For the West Jersey Pioneer. THE OLD FLAG.

BY REV. T. H. COLHQUER. Oh give me still the good old Flag, With its stars so clear and bright: They'll cheer and animate my heart, Through this my country's night. They'll light me till the coming dawn, Till the return of day; When secession has given up the Ghost. And her myriads passed away. Oh give me still the good old Flag, 'Tis very dear to me: 'Tis my protection here at home, My guardian on the sea. Our Fathers bought it with their bloed, For it their lives were given-Tis honored by the brave below, 'Tis owned and blessed of heaven.

It was the flag of Washington, Which cheered him in that hour: When our Fathers rose against their foes, To resist Great Britian's power. It was their pillar of cloud by day, Their pillar of fire by night, Which led them on to victory, And put their foes to fight.

t was the flag of Jackson too, Who feared no mortal man: Who fought beneath its circling folds. And conquered Packenham. It was the flag of Lawrence too. While the dead lay round in heaps Cried, "I am dying my brave boys, But don't give up the ship." It is the flag of the vetran Scott. Who fifty years ago, Unfurled its colors to the breeze: Nor lowered it to the foe. He kept it up at Vera Cruz Till its enemies their did fall,

And then in triumph, bore it on To Montezuma's Halls. Oh give me then the good old Flag! No other one I crave, Our Fathers dyed it, with their blood-No other one I'll have For 'tis the standard of the free, The banner of the brave: Before it "Secesh" soon will fall, And Slavery find a grave.

This flag, the old Flag still shall wave! These stars there's none shall sever-Tis our nation's flag-her only flag, And our nation's flag for ever. Forever palsied be the hand, That would one star dissever 'Tis our nation's flag-her only flag And our nation's flag forever.

MATILDA JANE. BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL.

Matilda Jane, a maiden rare, Was young and gay and rich and fair. And beaux she had-just twenty-three. Like furnaces they all were sighing, And some with hope deferred were dying; And some of self destruction thought, And bed cords stole or pistols bought. Some with fine music hoped to win her.

And some delicious rhymes did spin her; Some dancing tried—but all in vain; For nothing moved Matilda Jane. She sacked the poets, fiddlers, friskers. Nice chaps with most enchanting whiskers; That make of ladies' hearts "gone cases." And kept her scarlet lip unkissed; But Samuel Hopkins took her eye,

Nor had he whiskers or goatee-A small investment, well applied, For Hopkins gained a peerless bride; From Tower Hall did he obtain

A single officers, who reported those who did not glance developed the difficulty in that lit- stand when the name of Jesus was proand that it had attained a point of quiet desperation beyond the reach of peaceful adjustment. Three days before, they had pitched their tent at the forks of the road, and as they could not agree upon the route by which to enter California, there they had remained. The husband expressed a preferance for the Carson road -the wife for the Lessen-and neither sojourn through the summer following. On the morning of the fourth day, the wife broke a sullen silence of thirty-six hours, by proposing a division of the property, which consisted of two yoke of cattle, one wagon, camp furniture, a small quantity of provisions, and twelve dollars in silver. The proposal was accepted, and forthwith the "plunder" was divided, leaving the wagon to the old man, and the daughter to the mother. The latter exchanged, with a neighboring train the cattle belonging to her for a pony and packsaddle, and piling the daughter and her portion of the divided spoils upon the animals, they resolutely started across the desert by the Lessen trail while the old man silently yoked his cattle, and took the other route.

Singular as this may seem, it is nevertheless true. It is among the many occurrences of life stranger than fiction. -Of course both parties reached California in safety. We say "of course," for it is scarcly possible that any obstacle, death ncluded, could have interfered with stubbornuess so sublime. Arriving at Sacramento with her daughter, the old lady readily found employment-for women were less plentiful than now-and subsequently opened a boarding house, and in a few years amassed a handsome fortune. Two years ago she went to San Francisco. and the daughter, whose education had not been neglected, was married to one of the most substantial citizens. And what has become of the old man The wife had not seen or heard of him since they parted on the Humboldt -They had lived happily together as man and wife for years, and she sometimes reproached herself for the willfulness that separated them, after so long a pilgrimage together through this rough life. -But he was not dead. We cannot trace his course in California, however. All that we know of him is, that fortune had not smiled upon him, and that for years he had toiled without hope. Finally, feeling scarce able to longer wield the pick and shovel, he visited San Franciso, in the hope of obtaining employment bet-ter adapted to his wasted strength.

