibre and bark can be separated from the pith, by very simple machinery, and hemp for rope. The specimens exhibit ed to the Institute, for strength and pliability being fully equal to ordinary hempen rope, though made by hand and without the aid of ordinary machinery. The rapid increase in the price of all light textile fabrics render it of the utmost importance to all classes that some substitute should be found competent to arrest the ruinously upward tendency of knowledge, that such a substitute had been discerned in our midst, where no aristocratic rebellions, or "foreign interference" can cut off the scource of supply from the manufacturing market -But it is not for rope and textile fabrics alone that this plant promises to be a rival to the favorite "King" of secessia Two eminent paper manufactures have examined the prepared fibre of the jute and estimated it to be worth $100. per ton, as a substitute for linen rags in the manufacture of paper. For this purpose its value can hardly be estimated. Within the last few months, paper for printing purpose has gone up forty five per cent with a most disagreeable tendency to continue in the same direction. without any prospective limi; most of the city papers have already been compelled to put up their prices, or stop publicaion There are too many interests at stake-too many loved members of the domestic household gallantly braving the dangers of the flood and field,-too much interest in the exciting topics of the day, to allow a reading, thinking Friday and Saturday of the next ensuing were driven in and a demonstration made community like ours, to bear unmurmuringly the loss of the newspapers.

The plant grows readily in waste swampy grounds, so that according to the estimates made, the agriculturist, while cheapening the cost of an indespensible article, can at the same time cause his "waste places" to "blossom and bloom" with the splendid radiancy of three hun- cure for him a general hearing by all dred dollars per acre. ### ACQUAINTANCE IN A CAR.

When I was in Rhode Island. Riding to a Yankee town, I saw a man within the car Who gave to all a frown.

Although he seemed a gentleman With manner born of grace; To every smiling man he saw He turned that frowning face.

Between us sat a lady, Weighing half a ton or more. She left, and then my hero Scanned my person o'er and o'er

The face that was a thunder cloud Emit a flood of light,
As though at 12 o'clock at noon Burst from a 12 at night.

We neared another station. When the stranger with a smile, Said, " Hold my pocke/ book, my friend, While I step out a while."

A minute when this oddity Was by me in a seat. Said he, "I feel I should explain This rather novel feat.

"I'm agent for a famous firm, And when I've cash to pay, I always travel with a frow To keep the rogues away. "Now should you ask me why I trust

To you this precious all, I'd say a Gentleman is known By clothes from great OAK HALL!" Do not wait and be half frezen before you aake up your mind about buying, but decid at once to fit yourself out comfortably and conomically at the great OAK HALL, where all kinds of Winter Clothing are sold at lower prices than any other establishment in the city. Small profits and quick sales is the met-Overcoats of every description.

Office Rhodes' Super-Phosphate, the Standerd I Manure, Baltimore, ed., March 20, 1862. Mesers, Potts & Kle t, Camden, N. J.

Dear Sir—We some time since informed you of our purpose to so organise our system of agencies in all agricultural counties that you could devote your works to the exclusive manufacture of Rhodes' Super Phosphate.

This we have ruccessfully accomplished, and are now prepared to engage your full capacity for Rhodes Standard Manure, in accordance with our arrangements. Standard Manure, in accordance with our arrangements.

As we find great mistrust provails in the minds of the farming community of the Eastern States—indeed, an utter want of confidence—in special manures, permit us in this connection to suggest to you to extend, in your capacity as manufacturing chemists, such guarantees of purity, etc., as in your good judgment will enable us to satisfy the minds of intelligent agriculturists.

In the large planting sections, where Rhodes' Manure has been used for many years, there is no occasion for such assurance; but from all we gather during extended visits among Eastern farmers, find they have ample ground for fears—owing, doubtiess, to ignorance and want of manufacturing skill on the part of those who have been furnishing these sections.

Yours, truly,

B. M. Rhodes & Co. Wonderfal.

Canden, N. J. April 1, 1862.

Messre. B. M. Rhodes & Co:
Gentlemen—Yours of 26th ult. duly received. Wo hereby accept your proposition to confine our works to the excusive manufacture of Rhodes' Super-Phoshereby accept your manufacture of Rhodes' Super-Phosphate—the Standard Manure. In reply to your request for a guarantee of purity, to satisfy the incredulous, we would state that if the uniform quality maintained during the last ten years while watched by opponents and tested by chemist (without our knowledge) all over the United States, England and Cala, together with our guarantee of $1000, legally drawn up and signed, also certified to by the Mayor of our city—if these are not sufficient security, we know of none other that can satisty:

Very respectfully,

Potts & Klett.

LOOK AT THIS!

The Menagerie has just been to Bridgeton and exhibited both afternoon and evening, and a dense crowd of people went to see the animals. One of the elophants refused to cross one of the bridges at Elmer's pond, and consequently had to wade around, but notwithstanding this, he came out all right.

Thompson is bound to come out right. The idea has gone out that Thompson sells goods a little higher than others. That idea must and shall be changed, if relling goods still cheaper will do it. I am bound to Physiological View of Marriage.

250 PAGES AND 130 ENGRAVINGS.—Price only 25 cents. Sent free of postage to all parts of the Union. On the infirmities of youth and maturity, disclosing the secret follies of both sexes of all ages, causing debility, nervousness, depression of spirits, papitation of the heart, suicidal imaginings, moduntary emissions, blushings, defective memory, indigestion and lassitude, with confessions of thrilling interest of a Boarding School Miss, a College Student and a young Married Lady, &c. It is a truthful adviser to the married and those contemplating marriage, who entertain secret doubts of their physical condition, and who are conscious of having hazarded the health, happiness, and priviledges to which every human being is entitled.

YOUNG MEN who are troubled with weakness, generally caused by a bad habit in youth, the effects of which are dizziness, pains, forgetfulness, sometimes a ringing in the ears, weak eyes, weakness of the back and lower extremities, confusion of ideas, loss of memory, with melancholy, may be cured by the author's new Paris and London treatment.

We have, recently devoted much of our time in visiting the European Hospitals, availing ourselves of the knowledge and researches of the most skilled Physicians and Surgoons in Europe and the Continent. Those who place themselves under our care will now have the full benefit of the many new and efficacious remedies which we are enabled to introduce into our practice, and the public may rest assured of the same zeal, assiduity, secrecy and attention being paid to their cases, which has so successfully distinguished us heretofore as a Physician in our peculiar department of professional practice for the past twenty-five vears.
