MY WIFE AND CHILD. The following lines were written by Stone-wall Jackson while he was an artillery officer in Mexico, during the war between the United States and that country. They are taken from the Richmond Examiner of Nav. 8th:

The tattoo beats—The lights are gone, The camp around in slumber lies. The night with solemn pace moves on, The shadows thicken o'er the skies; But sleep my weary eyes have flown, And sad uneasy thoughts arise.

think of thee, oh dearest one, Whose love my early life hath blest -Of thee and him-our baby son--Who slumbers on thy gentle breast. God of the tender, frail and lone, Oh, guard the tender sleepers rest;

And hover gently, hover near To her, whose watchful eye is wet-To mother, wife—the doubly dear, In whose young heart have freshly met I'wo streams of love so deep and clear, And cheer her drooping spirits yet.

Now, while she kneels before Thy Throne, Oh, teach her, Ruler of the skies, That, while by Thy behest alone, Earth's mightiest powers fall or rise, No tear is wept to Thee unknown,

No hair is lost, no sparrow dies! That thou canst stay the ruthless hands Of dark disease and soothe its pain; That only by thy stern commands The battles lost, the soldier slain-That from the distaut sea or land Thou bringest the wanderer home again.

And when upon her pillow lone Her tear-wet cheek is sadly prest. May happier visions beam upon The brightening current of her breast, No frowning look nor angry tone, Disturb the Sabbath of her rest.

Whateverfate those forms may show, Loved with a passion almost wild-By day-by night-in joy or woe-By fears oppressed, or hopes beguiled, From every danger, every foe, Oh, God! protect my wife and child!

GOOD BOOKS.

It has been very truly said, that a good book is the very best companion a is the silent teacher of generation after generation, for ages, perhaps, after the hand which penned it has mouldered into dust. In this age, when every one reads, and multitudes of bad books, calculated to corrupt the minds of the youth, are continually sent forth, it is more than ever necessary that good ones should be written and read. If parents would save their children from the evil influence of bad companions, let them procure a supply of good and useful books, with which to fill up evenings and other leisure time. Money spent thus is not wasted, as many very good people are inclined to think, it is more remu. nerative, than if put to interest. If one is unable to purchase the books he wants, there are good public libraries, and a mere trifle will secure a great amount and variety of reading, or a dollar or two, will bring a good newspaper fiftytwo times a year, containing more read- to experiment with the seed are welcome ing matter, than can be found elsewhere to them. for the same money.

Many a good hearted, promising youth has become a bad man, merely because he found nothing at home to fill up his leisure time pleasantly. If he could have had an interesting volume at seven o'clock. A collection will be at hand, when the evening lamp was taken in aid of the Soldiers' Relief Assolighted, his habit of spending his eve- ciation of that place. nings away from home, would never have been formed, and it is this habit, which leads our boys and young men into a great deal of evil. The highest praise we can bestow on a man, is to say, "he is a home man." or. "he loves his home." If the study of the Bible was made as interesting to children as other studies are, they would pursue it with far more delight. In our Sunday Schools this is affected to a great degree, but let parents procure maps, histories, and books of travel, illustrating the descriptive and historical portions of the Bible, and see how quickly the interest of their children would be awakened. Histories, Private Subscription. and Travellers works rarely fail to please | Memberships. young people, and never fail to instruct. and every family should be well supplied with them. Then the list of good and entertaining books, written especially for children, is so large and the prices so low, that parents have no excuse for not procuring a good supply. The dime which goes for cigars, or for candies, or for some other useless, or worse than useless thing, would bring delight to the little ones at home, if spent for a little book, and keep busy brains and fingers out of mischief many an hour. The morbid appetite for fiction, which is a curse to so many young persons, would, in many instances, never have been formed, if the better sort of books lasting two and a half hours, caused the had been provided for them at first. If the mind be not filled with something useful and good, it will most certainly be filled with evil, and the easiest, best, and cheapest way to fill childrens minds with noble impulses, and virtuous thoughts, is to provide for them the best books to read. This will help to make something more of boys than street loafers, and girls something better than dolls.

Battle on the Blackwater. NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The New York Herald has the details of the fight near the Blackwater. Gen. Pryor crossed the Blackwater on the night of the 28th. with three regiments of rebel infantry, four detached battalions of infantry, nine hundred cavalry, and fourteen pieces of artillery. The next night Gen. Corcoran, under the orders of Gen. Peck, advanced his troops to meet them. The rebels were found ten miles from Suffolk, and a cannouading was commenced, which, after enemy to retreat.

