TWO-HORSE LEVER POWER WU-NUNDE LEVER FUNCH. I WOULD call the attention of Farmers and others to my TWO-HORSE LEVER POWER, which has been throughly tested and proven to be. I think, a power that must supersede all Endless Chain power or the old Lever. It is of very Light Draught, and can be moved from place to place readily, it being fixed on wheels with tounge &c., complete, and can be placed in position for work in less time than any otherkind of power. The exceeding cheapness of the machine is its greatest recommendation. I would refer those in want of a good power to the following persons:

For the West Jersey Pioneer. Fifth Pennsylvania Cavalry. CAMP NEAR PORTSMOUTH, VA., 2 Dec. 21st, 1863.

DEAR PIONEER: - Having a little leisare we will endeavor to give your numearound this Military Post:

We are encamped on the route from Portsmouth to Suffolk, and only four miles from the former place. As your readers are acquainted with this region geographically, owing to former active movements at and near Suffolk, it is unnecessary for us, at present, to speak of that point. Suffice it to say that, should the enemy endeavor to take Norfolk from us, they will find it no mean task, and one that must end in their defeat. The defences of Norfolk are in excellent order, and sufficiently manned to insure the safety of the place against any force that the "Repudiator," "J. D.," may have to spare, to send in this direction-Our pickets, at Suffolk, are occasion. lly driven in, and a considerable force of rebels display themselves to the vision of our boys, but their visits are short, nd little or no mischief is done, further than to raise a slight sensation in camp. The guerillas are sometimes troublesome to our pickets, and cause us to keep scouts out most of the time. A scout, in force, returned to quarters last evening, after an abscence of cleven days. during which time they made a thorough tour of the country between the Dismal Swamp and Blackwater River. They surprised a band of bush-whackers, captured a large number of them, including their leader, who proved to be Major D. Bright, of the Partizan Rangers. After giving him a hasty trial, they hung him at a cross road, about four miles from South Mills, on the Dismal Swamp canal. infantry in the party, who enjoyed the expedition amazingly. The expedition amazingly. The expedition was supported at Elizabeth City by a naward force from I val force from Roanoke Island, which conveyed the prisoners to that point .-Among the prisoners was two of the fair sex, wives of guerilla officers, and were retained as hostages for the safety of two of our colored soldiers who were captured. It was amazing to see how the sable soldiers relieved their former companions NEW GOODs from bondage. One sergeant, who had been chasing a chicken until the drops of sweat rolled down his face, was accosted by a young man of African descent. as follows:

"Whar's all you sogers gwine "

"Why, we's jis come down yar to set you niggas free. How does your massa use you?"

"O! I likes him well 'nuff. I has nuffin to do, an I 'ain't sweat like you is now, wid dat gun toaten on yer shoulder, never since de war cum on."

"Well, I'll make you sweat! Git into dat line dar in double quick time, an toat dis gun." And the poor fellow did sweat before he was released from his load, which he carried and drilled with, until the sergeant had his revenge for the in-within two weeks. Quite a number of them understood the drill very well before enlisting, owing to their having been servants in cavalry regiments. There is one battery of artillery here that is manned by Indians. They manage the guns in fine style, and seem to enjoy the target practice very much .-When not on duty they sit on the ground. around the fire, in their own native style. and do not appear to associate with their pale-faced comrades, further than in their line of duty. There is a theatre in one of the regiments near us, which is admired by the mirth-loving portion of our boys, and, it is said, does credit to the parties concerned, but as we do not visit places of that stamp, are unable to render an opinion. Re-enlisting is a subject that, at pres ent, bids fair to absorb all others. This regiment will probably rank as a veteran regiment in a short time. One hundred and twenty veteran recruits left here this morning for their homes, on a thirty day's furlough, and many others say that they are determined to serve "Uncle Sam"

until this rebellion is subdued. Gen. Getty, who has command of this division, looks well to the interests and comforts of those under his control. and has, throughout the division, the best quarters for men and horses, that we have seen since entering the service.

GIVING AWAY THE BABY.

A MOTHER'S STORY.

It was the third day after my husband's funeral, said the widow, and I was so stunned by his sudden death that I could do nothing but sit and think over it, and try to realize how it cous readers a sketch of proceedings could be so. Only the Sunday before he had little hands as the shadows of the trees were flung across the bare floor, and moved by the the same spot, the warm October sun streaming in on his bright curls, and making him look so pretty-so like a picture; but the father was gone from us forever.

It seemed to me I must see his dear face once more—that he would surely lift the latch and come in, and take our child up, and say, as he so often did, "Mother, what would you take for this little brother?" Even the buby missed him, and would come and stand at my knee calling "papa, papa," until I thought my poor heart would break.—

The two oldest children were at school; the rest were out playing, so that I was quite alone.
By and by, the baby tired of his play, and came and got up into my lap.