For three months he remained idle after arriving here, and then, for want of occupation, became the humble retailer of peanuts and oranges, with his entire stock of traffic in a basket upon his arm. This was about six months ago. A few weeks since, in passing the open door of a cottage in the southern part of the city, he observed a lady in the hall, and stopped to offer his merchandize. As he stepped upon the threshold, the lady approached, and the old man raised his eyes and dropped the basket, and no wonder, either, for she was his wife - his "old woman!" She recognized him, and throwing up her arms in amazement, exclaimed —

"Great God! John, is that you?" "All that is left of me," replied the old man. With extended arms they approached.

Suddenly, the old "lady's countenance hanged, and she stepped back.

"John," said she, with a look which might have been constructed into earnstness, "how did you find the Carson

"Miserable, Sulky—miserable," replied the old man, "full of sand and alkali"
"Then I was right, John," she continued inquiringly.

"You were, Sulky."
"That's enough!" said she, throwing her arms around the old man's neck; "that's enough, John;" and the old couplo, strangely sundered, were again united. Both are living with their daughter, on Second street.

The following facts relating to pews in churches, will be of interest, in showing the customs of society at different eras: In Anglo-Saxon and Northern churches the whole interior except the east end. As early as 1511, pews were arranged tle train of one wagon and three persons, notunced. The services were very much protracted so that many would fall asleep. Hence Swift's pithy allusion:

The Shepherd's Dog and Child. One day a shepherd, on going to his flock which was feeding on the higher parts of the Grampian Mountains, took his little boy with him as well as his dog. The child was only three years old. The father left him alone while he looked after some sheep, when suddenly a thick fog came on. The anxious father immediately hrstened back to find his child; but it was so dark that he could not see him. and unfortunately, he missed his way-After a search of many hours among the caverns and holes in the mountains, he was at length overtaken by night. Still wandering on, he discovered by the light of the muon that he had reached the bottom of the valley, and was within a short distance of his cottage. He hoped that the child had gone home; but when he enquired, he found his wife had not seen

To renew the search that night was equally irnitless and dangerous. He was therefore obliged to remain where he was, having lost both his dog and child, which had attended him faithfully for years -Next morning, by daybreak, the shepherd, accompanied by a band of his neighbors, set out in search of his child; but, after a day spent in fruitless fatigue, they were at last compelled by the approach of night, to descend from the mountain. On returning to the cottage, the shepherd found that the dog, which he had lost the day before, had been home, and on receiving a piece of cake, had instantly gone off again. For several days the shepherd renewed the search for his child, and still, on returning at evening, disappointed, to his cottage, he found that the dog had been home, and on receiving his usual allowauce of cake, had iustantly disappeared. Struck with this singular circumstance. he remained at home one day, and when the dog, as usual, departed with his piece of cake, he resolved to follow him, and find out the cause of this strange conduct. The dog led the way to a waterfall, at some distance from the spot where the shepherd had left his child. The shepherd stepping from crag to crag, crossed the roaring stream. The dog at last disappeared into a cave, the mouth of which was almost upon a level with the torrent. The shepherd with difficulty followed; but, on entering the cave, what were his emotions when he beheld his little boy eating with much satisfaction the cake which the dog had just brought him, while the faithful animal stood by, watching his young master with love and pleasure in his looks!

From the situation in which the child was found, it appears that he had wandered to the brink of the precipice, and then either fallen or scrambled down till he reached the cave, which the dread of the for ent had afterwards prevented him from quitting. The dog by means of his scent, had traced him to the spot, and afterwards prevented him from starving, by giving up to him his own daily allowance. He appears never to have quitted the child by night or day, except when it was

I HAVE NOT BEGUN TO FIGHT YET.

The above language of the gallant and brave Paul Jones, when the british com-mander asked if he had struck his flag and surrendered, are memorable words. Although his deck was slippery and streaming with the blood of his gallant crew, his guns every one dismounted, his colors shot away, and his vessel gradually sinking, Paul Jones; with an immortal heroism, continued to fight.

"Do you surrender?" shouted the En glish captain, desiring to prevent further bloodshed, and seeing the colors of the Ben Homme Richard gone, supposing the American hero wished to surrender. His answer was: "I have not begun to fight yet!"

The scene is thus described:-There was a lull in the conflict for an instant, and the boldest held his breath as Paul Jones, covered with blood and black with powder stain, jumped on a broken gun carriage, waving his sword, and exclaimed, in the never-to-be forgotten words: "I have not begun to fight yet!" And the result was, the tide of battle changed, and in a few minutes the British ship struck her colors and surrendered. Paul Jones, leaping from his own ship, stood upon the deck of the British vessel a conqueror and a hero. What an admirable watchword for the battle of life does the above stirring ineident give to every man. Reverse may overwhelm for a time, despair may ask hope to strike her flag, but planting the foot more firmly, bending the back more readily to the burden inposed, straining the muscles to the utmost tension, and bracing the drooping heart, let him the thickest of the conflict: I have not produces a fatal wound. begun to fight yet!" and you will find your foes fleeing from the new strength burg have returned to their dwellings .imparted, and yielding the vantage as The work of removing dead horses from you press forward in the battle strife.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—It is a well ascertained fact now that Mr. Thurlow Weed is going to Europe on some sort of a Government mission, all the reports to the contrary notwithstanding. He will probably sail about the 10th of December. The particular nature of his errand, of course, is a profound secret to everbody but himself and the Government, but there is good reason to believe that he is especially instructed to keep an eye on the English ship-yards, and report what vessels are there in preperation for the "Why, is he dead?—Well, all Boston rebels. #### President's Message.

