WOULD call the attention of Farmers and others to my TWO-HORSE LEVER POWER, which has been thrroughly tested and proven to be. I think, a power that must supersede all Endless Chain power or the old Lever. It is of very Light Draught, and can be moved from place to place readily, it being fixed on wheels with tounge &c., complete, and can be placed in position for work in less time than any other kind of power. The exceeding cheapness of the machine is its greatest recommendation.

From the Vineland Rural. INVITATION TO VINELAND.

BY MRS. SPAULDING. Come to Vineland! come to Vineland! From the city's stifled air-From the snowy northern mountains— From the old farm worn and bare;

Come away from old New England-

Come, too, from the far North-west, where alike the chains of Winter Bind in slavery Nature's breast. Come and meet us! not as strangers, But with Friendship's clasping hand, And in time we'll reap together Golden harvests from the land. Come! and claim the idle acres,

That wild flowers now entwine-And create a hundred Edens Righ with fruits of tree and vine. Come and join us! here together-From the different States we meet— Some allured by fresh sea breezes From the dusty city street; Others drawn by hope of dwelling Under their own vine and tree,

Where they may be fearless-free! Some hail from New England homesteads-Some from summer Illinois-Some from fair Missouri's border, Where guerrilla bands annoy; Some from far-off Minnesota-Some from old 'Sylvania's vales— But still from the dear old Union

Where no foe can dare molest them

Every glad new-comer hails. Come and join us, then in Vineland ! Hasten while there yet is room-Come! with ready hands to help us Make cur sweet wild Eden bloom : Bring but hope and faith and courage-Health is waiting for you here; Come and join us, then, in Vineland Come, partake of Vineland cheer! This establishment the presence of princes. It is well consists of stupendous frame buildings, known that few men were more indusgreat furnace stacks, hot blast furnaces, towering chimneys, many puddling furnaces, steam boilers, steam engines, great rolls and ponderous fly-wheels. Besides these there are some curious and magnificent contrivances for elevating ore, coal and limestone, and for conveying iron.-The fly-wheels have twelve feet radi and solid irons, each twelve by fourteen inches in thickness, and seventy-two feet in their revolving circuit. The blast-furnaces are vast receptacles for hot gas, being eight by ten yards square at the base, and thirty yards in height, and composed of sumptuous masonry. Here is a set of boilers, eight in number, each twenty feet in length; next to these, two others thirty feet in length; while there is another set, twelve in number, forty feet in length. These are all heated by the gas from the draft of the ore furnaces. Between the two great ore furnace stacks there is a snug building, twenty feet square at the base, and four stories high, inclosing a great collosal cast-iron tower, in which is fixed a steam engine, with an upright cylinder six feet in diameter, having seven feet stroke. Above this is placed the enormous blast-cylinder ten feet in diameter. Attached to these are "flys," having twelve feet radi and cubic iron rims one foot in thickness. With quick and steady strokes and with tremendous force the engine gives momentum to these two great flys, compressing the measure of air caught in the capacious cylinder, driving a terrible blast into the furnaces. The roar of the blast at the valves is most hideous, and the whisgle. Each of those large furnaces runs about twenty-four ton of iron per day.-The price of the iron in market is about short of that complete success which they twenty-four dollars per ton.

In another part of Danville, covering five grand departments. The first department contains three sumptuous furnace stacks, with the appendant blasts and engines placed in a horizontal position, instead of upright as at the other furnace. The next department is for moulding and running the most gigantic eastings, such as rolls, fly-wheels, &c.-The third department contains a rolling mill for making railroad rails. The 4th and fifth departments are for puddling and rolling iron; each containing about twenty puddling furnaces, with as many squeezer. Here the blooms are boiled, kneaded and worked in the furnaces into great globulous masses, which are their spitting, squirting, raining volcanic fire, and making terrible explosive sounds, the uncouth mass must pass the full circuit of the fluted wheels; nor do they then escape the crocodile, for they are handed into its jaws, where the hot stood nearly a quarter of a mile down the morsel is chewed, (seemingly with satisfaction,) as long as the workmen hold and turn it in its mouth. Next this iron suffers the pressure of the rolls, and in bars of various sizes and forms it obtains the quality of wrought iron. The mountains around Danville are full of veins of iron ore, from ten to fifteen feet in thickness. There is one pit ctose by the furnace, where rock ore is per cent. pure iron—no vein is worked quarter's, where he asked: as yet below the water line.