"Mamma cry? mamma musn't," he lisped out, and wiped my wet face with his little chubby hands. But I could only hold him clo-ser to me, and then cry more bitterly.

in their handsome carriage. They lived not far off, and were our richest neighbors. When I had invited them in and had died I had invited them in, and had dried my eyes

My heart took fright at once. They had no children, and I seemed to feel as plainly as if they had told me, that they had come to ask me for one of mine. "No, no; mother couldn't spare him." I said

"My dear woman," began Mr. Lorrimer, "have you thought seriously of the impossibility of your getting along with five children under twelve years of age? It has required all your husband's efforts to make a living for you; how can you hope to do without him?" were received at the Patent Office, and 3,887 "We offer," joined in his wife, "to take the most helpless of your little ones, to give him receipts amounted to $222,585 96, with a balall the advantages we would our own child, and surely you must see that God's hand is in

; that through us he intends to help you." I need not tell you how long I withstood all consented to give him up. When I went to dress him to go my resolution almost failed me. I lingered over every article I put on him and made every dear curl over and over before I could get it to please me, and kissed the little white shoulders until they were all rosy. But at length he was ready, and I thought he never looked so pretty. He was full of animation, for he was old enough to know what it meant to "go riding," and he clapped his hands and laughed aloud at the horses as they were driven up. I handed him to his new mother (the children supposed that he was to come tack soon.) and he never even looked at me. Oh, how jealous my aching heart grew.

When I came back into the house the first thing my eye fell on was his cradle. I could only throw myself on it and sob aloud. Then came the trial of telling the whole truth to the children. None of them seemed reconciled, and I felt that the worst was to come when my two oldest should return from school. I almost dreaded to meet them, especially Wilie; he was like his father, so quiet and calm outwardly, but hiding beneath his apparent coldness the strongest, deepest feelings. But the others went to meet them as they came home, and I was pleasantly disappointed in the way the oldest took it. He seemed to feel that I had done it for the best, and that he must hide his own sorrow for my sake. He was more thoughtful for my comfort, gentler than ever, only very still and grave.

The day nded, as the longest will at last, and it came time to go to bed. I had taken Willie to sleep down stairs near me. Since his father's death, the other children slept just above us. Well, when I came to lie dow.

there was the empty pillow! Baby had alsult.

There is a regiment of colored cavalry at Norfolk, which was voluntarily raised such as the could get it, and slept with one little warm hand on my neck. All my grief broke out afresh when I thought of him. Willie raised up at last and said earnestly: "Mother, it's Charlie you are crying for,

"Yes," I answered; "I know it's for the best, but, oh, it's so hard to give him up."
"Mother," continued the child, "when father died we knew that it was all for the best, because God took him from us; but I have heen thinking ever since we laid down how poor little Charlie must be crying for you, and how God gave him to us to love him and keep him; and now you have given him away. If He had wouldn't He have given him to them at first?

The childs words carried more weight with them than all the arguments of my rich neigh-bors. After considering a moment, I said im-"Oh, if I only had him back he should never go away again, no matter how poor we might The moon was shining so brightly that it was almost as bright as day, and presently Willie

"Mother, it's only half a mile across the fields, and they wont go to bed for a long time at Mr. Lorrimer's; let us go and get Charlie. Why, mother. I seem to hear him crying now.' Urged by the child's entreaties and the fond promptings of my own heart, I consented. I think I never walked half a mile so quickly in my life, and neither of us spoke unlil we reached the mausion. Then we stopped a mo-ment for breath, and sure enough we could hear baby screaming at the top of his voice. We went round to the sitting room door and knocked. They seemed half frightened when they saw who it was, but asked us in politely. hired nurse was walking with the child up and down the floor, trying to pacify it. Mrs. Lorrimer had wearied herself out, and was ying on a lounge.

"Come to mother," Willie said, and brought the little fellow to me at once.

How he clung to me, still sobbing, yet smiling all the while to find himself in my arms. "I cannot give him up," I said at last, when I could get my voice clear. "You must let me

They evidently thought me the silliest of wo men, but their cold words only made me the more determined, and we started back in less than half an hour after we came I carrying, the baby; Willie offered to help me, but I fe.t as though I could carry him in my arms for-

When I had laid him in bed, now fast paleep, but still sobbing, and reaching out his little hands to feel if I was there, I said, "God helping me, come what will, I will never part with one of my living children again; and I never did. I need not tell you how wild with joy the rest of the children were when they found the baby in bed next morning; they almost fought over the little fellow, and from that day forth it was their greatest pleasure to amuse Charlie, and have him with them.

When the affir came to be known, many blamed me, and many favors that my rich neighbors might have done me they witheld, I think, for my folly, as they called it. But a been sitting with me, watching the baby as he sat in the sunshine laughing and clapping his little hands as the shadows of the trees were We had many trials, and often scarcely a crust of bread in the house; but our hardships only passing breeze. Now the child was sitting in the same spot, the warm October sun stream-God took care of one for me; but as Willie said, we knew that was for the best. The rest mir ried in the course of time and left me. But the prop of my old days, the one whose industry and management gave me this plentiful and comfortable home, has never left me since the day I gave him away.