FELLOW CITIZENS of the Senate and House Representatives:

Since your last annual assembling another year of health and bountiful harvests has passed; and while it has not pleased the Al mighty to bless us with a return of peace, we can but press on, guided by the best light He gives us, trusting that in his own good time and wise way all will yet be well.

The correspondence touching foreign affairs, which has taken place during the last year, is herewith submitted, in virtual compliance with a request to that effect made by the House of Representatives near the close of the last session of Congress.

If the condition of our relations with other nations is less gratifying than it has usually been at former periods, it is certainly more satisfactory than a nation so unhappily distracted as we are, might reasonably have apprehended.

In the month of June last, there were some grounds to expect that the maritime powers, which, at the beginning of our domestic difficulties, so unwisely and unnecessarily, as we think, recognized the insurgents as beligerent, would soon recode from that position, which has proved only less injurious to themselves than to our own country. But the temporary reverses which afterwards befel the national arms, and which were exaggerated by our own disloyal citizens abroad, have hitherto delayed the act of simple justice. The civil war, which has so radically changed for the moment the occupations and habits of the American people, hus necessarily disturbed the so-cial condition, and affected very deeply the prosperity of the nations with which we have carried on a commerce that has been steadily increasing throughout a period of half a cen-

It has, at the same time, excited political ambitions and apprehensions, which have produced a profound agitation throughout the civilized world. In this unusual agitation we have forborne from taking part in any controversy between foreign states and between purties or factions in such States.

We have attempted no propagandism and ac-knowledge no revolution. But we have left to every nation the exclusive conduct and management of its own affairs.

Our struggle has been of course contemplated by foreign nations with reference less to its own merits than to its supposed and often exaggerated effects and consequences resulting to those nations themselves Nevertheless, complaint on the part of this Government, even if it were just, would certainly be un-

The treaty with Great Britain for the suppression of the slave trade has been put into operation, with a good prospect of complete success. It is an occasion of special pleasure to acknowledge that the execution of it on the part of Her Majesty's Government has been marked with a jealous respect for the authority of the United States, and the rights of their moral and loyal citizens.

The convention with Hanover for the abolition of the Stadt Dues, has been carried into full effect under the act of Congress for that coast could not be established and vigorously enforced in a season of great commercial activity like the present, without committing occasional mistakes and inflicting unintentional injuries upon foreign nations and their subjects. A civil war occuring in a country where foreigners reside, and carry on trade under treaty stipulations, is necessarily fruitful of complaints of the violation of neutral rights. All such cellisions tend to excite misapprehensions, and possibly to produce mutual reclamations between nations which have a common interest in preserving peace and friendship. In clear cases of these kinds, I have, as r possible, heard and redressed complaints which have peen presented by friendly powers. There is still, however, a large and augmenting number of doubtful cases in which the Government is unable to agree with the governments whose protection is demanded by the claimants. There are, moreover, many cases in which the United States or their citizens suffer wrongs from the naval or military authorities of foreign nations, which the governments of those States are not at once prepared to redress. I have proposed to some of the foreign States thus interested, mutual conventions to examine and adjust such complaints. This proposition has been made especially to Great Britain, to France, to Spain and to Russia. In each case it has been kindly received, but has not yet been formerly adopted. I deem it my duty to recommend an appropriation in pehalf of the owners of the Norwegian bark Admiral Tordinskiold, which vessel was in May, 1861, prevented by the commander of the blockading force off Charleston from leaving that port with a cargo, notwithstanding a similar privilege had shortly before been granted to an English vessel. I have directed the Secretary of State to cause the papers in the case to be communicated to the proper committees.

Applications have been made to me by many free Americans of African descent to favor heir emigration, with a view to such colonization as was contemplated in recent acts of Congress. Other parties, at home and abroadsome from interested motives, others upon patriotic considerations, and still others inby philanthropic sentiments, have suggested similar measures: while on the other hand, several of the Spanish American Republics have protested against the sending of such colonies to their respective territories. 788 16.