REPORTER.

Soon after the telegraph was put in op-eration on the line of the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad in Martin county one of the natives stepped into the office and wanted to know the price of pork in Cincinnatti. In a few moments an answer came, with a charge of thirty-five cents for the information; but the 'hosier' was too smart to be caught in that way, and

BE DILIGENT IN BUSINESS."

Franklin has somewhere said, that he wed a considerable share of his success n life to the impression made upon him, trious. It is equally well known that, while he began his career a poor boy, he lived to be an honored ambassador at the Court of the proudest monarch in Christendom. He was an example, therefore, of the literal fulfillment of the text.

But he was not the only man who relized its truth: We doubt, indeed, if any man ever succeeded in life, who was not diligent in busines. The supposed instances to the contrary, so often popularly quoted, invariably prove fellacious when rigidly examined. Curran, the great Irish orator, was said to have cloquence native born. But, on the contray, he has left it on record, that he took he greatest pains to perfect his elocution, his gestures, and his knowledge of law. Burke, the British Cicero, built up the edifice of his fame, by slow, persevering, laborious effort. The late Stephen Girard amassed his colassal fortune by assiduous attention to business. Clay, Webster anh Calhoun all worked hard. And Napoleon the first, who was a born genius, if ever man was, achieved most of what he did, by unceasing labor, often dictating to several secretaries at once, and always tiring out everybody

If these great men achieved distinction only by their diligence in business, or even if this, as none can deny, was the principal cause of their success, how can those of inferior abilities expect to prosper, unless they follow the same example? He who neglects his business will soon find his business neglecting him. Abilwho think to succeed by doing half a

But tens of thousands who could not wait to enjoy life they had won the right to it by "diligence in business," have gone hopelessly down, in the full meridian of existence, like the crew of a leaky ship, sinking in sight of harbor, because they ate and drank and made merry, when they should have been working at the pumps.

A Memphis, Tenn., correspondent tells the following amusing story: ne iollowing amusing story:

Yesterday a bereaved patriarch applied to Gen. Sherman, to learn how he could reclaim his runaway slaves. "I know of only one way, sir," replied the General, " and that is through the United States Marshal." The unsuspecting planter started tn anxious pursuit of the officer, being taken out, that will run eighty and was at last directed to Col. Hilyar's

"Oh yes," replied Col. Hidyar, who perceived the joke; "he undoubtedly is, the law prescribes."

"Is he in town?" "I don't know. but I suspect not." "When do you think he left?"
"About a year ago, I fancy."

At last it dawned upon the planter's brain that since the United States officers were driven out and the national courts broken up, the fugitive law is not in operation. He went back to Gen. Sherman, and inquired sadly if there was no other way of recovering his chattels.

"None to my knowledge, sir."

It is highly important, in view of the prevalent high prices of all articles of consumption, the unusual taxes to which we are subjected, and the inclement season upon which we have just entered, diligent in business" should stand in that just notions of economy should prevail. A proper attention to this subject will go far to alleviate suffering and want and to promote substantial comfort. It is a great mistake to suppose that economy and discomfort are convertible terms, and such a construction proceeds from entirely false notions as to its nature, just as the idea that religion consists in harsh austeritic and a "sad coun- rise. If we look over the list of rich tenance." Prince Albert's Farm. -Prince Albert's farm is situated near Windsor Castle, about twenty miles S. W. of the city, occupies one thousand acres, one hundred of which are never plowed, and is wooded and sown with orchard grass, top dressed every four years with liquid manure. The arable land is subsoiled every two or three years with four enormously large Scotch horses, driven tandem; rotation of crops much the same as ours, without the Indian corn.

