Camp Correspondence. Troop E, Eighth Pennsylvania Cavalry Port Conway, Va., May 17th 1863.

Mr. Editor: - Since last I wrote to you I have received the kind attentions of five different persons, who ask all manner of questions as to my last letter. They sign no name to their correspondence, but wish me to answer their impertinent questions through the columns of your paper.

It must be remembered that the entire cavalry force - with the exception of our brigade - was with Gen. Stoneman, none of them were engaged with the Army. The advance was started on Monday, April 27th, and reached the U. S. Ford, where we rested for the night. Tuesday our brigade was inactive, but the infantry and artillery were marching in solid columns all day, and little did we think that we would find an enemy in our front of sufficient strength to make us falter on the road; but such is war.

It was in this way that we were then ordered to Richards' Ford our errand being to capture a strong picket, known to be stationed there. We met no enemy until within sight of the Ford, when we discovered about thirty of the enemy resting themselves in a grove, directly in our front.

picket about two miles in our front, and at early morn we made a descent on them, and after a little skirmish we captured two officers and sixteen men, and drove the remainder to the main body, which we found to consist of a brigade of infantry in line of battle, protected by a dense wood and earthwork, and, therefore, we could not approach them without a heavy loss.

We were ordered back across the river, crossed at U. S. Ford and camped for night. The enemy brought a light battery to the bank and gave us a vigorous shelling we were forced to retire farther back. In the afternoon we were ordered to Sedgwick's assistance. The mail closes in a few minutes, and if I do not send this now, you will not get it in time for next week.

The stranger passing up from the city or Harrisburg, and viewing the various objects, the groves, the villages, that stud the pleasant banks, and the islands that alternately stripe the bright expanse of the stream, beholds stretched in the distance one long uniform ridge of the Blue Mountain, at one place cut in two, and the accorder ends of each division gracefully bowed down obeisant to the passing river.

Through these openings "Peter's Mountain" may constantly be seen in the distance with its firm body still lying athwart the valley, apparently blocking up the Susquehanna stream. Below the line of its summit, its blue side forms a velvet stripe in the horizon, lengthening in the prospect and running parallel with the lower, nearer, and brighter tinged lines and narrower stripes of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad Bridge.

After the panic had ceased, and tranquility and unity of action again restored, our regiment was withdrawn from duty, and the men laid down to rest. - At roll-call, Sunday morning, we found our loss to be fifty-one men killed and wounded, Major P. Keenan killed, and wounded and prisoner, Adjutant D. Hadoc killed, Capt. Arrowsmith, Co. B, killed. Ninety-seven horses were left on the field with all their equipments.

Originaly was this the field of some awful conflict between powers of good and evil? Were those ravines, in this close array of mountains, worn by the slow process of peaceful revolutions in the immense cycle of ages passed, with doubtful struggles and at fearful risks, as truth is wrested from the grasp of evil? Or were they sundered with fire, headlong process, and heaven defying audacity, as when rebellion and barbarian martial their energies for independence and slave license? Did the river itself clasp these notches in the mountains, or does it follow in the pathway beat down and prepared by some other agent of the Almighty in leading his hosts to victory and high destiny.

Respectfully yours, &c., BUGLER. For the West Jersey Pioneer. CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA. HARRISBURG, May 18th, 1863.

The scenery on the Susquehanna river, a few miles above Harrisburg City, is acknowledged to be as singular and beautiful as an other in the world. It is decidedly more picturesque and admirable than any other that can be found along the river; and the skillful artists have drawn from here some of the most glorious landscape views that can be found in existence.

THE STRANGER PASSING UP FROM THE CITY OF HARRISBURG, AND VIEWING THE VARIOUS OBJECTS, THE GROVES, THE VILLAGES, THAT STUD THE PLEASANT BANKS, AND THE ISLANDS THAT ALTERNATELY STRIPE THE BRIGHT EXPANSION OF THE STREAM, BEHOLDS STRETCHED IN THE DISTANCE ONE LONG UNIFORM RIDGE OF THE BLUE MOUNTAIN, AT ONE PLACE CUT IN TWO, AND THE ACCORDER ENDS OF EACH DIVISION GRACEFULLY BOWED DOWN OBEISANT TO THE PASSING RIVER.

The Susquehanna river generally devious and compliant to the inferior interlocking hills, here takes a more steady, majestic course than it is wont directly across this alternation of ridges and hollows, through the many gateways where this assemblage of abrupt, mutilated termini of four bisected ridges front each other in pairs, in an imposing manner, on each side of the bright intervening stream.