Under these circumstances I have declined to move any such colony to any State without first obtaining the consent of its government, with an agreement on its part to receive and protect such emigrants in all the rights of freemen. And I have at the same time offered to the several States situated within the tropics or having colonies there, to negotiate with them, subject to the advices and consent of the Senate, to favor the voluntary emigration of persons of that class to their respective territories, upon condition which shall be equal.

Liberia and Hayti are as yet the only countries to which colonists of African descent from here could go with certainty of being received, and adopted as citizens, and I regret to say that such persons as contemplate colonization do not seem as willing to migrate to those countries as to some others. nor so will ing as I think their interest demands. I believe, however, the opinion among them in this respect is improving, and that ere long there will be an augmented and considerable migration to both these countries from the United

The new commercial treaty between the United States and the Sultan of Turkey has been carried into execution. A commercial and consular treaty has been negotiated with Liberia, and a similar negotiation is now pend-ing with the Republic of Hayti. A considera ble improvement of the national commerce is expected to result from these measures.

Our relations with Great Britain, France Spain, Portugul, Russia, Prussia, Denmark, Sweden, Austria, the Netherlands, Italy, Rome and the other European States, remain undis turbed. Very favorable relations also contin-ve to se maietained with Turkey, Morocco,

During the last year there has not only been no change of our foreign relations with the independent States of our own continent, but more friendly sentiments than have heretofore existed are believed to be entertained by these neighbors, whose safety and progress are so in-timately connected with our own. This statement especially applies to Mexico, Nicaragua, Costa Bica, Hondurus, Peru and Chilli. Mil wiew to the publication of its result at home and in foreign countries -a result which cannot fail to be auspicious.

The condition of the finances will elaim your most diligent consideration. The vast expenlitures, incident to the military and naval operations required for the suppression of the reellion, have hitherto been met with a prompitude and certainty unusual in similar circumstances, and the puelic credit has been fully

The suspension of specie payments by the banks, soon after the commencement of your last session, made large issues of United Siates notes unavoidable. In no other way could the payment of the troops, and the satisfaction of other just demands be so reconcilable, or so well provided for. The judicious legislation of Congress securing the receivability of these notes for loans and internal duties and making them a legal tender for other debts, has made them an universal currency, and has satisfied, partially at least, and for the time, the long felt want of an uniform circulating medium, saving thereby to the people immense sums in discounts and exchanges. A return to specie payments, however, at the earliest period compatible with due regard to all the interests concerned, should ever be kept in view. Fluctuations in the value of currency are always injurious, and to reduce these fluctuations to the lowest possible point will always be a leading purpose in wise legisla-Convertibility-prompt and certain convertibility into coin is generally acknowledged to be the best and surest safeguard against them, and it is extremely doubtful whether a circulation of United States notes, payable in coin and sufficiently large for the wants of the circulation of United States notes, payable in coin and sufficiently large for the wants of the people, can be permanently, usefully and safely maintained. Is there then any other mode in which the necessary provision for the public wants can be made and the great advantages of a safe and uniform currency secured?

I know of none which promises such certain results, and is, at the same time, so unobjectionable, as the organization of Banking Associations, under a general act of Congress, well guarded in its provisions. To such associations the Government might furnish circulating under the supervision of proper officers, being uniform in appearance and security, and convertible always into coin, would at once protect labor against the evils of a vicious currency, and facilitate commerce by cheap and safe exchanges. A moderate reservation from the interest on the bones would compensate the United States for the preparation and distribution of the notes and a general supervision of the bones would compensate the United States for the preparation and distribution of the notes and a general supervision of the bones would compensate the United States for the preparation and distribution of the notes and a general supervision of our country believes slavery is right under the supervision of proper officers, being uniform in appearance and security, and convertible always into coin, would at once protect labor against the evils of a vicious currency, and facilitate commerce by cheap and safe exchanges. tribution of the notes and a general supervision of the system, and would lighten the burden of that part of the public debt employed as securities. The public credit, moreover, would be greatly facilitated by the steady market demand for Government bonds, which the adoption of the proposed system would create.

It is an additional recommendation of the measure, of considerable weight in my judgment, that it would reconcile, as far as possible, all existing interests, by the opportunity offered to existing institutions, to reorganize offered to existing institutions, to reorganize under the act, substituting only the secured uniform national circulation for the local and various circulation, secured and unsecured,

The reports of the Secretary of War and of the Navy are herewith transmitted. These reports, though lengthy, are scarcely more than brief abstracts of the very numerous and extensive transactions and operations conduc-ted through these Departments. Nor could I give a summary of them here upon any princlrle which would admit of it being much shorter than the reports themselves. I therefore content myself with laying the reports before you and asking your attention to them.