Gen. Corcoran advanced all his force. His infantry, with fixed bayonets, drove the rebels nearly a mile, they leaving their killed and wounded behind Gen. Corcoran continued to follow them

I will now notice the objections to the above proposition. 1st, It is argued that if the American people are free, that aders, and succeeded in sinking two and they can change their form of Govern- orippling a third. ment from a Republic to a Monarchy.-I answer No! Our fathers intended "a perpetual Union," and to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our gun-boat Mercedita, carrying eleven guns of her. Every American ought to know that the President and his Cabinet can make no laws, and are made, all have to be confirmed by the of the Confederacy.

3d Objection -But suppose Congress makes unconstitutional laws, and the that no blockade existed. President signs them, must I submit?tive, as we do our Congressmen that we with glasses elect, but the clerk instead of laboring for the merchant's interests, squanders ness, and involves him in debt. - What ly ready to run. now must the merchant do? raise a riot and kill the clerk? Certainly not, for then he would be sure to lose all that the clerk had spent, and his own life also for murder. What does the merchant do? He simply revokes the power of attorney in the same way that he gave it, was a complete success on our part, with and publishes to the world that the said clerk is no longer his agent or representative. This illustration shows how we are to act in case our national officers beand oppressive laws. Not to rise up in rebellion against "the powers that be," our Civil Government, for this would be sin against God; but to revoke the authority of our law-makers in the same tatives. Hence we see that the only right and constitutional way in which we can depose and change IS BY THE BALLOT BOX.

4th Objection-But says a Northern sympathizer, our fathers rebelled in A D. 1776, against Great Britain, and why have not the rebels in the South the same right to rebel against our Government? I answer that the cases are entirely different. Our fathers were under tive franchise, the very safe guard and bulwark of Civil Liberty. The whole number of schools is 1569. Of this number, 684 have been free during the entire year. In forty two townships the schools are all free. In fif y-eight there are no schools entirely free, and in the remaining townships, some are free throughout the year, and others

Further evidence of an increased inter est in educational matters is found in the fact that schools officers are more attentive to the performance or their duties. The schools have been more regular'y and handsome illustration, on steel, of Little frequently visited by them. They have shown more care in the selection of teach-fully colored fashionable plate and beers, who, with very few exceptions, are sides there are sixty other embellishments licensed according to law. There has of the useful and ornamental character. been some improvement, too, in the keepng of school registers, a matter of importance, which the State Superintendent presents in a manner calculated to insure Magazine, including directions for useful nereafter far more reliance upon the re-

Still further evidence of increased inerest in educat on may be found in the act, that far greater attention is now paid to the furnisting of school houses than has ever before been known among us. The number supplied with globes and R. Wheat 1 50 ... outline maps has increased two fold with- Corn, in the past two years, and only sixty four Rye, of the whole number remain destitute of Oats,

The number of female teachers in our public schools has been gradually increasng from year to year, until it now exceeds the number of male teachers. • Ten years ago the number of male teachers was more than double that of female teachers; now the whole number of males is 1,104, and the whole number of females is 1,108.

The whole number of children that have attended the public schools during the year is 132,590, which is somewhat less than the number reported last year but the reason for this is that hundreds of children between the ages of sixteen and eighteen have been called to fill the places rendered vacant at home by the

The amount of money raised and appropriated for educational purposes, as already stated, is greater than that reported last year. The increase is $23,659 94.-

GAZETTE AND REPUBLICAN. For the Legislative Session of 1893.

The present session of the Legislature of this State will be one of great public interest. Subjects of the greatest importance will come up for discussion in the Senate and Assembly and the people will look with interest for reports of the proceedings. We shall publish accurate reports of all the business of both Houses in the Daily Gazette and Republican, and such sketches of the debates as may be necessary to a correct understanding of the proceeding. The reports of the Gazette have long enjoyed an enviable reputation it shall be onr care to preserve.

We will publish the Daily Gazette and Republican for two dollars in advance for the session. The increased cost of everything connected with printing will make it necessary to adhere to these terms in all cases. -Address, JACOB R. FREESE, Publisher, Trenton, N. J.