The stranger passing up from the city or Harrisburg, and viewing the various objects, the groves, the villages, that stud the pleasant banks, and the islands that alternately stripe the bright expanse of the stream, beholds stretched in the distance one long uniform ridge of the Blue Mountain, at one place cut in two, and the accorder ends of each division gracefully bowed down obeisant to the passing river.

know whether you can read this or not, I wrote it in a hurry. From your affectionate friend, ARTHUR TRUMAN.

P. S. Give the wobby heads all you have got in your shop. Excuse my mistakes, for I am in a hurry. A. T.

REPLY OF WILLIAM ZELLARS AND MOSES BONE, PRIVATES IN THE SEVENTY-FOURTH REGIMENT, O. V. I. CAMP 74th, REGIMENT, O. V. MURFREESBORO, TENNESSEE, March 19th 1863.

MR. A. TRUMAN: Dear Sir: - With wonder and astonishment, I received your letter to-day. As we were warm friends once, so I hoped to always remain; but if you are in earnest in your sentiments against your President and your government, and cannot send me a more encouraging letter, for the sacred cause in which I am willing to sacrifice life and labor, you may throw aside our former friendship, and we will know each other hereafter as strangers.

MR. A. TRUMAN: - I am allowed the privilege of addressing you a few lines in this letter. It was granted the privilege of reading the letter that you sent to William Zellars, and sir, I was sadly astonished, to think that you had been led off by a set of damned cowardly, low lived, onery set of Copperheads, who disguise themselves in the names of Democrats, when, at the time, there is not a drop of Old Hickory blood in them, and well they know it, too.

Two years ago, at this time, we were offered shelled corn in Bloomington, Ill. for ten cents a bushel. In the English markets corn was at that time ten cents a bushel higher than it is at present. - Freight are as high now as then, and but for the advance in gold not a bushel of corn could be sent at present prices from Central Illinois to Europe.

THE POLISH SCYTHIEMEN. A letter from Craow thus describes the dreaded scythemen of the Polish Army: I believe the soldiers of Russia have the credit of being able to stand a bayonet charge as well or better than those of any other nation except one, which need not be particularized for the benefit of English readers.

The tenth New Jersey Regiment. A Correspondent, writing from Suffolk, gives the description of the expedition to destroy the Seaboard Railroad, on its return to Suffolk from the successful performance of that duty.

THE POLISH SCYTHIEMEN. A letter from Craow thus describes the dreaded scythemen of the Polish Army: I believe the soldiers of Russia have the credit of being able to stand a bayonet charge as well or better than those of any other nation except one, which need not be particularized for the benefit of English readers.

A BACHELOR'S DEFENCE. Bachelors have often been abused by a certain class of people, and therefore we give publicity to the following, written by a bachelor, no doubt: Bachelors are styled by married men who have put the foot into it as only half-perfect beings, cheerless rascals, but half a pair of scissors, and many other titles are given them.

DOWN ON THE DOGS. - During the last session of the Georgia Legislature, a bill was introduced "to get rid of superfluous dogs," which bill was defeated. It was estimated that there were 100,000 superfluous dogs, that would consume enough meat to feed 5,000 men, and the wool that was lost by their killing of sheep would clothe 5,000 people the first year. The Georgia Legislature, however, maintained the right of dogs to "life, liberty and the pursuit of sheep."

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The Secretary's report of the proceedings of Teachers' Institute which we give below occupies so much space that we forbear adding anything more than to say that it was one of the most interesting sessions that have been held in this County.

A GLORIOUS DEATH.

The following papers relate the following occurrence, said to have taken place in Sussex County, in that State. A venerable old man had been deprived, by death, of the different members of his family.

CAMP WILLETTS, NEAR FALMOUTH VA., May 23, 1863.

FRIDAY MORNING.

Institute opened at the usual hour. Vocal music. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Lawrence. Reading by Mr. Richardson, "Sparticus to the Gladiators."

AFTERNOON.

Session opened with vocal music. Further consideration of the question introduced during the morning.

EVENING.

Institute opened with vocal music—"Laugh of a child." Minutes read and approved.

kind of obstacles thrown in our way by the obs, such as bridges torn up, trees felled across the road &c., but by dint of hard work an indomitable perseverance, we surmounted every obstacle, and moved on amid the jests, shouts, and songs of the men, who were in high spirits.

After two hours' rest we got the order to "fall in," and we resumed our toilsome march. Our progress was slow, owing to the obstacles before spoken of, and about sunrise we arrived at some farms about a mile this side of Carrsville.