Barley and oats are crushed in a mil driven by steam; eighty short-horn and Alderney cows are kept; cowstalls made of iron; iron troughs always full of water in each stall, with waste-pipe to gutter behind them, and thence to manure-sheds from which it is pumped into carts similar to ours for watering the streets, and sprinked over the grass. Keeps none but Suffolk and Berkshire pigs; prefers former on account of their taking on fat; as one of the swine herds said, "a dale of a fat a lale quicker."

The pig pens are of stone, and paved with stone, being lower in the centre, from which a pipe conducts the liquid manuer to keep. What a Resolute Woman can do.

An interesting case has come to my knowledge within a day or to, (says the Washington correspondent of the New The power of capital, they say, is so York Tribune) where a New England great, that success is impossible without woman, alone and friendless, achieved a great reform in one of our hospitals .-The Shrgeon having charge of this particular hospital was a brute, treating the men in his charge, visitors, and indeed the Surgeons beneath him, with contemptuous cruelty. Having political influence, it was not an easy matter to remove him, though there were a hundred acts of his, any one of which would or should be considered sufficient cause for his instant dismissal from the service.-But every one beneath him were afraid to take the first step, for fear the brutal man would turn upon the person begining the complaint, and with his superior position and influence, crush the com-

> One day a New England woman, came to the hospital to see her sick son. She soon met the chief Surgeon, and was treated with coarse violence. If he could have his way, he said, he would not permit a woman to come near the hospital. It was in vain that she urged that she had not seen her boy for long months, and that he was now very ill, and perhaps dying. The monster con-tinued to revile her, but dared not refuse her admittance to see her son. She soon found the Surgeon in immediate attendance upon her boy, and told from the chief Surgeon. He replied that he was not at all surprised -the chief Surgeon treated everybody brutally.

"Why then, do you submit to such a ernel outrage?" was the spirited woman's "I suppose we are all of us afraid to make the complaint against him!" was the reply. The woman found that her son was incurably ill, and was the proper subject of discharge. The assistant Surgeon so nformed her. She then sought the chief Surgeon, and asked him to make a report to the Surgeoh General upon the condition of her son. He refused, with a dread-

The first act of the Surgeon General was to order the Surgeon-incharge to make a report upon the case of the woman's son. The report was returned the very next day, and its language was insolent in the extreme. The Surgeon was angry at the woman's interference. "This is enough," said the Surgeon General. "A man who will send me such a report is capable of all you charge against him. I will not take the trouble to examine the case. He shall be dismiss-off by the murderous fire of rebel riffemen conealed among the houses of the city. Gen. Burnside opened upon the city with 148 pieces artillery, setting the city on fire in sever al places, and driving the enemy from their shelter. A second attempt was made at noon to construct the bridges which could not be effected without driving off the sharp-shooters 176 guns, loaded with shot and shell, were opened on the town. This proving ineffectual astorming party of 100 picked men crossed the river and drove off the enemy, killing sev eral, and capturing 100 rebel prisoners. The bridges were then built, and the troops cross ed and took possession of the city. A crossing the city was occupied by our troops the enemy opened fire upon it, adding much to the de truction. Scarcely a house in the city that s not injured. On saturday the fighting was very severe and desperate. The rebels extended their works. Five thousand Union oldiors have been killed and wounded. Battle of Fredericksburg.

The magnitude of the battle of Fredericks burg, on Saturday last, is made more and more apparent by the fuller details that have reach ed us. If merely a reconnoisance, as has been suggested, it was one on as grand a scale as to differ only in name from a pitched battle: f we consider the force engaged, the extent of the line of battle, or the casualties suffered.— Of course it is impossible to arrive at a cor rect estimate of the force of the enemy that was actually employed; but it is now known that the attacking force, on our side, consisted of six entire army corps, and that of these, five were actively engaged—involving a material strength of at least 100.000 men. the line of battle extended from a point one and a half miles from Fredericksburg, where Sumner was engaged, to the extreme left of Franklin's position, which could not have been less than four miles east of the city, forming a grand line of battle at least slx miles in extent. The full extent of the casualties is not yet revealed, but it is announced that the killed, wounded and missing of Franklins Grand Division, consisting of two army corps, reach the fearful amount of 5,932. To these are yet to be added the losses of Sumner's Grand Division, which probably suffered even yet more heavily than Franklin's since it was hurled directly against the line of the rebel fortifications; and of Hooker's—one corps of which took an energetic part in the tremendous conflict. Th loss of officers, in this as in all our great battles has been fearful, the imperfect list of those in Franklin's Division alone informing us that of Generals there were two killed and two wounded; of Colonels, five wounded; of Lieut. Cols., four wounded; of Majors, one killed and seven wounded; of Captains, two killed and twenty two wounded; of Adjutants one killed and seven wounded; and of Lieutenauts fifty-three wounded, besides a long array of non commissioned officers.