It gives me pleasure to report a decided improvement in the flushcial condition of the Post office De-349,295 40, which embraced revenue from all the States of the Union for three-quarters of that year.—Notwithstanding the cessation of revenue from the so called seceed States during the last fiscal year, the increase of the correspondence of the least fiscal year. so called se-seled States during the last fiscal year, the increase of the corrospondence of the loyal States has been sufficient to produce a revenue during same year of 35,299,820 50, being only $50,000 least than was denied from all the States in the Union during the previous year. The expenditures show a still more lavourable result. The amount expended in 1861 was $13,006,739 11. For the last year the amount has been reduced to $11.125,361 13, showing a decrease of about $2,481.600 in the expenditures as compared with the preceding year, and about $3,750,000 as compared with the fiscal year 1800.

The deficiency in the Department for the previous year was $4,557.965 9R. For the last fiscal year it was reduced to $2,112 814 57. These favourable results are in part owing to the cessation of mail service in the insurrectionary States, and in part to a careful review of all expenditures in that Department on the interest of sconomy. The efficiency of this postal service, it is believed, has also been much improved.

The Postmaster General has also opened a correspondence, turping the department of State, with foreign governments proposing a convention of postal representatives, for the purpose of simplifying the rates of foreign postage, and to expedite the foreign mails. This proposition, equally important to our adopted citizens and to the commercial intrests of this country, has been foverebly entertained and agreed to by all the governments from whom replies have been received.

I have favored the project for connecting the United States with Europe by an Atlantic telegraph, and a similar project to extend the telegraph from Sin Francisco to connect by a Pecific telegraph with the line which is being extended across the Russiau Empire.

The territories of the United Sta'es, with unimpoftant exceptions, have remained undisturbed by the civil war, and they are exhibiting such evidence of prosperity as justifies an expectation that some of them will soon be in a condition to be organized as States, and be constitutionally admitted into the Federal Union. The immense mineral resources of some of these territories ought to be developed as rapidly as possible. Every step in that direction would have a tendency to impreve the revenues of the Government and diminish the burdens of the people. It is worthy of your seiious consideration whether some extraordinary measures to promote that end cannot be adopted.

The means which suggests it e'f as most likely to be effective is a scientific exploration of the mineral regions in those territories, with a view to the publication of its result at home and in foreign countries—a result which cannot be read to the publication of its result at home and in foreign countries—a result which cannot be read to the publication of its result at home and in foreign countries—a result which cannot be read to the publication of its result at home and in foreign countries—a result which cannot be read to the publication of its result at home and in foreign countries—a result which cannot be foreign countries—a result which cannot be foreign countries—a result which cannot define the sum derived from the fact that the sum here stated as arising trong the fact that the enems here does not be sum here stated as arising trong from the fact that the teneury deproduction to exist and the sum the sum derived from the sum the teneury deportmen

I submit for your especial consideration whether our Indian system shall not be remodelled. Many wise and good men have impressed me with the belief that this can be profitably done.

I submit a statement of the proceedings of the Commissioners, which shows the progress that has been made in the enterprise of constructing the Pacific railroad; and this tuggets the earliest completion of this road and also the favorable action of Congress upon the projects now pending before them for enlarging the capacities of the great canals in New York and Illinois, as being of vital and rapidly increasing importance to the whole nation, and especially to the vast interior region hereatter to be noticed at some greater length. I propose having prepared and laid before you, at an early day, some interesting and valuable statistical information upon this subject.

The military and commercial importance of enlarging the Illinois and Michigan Canal and improving the Illinois River, is presented in the report of Col. Webster to the Secretary of War and now transmitted to Congess. I respectfully ask attenion to it.

To carry out the provisions of the act of Congress of the 15th of May last. I have caused the Department of Agriculture of the United States to be organized.—
The Commission informs me that within the period of a few months, that department has established an extensive system of correspondence and exchanges, both at home and abroad, which promises to effect highly beneficial results in the development of correct knowledge of recent improvements in agriculture in the introduction of new pr. ducts, and in the agriculturel statistics of the different States. Also, that it will soon be prepared to distribute, largely, seeds, orgals, plants and cuttings, and has already published and liberally diffused much valuable information, in anticipation of a mere elaborate report, which will in due time be furnished, embracing some valuable tests in chemical science now in progress in the laboratory.

The creation of this Department was for the

the laboratory.

The creation of this Department was for the more immediate benefit of a large class of our most valuable citizeus, and I trust that the liberal basis upon which it has been organized will not only meet your approbation, but that it will realize at no distant day all the fondest anticipations of its most sanguine friends, and become the source of advantage to all our needle.

"Physically speaking we cannot separate. We cannot remove our respective rections from each other, nor build impassable walls between them. A husband and wife may be divorced and go out of the presence and beyond the reach of each other, but the different parts of our country cannot do this. They cannot but remain face to face, and intercourse, either amicable or hostile must continue between them. s it possible then, to make that intercourse more advantageous or more satisfactory after separation than before? Can aliens make treatics easier than friends can make laws? Can treaties be more faithfully enforced between aliens than laws can among friends? Suppose you go to war-you cannot fight always, and when, after much loss en both friende? Suppose you go to war—you cannot fight always, and when, after much loss en both sides, and no gain on either, you cease fighting, the identical old question as to terms of intercourse are again upon you. There is no line, straight or crooked, suitable for a national boun dary upon which to divide. Trace through from the free and east to west, upon the line botween the free and one third of its length are rivers, easy to be crossed, and populated or soon to be populated thickly upon both sides, while nearly all its remaining length are merely surveyor's lines, over which people may walk back and forth, without any consciousness of their presence. No part of this line can be made any more difficult to pass by writing it down on paper or parchment as a na tional boundary.

The fact of separation, if it comes, gives up on The fact of separation, if it comes, gives up on the part of the sectional obligation, upon the part of the secoding section, the fugitive slave clause, along with all other constitutional obligations upon the section seeded from, while I should expect no treaty stipulation would ever be made to take its place. But there is another difficulty. The great interior region bounded east by the Alleghenies, noth by the British dominions, west by the Rocky mountains and south by the line along which the culture of corn and cotton meets, and which includes part of Virginis, part of Tennessee, all of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and the Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and the Territories of Decotah, Nebraska and part of Colorado, already has about ten millions of peo-ple, and will have fifty millions within fifty years, if not prevented by any political folly or mistake. It contains more than one third of the country owned by the United States, certainly more than one million of square miles. Once half as populous as Massachusetts already is, it would have more than seventy-five millions of people. A glance at the map shows that territo-rially speaking it is the great body of the repub-lic. The other parts are but marginal borders to the magnificient region sloping west from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, being deepest and also the richest in undeveloped resources. In the productions of provisions, grain, gras-ses, and all which proceed from them, this great interior region is materially one of the most important in the world. Ascertain from the statistics the small population of this region which has just been brought into cultivation, and also the large and rapidly increasing amount of its products, and we shall be overwhelmed with the constitution of the products. naguitude of the prospect presented. And yet this region has no sea coast, touches no ocean anywhere. As part of one nation its peeple now and may forever flud their way to Europe by New York, to South America and Africa by New Orleans, and to Asia by San Francisco; but separate our common country into two nations, as designed by the present rebellion, and every man of this great interior region is thereby out off from some one or more of the outlets, not by a physical barrier but by embarrassing and onerous trade regulations. And this is true whereever advantage or boundary line may be fixed. Place it between the now free and slave country, or place it south of Kentucky or north of Ohio, and still the truth remains, that men south of it cannot traie to any port or place north of it, except upon terms dictated by a Government foreign to them. These outlets, east, west and south, are indispensable to the well-being of the people in-habiting and to inhabit this vast interior region. Which of the three may be the best is no proper question; all are better than either, and all of right belong to that people and to their successors forever. True to themselves they will not ask where a line of separation shall be but will view rather that there shall be no such line. Nor are the marginal regions less interested in the communication to and through them to the great outside world. They, too, and each of them must have access to this Egypt of the West, without paying toll for the crossing of any national boundary.

Our national strife springs not from our parmanent past, not from the land we inhabit, not from our natural homestead. There is no possibis severing of this but would multiply and not mitigate evils among us. In all its adaptation and aptitudes, it demands union and abbors separation—in fact, it would are long force re-union, however much of blood and treasure the separation might have cost. Our strife pertains to ourselves, to the passing generation of men, and it can without convulsions be hushed forever with the pessing of one generations. In this view I recommend the adoption of the following resolution and articles amendatory to the Constitution of the United States. tion of the United States.

Resolved, By the Securie and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, two thirds of both Houses concurring, that the following articles be propocondutring, that the following articles of proposed to the legislatures or conventions of the saveral States as amendments to the Constitution of the United States, all or any of which articles when ratified by three fourths of the said legislation. tures or conventions, to be valid as part or parts of said constitution, viz:
Article—Every State wherin slavery now exists, which shall abolish the same therein, at any time or times before the first day of January, in the war of our Lord one thousand nine hundred,

The emancipation will be unsatisfactory to the advocates of perpetual slavery, but the length o time should greatly mitigate their dissatisfaction. The time spares both races from the evils of sudden derangement, in fact from the necessity of who are to receive the compensation. Doubtless, some of those who are to pay, and not to receive, will object; yet the measure is both just and economical. In a certain seuse, the liberation of slaves is the ecatruction of property—property acquired by descent or by purchase, the same as say the property. It is no less true for having been often said that the people of the South are not more responsible for the original introduction of this property, than are the people of the North, and when it is remembered how unless the people of the North, and when it is remembered how unless the people of the pay and the profits in dealing in them, it may not be quite safe to say, that the South has been more responsible than the North for its continuance. If then for a common object, this property to be sacrificed, is it not just that it be done at a common charge? And if, with less money, or money more easily paid, we can preserve the benefits of the Union better than we can by the war alone, is it not also economical to do it? Let us consider it, then. Let us ascertain the sum we have expended in the war since the compensated easneigation was proposed, last March, and consider whether, if that meature had been promptly accepted by even some of the slave States the same sum would not have done.