force employed, the extent of the line engaged and the large figures of the casualties, leaves little room for doubt that the battle of Saturday was commenced by Gen. Burnside with a of entrenchments. It was a bold step and the fortified line of the enemy, and the night closed upon a fruitless battle, leaving us slight cause for congratulation beyond the splendid heroism that was exhibited by our troops .-Aside from the important fact of having established the perfect steadiness and invincible determination of his soldiers by Gen. Burnside, the advantages seem to have been on the side of the enemy—their loss having been much less than ours, since they fought behind entrenchments; and valuable time having been gained to them, which they turned to good account by adding to the strength of their po-

But it is not to be presumed that because this first serious attempt was not crowned with complete success, another yet more seri ous one will either be long delayed or meet with a similar fate. Since the battle of Saturday, we are informed that Gen. Sigel has joined Gen. Burnside, reinforcing him by at least 50,000 veteran troops, and placing it in his power to perform important flanking movements in combination with a direct attack upon the enemy's entrenched line, for which movements the force in the field on Saturday was inadequate. Other troops have, also been thrown forward to reinforce the Army of the Potomac, and when it enters upon the next battle, with the full knowledge that has been acquired of the extent and strength of the en-emy's position, it will be with a numerical strength more fully adequate to the work to be accomplished. Our Treasury has, from month to Headquarters of the army of the Potomac. Dec. 17.—Yesterday morning, when daylight appeared, the enemy seemed to be astonished that our army had succeeded in returning to this side of the Rappahannock. We returned without losing a single man or a gun in the retrogade movement. A few soldiers who had straggled off made their appearance on the river bank after the pontoon bridges had been removed, but they vere brought over in small boats.

A few cavalry men, who were guarding a house inhabited by a private family, were not during the night, aware of our crossing, but in the morning they safely swam the rive seperated by only a few yards, rendered it necessary that everything on our part shou! on the outposts were unaware of the movement until just before daylight, when an offi-cer went to each individual man, and in a low tone ordered him to fall back. The Menageric has just been to Bridgeton and exhibited both afternoon and evening, and a dense crowd of people went to see the animals. One of the elephants refused to cross one of the bridges at Elmer's pond, and consequently had to wade around, but notwithstanding this, became out all right.

Thompson is bound to come out right. The idea has gone out that Thompson sells goods a little higher than others. That idea must and shall be changed, if selling goods still cheaper will do it. I am bound to SELL AS CHEAP OR CHEAPER than others, for cash, and as I have just got in New and Beautiful Stock of Goods, just call and examine for yourselves, and if you don't say they are cheap I will not ask you to purchase.— My stock consists, in part, of CLOTHS, CASSIMERES, VESTINGS, Suspenders, Neck-Ties, Shirt Collars, turndowns and chokers, from 1 to 15 cents. Also Hats and Caps of the very Latest Styles. My prices have always been uniform, justa fair living profit, taking from one man what I do from another, (which I have always thought was the golden rule), and not taking two profits from one, and shalf profit from another.

Manhood-How Lost! How Restored! Just Published, in a Scaled Envelope. Price 6 Cents
A lecture on the Nature, Treatment & Radical Cure of Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness; Involuntary Emissions, Sexual Debility, and Impediments to marriage generally, Nervousness, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, resulting from Self-Abuse, &c.—By ROBT, J. CULVERWELL, M. D., Author of the Green Book, &c.

The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, rings or cordials pointing out a mode of circ at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically. This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands.