If so, the messure would save money, and in that view, would be a prudent and economical measure. Cortainly it is not so casy to pay someting as it is to pay an thing, but is easier to pay a larger one, and it is to pay it before we are able. The war requires them at once. The aggregate sum necessary for compensation of course we wild be large, but it would require a course we wild be large, but it would require a course we wild be large, but it would require a course we wild be large, but it would require a course we wild be large, but it would require a course we wild be large, but it would require a course we wild be large, but it would require a creaty cash, nor the bonds even any faster than the manicipation progresses. Thi ready cash, nor the bonds even any faster than the emancipation progresses. This might not and probably would not close before the end of the thirty-seven years. At that time we shall probably have a hundred millions of people to share the burden instead of thirty-one millions as now. And not only so, but the increase of our population may be expected to continue for a long time after that period, as rapidly as before, because our territory will not have become full.

I do not state this inconsiderately. At the same ratio of increase which we have maintained on an average from our first national census in 1790 until that of 1860, we should in 1900 have a population 103,203,415, and why may we not continue that ratio far beyond that period. Ou abundant room, our broad national homestead, is our ample resource. Were our territory as limited as are the British Isles, very certainly limited as are the British Isles; very certainly our population could not expand as stated. Instead of receiving the foreign born as men, we should be compelled to send part of the native born away. But such is not our condition. We have 2,963,000 square miles. Europe has 3,800,000, with a population averaging 73½ persons to the square mile. Why may not our country at some time average as many? Is it less fertile! Has it more waste surface, less mountains, rivers lakes, deserts or other causes? Is it inferior to Enrope in any natural advantage? If so, ther we are at some time to be as populous as Europe
—how soon! As to when this may be, we can —how soon! As to when this may be, we can judge by the past and the present. As to when it will be, if ever, depends much on whether we maintain the Union. Soveral of our States are above the average of Europe—73½ to the square mile. Massachusetts has 157, Rhode Island 133, Connecticut 99, New York and New Jersey each. 86 Also, the two other great States of Pennsylvania and Ohio are not far below, the former having 63, and the latter 59. The States already bove the European average, except New York have increased in as rapid a ratio since passing that point as ever before, while not one of theu is equal to some other parts of our country in natural capacity for sustaining a dense population Taking the ratio in the aggregate and we find its constation and ratio of increase for the several decimal periods to be as follows: 1790— 392.827

1800— 5,305,937; 35.02 per cent. of increase.
1810— 7.239,314; 36.45 per ct. ratio of increase.
1820— 9,638,121; 33.31 " " " " 1830—12,868,620; 38.49 " " " 1840—17,003,455; 32.69 " " " 1850—23,101,876; 35.68 " " " 1860—31,443,790; 35.58 " " "

1800—23,114,3790; 35.58

This shows an average decimal increase of 34.60 per cent, in population through the seventy years, from our first be our last census yet taken.

It is seen that the ratio of increase at no one of the seven periods, its either two per cent below or two per cent abeve the average, thus showing how inflexible, and coased quently how reliable the law of increases in curvase is. Assuming that it will continue, it gives the following results:—1876, 42,223,341; 1880, 50,97,216; 1890; 76,977,32; 1990, 193, 294,415; 1910, 188,918,522; 1930, 186,964,335; 1930, 254,880,914.

These figures show that our country may be as populous as Europe. Now, at some point between 1020 and 1930, say about 1925, our territory at 73/4 persons to the square mile, being of the capacity to constant 37,125,200, said we will reach this too, it would not ourselves raininguish the chances by the folly and eyils of distillinated by long and exhausting wars, springing from the only great element of national discord among as. While it cannot be foresees exactly how match one huge example of secession, breeding lesses one indefinitely, would retard population, civilization, and prosperity, he one can don't that the extention it would be very great and injurious.

doubt that the extension is would shorten the injurious.

The proposed enumerication would shorten the war, perpension begins the small of the country. With these, we should say all the emancipation would sest together with our other debt, easier, than we should pay our other debt without it. If we had allowed our sit satisfies debt without it. If we had allowed our sit satisfies debt without it. If we had allowed our sit satisfies debt to rue at six per cent, see any new sample satisfies debt to rue at six per cent, see any new sample satisfies debt to rue at six per cent, see any new sample satisfies and thought any new of the principal artificient, each man of us would be seen to the sample satisfies and man of us would never the sample satisfies and man of us would never the same sample satisfies and man of us would never the same sample satisfies and man of us would never the same sample satisfies and sample sample satisfies and sample sample owe less upon that debt now than each man owed owe less upon that deet now than each man upon it then.

This is because our increase of men through the whole period has been greater than six per cent, has run faster than the interest upon the debti Thus time alone relieves the debtor nation so long as its population increases faster than the unpaid interest accumulates upon the debt. This fact would be no excuse for delaying the payment of what is justly due, but it shows the great importance of time in this connection, the great advantage of the golicy ly which we shall not have to pay until we number one hundred millions, what we would have to pay now. which we shall not have to pay until we number one hundred millions, what we would have to pay now, when we numeer but 31 millions. In a word, it shows that a dollar will be much harder to pay for the war than will be a dollar for enancipation on the proposed plan, and then the latter will cost no blood; no prectous life. It will be a saving of both.

As to the second article, I think it would be impracticable to return to bondage the class of persons therein contemplated. Some of them doubtless in the property sense belong to loyal owners; and hence provision is made in this article for compensating such.

The third article relates to the future of the freed people. It does not oblige, but merely authorizes of said constitution, viz:

Control of the second of the

Article—Revey State wherin slavery now exists, which shall sholish the same therein, set and exists, which shall sholish the same therein, set and the vipe of the same therein, set and the vipe of the same belong to toyal owners; and street, which shall sholish the same therein, set and the United States components from the United States, bearing interest at the rate of for each lave show to have been therein by the eighth cannot on time within such fittee, and interest shall begin to run upon any such bonde out from any proceed at the completion of the abolishment, as proport time of its delivery as a forestid, and at its instead that their presence would injure and state broads so received, or the value thereof, and all interest shall refund to the United States the bonds so received, or the value thereof, and all interest paid thereon.

Article—All slaves who shall have engiged at the same rates as is provided for the bonds so received, or the value thereof, and all interest paid thereon.

Article—All slaves who shall have engiged at the same rates as is provided for the thought of the same of the way that no slaves shall be transmissed for the way that no slaves shall be transmissed for the mat the same rates as is provided for the way that no slaves shall be transmissed to the same shall refund to the United States. The same shall be transmissed to the same rates as is provided for the same proper into the same rates as is provided for the same rates as is provided for the same rates as a provided for the same rates whether to receive them?

Again, as practice proves more than theory in any case, has there been any irruption of colored people northward, because of the abolishment of slavory in this District last Spring?
What I have said of the proportion of free colored persons to the whites in the District, is from the census of 1800, having no reference to persons called contrabands, or those made by the Act of Congress shollishing slavery here.

census of 1869, having no reference to persons called contrabands, or those made by the Act of Congress abolishing slavery here.

The plan consisting of these articles is recommended, not but that a restoration of the National authority would be accepted witnout its adoption. Nor will the war ner proceedings under the proclamation of Sept. 22, 1882, be stayed because of the recommendation of this plan. Its timely adoption, I doubt not, would bring restoration, and thereby stay both. And notwithstanding this plan, the recommendation that Congress provide by law for compensating any State which may adopt emancipation before this plan shall have been acted upon, is hereby carnestly renewed. Such would be only an advance part of the plan, and the same arguments apply to both.

This plan is recommended as a means not in exclusion of, but additional to all others for restoring and proserving the national authority throughout the Union. The subject is presented exclusively in its economical aspect. The plan would I am continuous economical aspect. When a payment would cost considering amounts and manner of payment, would be easier paid than will the additional cost of the war, if we rely solely upon force. It is worth much, very much, that it would cost cost no blood at all.

The plan is proposed as permanent constitutional ration.

We say, "We are for the Union." The world will not forget that we say this. We know how to save this Union. The world knows we do know how save it. We—aven we here—hold the power and bear the responsibility. In giving freedom to the slave we assure freedom to the free—honorable alike in what we give and what we preserve. We shall nobly save or meanly lose the last, beat hope of earth, Other means may succeed; this could not fai. The way is plain, peaceful generous, just—a way which, if followed, the world will ever appland and God must forever bless.

On the infirmities of youth and maturity, disclosing the secret follies of both sexes of all ages, causing debility, nerrousness, depression of spirits, palpitation of the heart, suicidal imaginings, involuntary emissions, blushings, defective memory, indigestion and lassitude, with confessions of thrilling interest of a Boarding School Miss, a College Student and a young Married Lady, &c.