Nancy gave a jump, and the deacon did the same, but it was too late. The old maid had seen enough to make out a good story, and she left the house almost bursting with the importance of her discovery. The deacon expected trouble, and he was not disappointed. In a few days he was summoned before the church, and when he went to the meeting he saw that his case was likely to prove troublesome, for all the deacons looked blank, and the sisters withering.

"Deacon Wheeler," said the parson, "you are charged with hugging and kissing Nancy Skelletts, and the church would have you clear your skirts of such a crime. We expected better things of you deacon. We did, indeed. What have you to say in extenuation of the crime? "Brethern and sisters," said the deacon, rising in all humiliation, and hanging his head, "I did kiss Nancy !" A terrible sensation in church. One or two of the sisters nearly fainted with excess of emotion while the brethren ground in chorus.

A Compliment.

As a lady of the Fortescue family, who oossessed great personal beauty, was walkng along a narrow lane, she perceived of the 10th inst., two young boys of Rushust behind her a hawker of earthenware. ville, Indiana, were arrested for a slight driving an ass with two panniers, laden with his stock in trade. To give the animisdemeanor and sent to the Shelbvville jail, where a crazy man was confined premal and his master room to pass, the lady suddenly stepped aside, which so frightened the donkey that he ran away, and oners their breakfast, the boys were found had not proceeded far when he fell, and weltering in blood, their throats cut from great part of the crockery was breken ear to ear. The Indianapolis Journal says The lady in her turn became alarmed lest that such excitement ensued that on Satthe man should load her with abuse, if not offer to insult her, but he merely exclaimtook the madman from the jall and were ed, "Never mind, madam; Balaam's ass about to hang him, having actualty fasten- was frightened by an angel."

> Three rats made an attack on an English lad about 15 years of age, who was sitting in an old barn eating bread and beef. The first onslaught was made by a huge rat, that ran up his back, and attempted to seize the food which he was putting in his mouth. He seized it by he throat, but before he had strangled t two others commenced a determined attack upon him. They bit his face in two places and attempted to bite through the clothing which protected his shoulder. A man happened to visit the building while the contest was going on, and it was with great difficulty that the rats were made to retreat.

POLITICS.

What an incomprehensible mystery What a study for the student who wishes to obtain discipline of mind by unravelling something as intricate as a Greek verb! What a travel to commence at its source and navigate its crooked channel interspersed with rocks and snags; how marvelous its secret passwords and under-tone sounds; how changeable the clouds of its horizon—at one time picturesque with their silvery lining; at another, black and portentious of the coming outburst of their furious elements. Science and philosophy are absolutely necessary to explrin the why and the wherefore of its high pressure machinery, to point out the law of cause and effect by which it is cars. governed; to demonstrate its rise and fall in opposing parties, and its growth and death in the nations of the past.

Politics is defined to be the science of government. A new definition is needed for this age of the world-something like the following:-The science of aiding one's own interest by obtaining an office in the government. Philanthropy and patriotism, it is to be feared, have not always a deep-rooted hold in the hearts of political aspirants. Money and fame step in with their alluring charms, and obmanhood is not always necessary to win the prize as much as a capacity for wire pulling. To be all things to all men; to be hale fellow to every man who holds the loadstone of a vote in his hand; is a state of affairs which no person has to go into an adjoining state to find. The polite recognition gentlemanly bow and suavity of manners, shows that politics, at least, lends its influence to good manners, if it does not always be for the reformation of giant wrongs. Our politics, which but a short time ago, seemed to have lost a statesmanlike regard for principle and purity, and which seemed to the completely wound up in the net of expediency, are now passing through the fire of purification. Politicians are daily learning that the highest expediency is always the right. The laws of human progress are built upon a firm foundation, and they work steadily on, whether the surging sea of humanity is conscious of their execution er stand still, and of course politics or their internal workings are never quiet, and as they work the workmen change.-As the Poet expresses it:

The world advances, and in time ougrows men,

The strides of humanity towards a highries, and not by days, weeks or years.-The future of America will be determined by the nature of her coming polities .-The Goddess of Liberty which is now being placed upon the Capitol at Washington will not guarantee prosperity and permanence unless the men who work beneath have more of royal, honest blood, than their political predecessors, who concocted the assassination of the liberties of the people of the Western Continent .-The blood on a hundred battle fields will have been spilt in vain, unless the low grade of politicians who have for years picked at the heart of our Republic, shall be kicked from their places of trust, and treated just like another kind of vermin. The reason why success has not perched upon our banner long before this, is beorder, have not been demolished. The reason why one part of our army whips. and another part gets whipped, is because political intrigue is determined not to die until its time comes. If we vindicate our Union of Liberties' cause, and triumph manfally, it will not be by the aid of politics, but in spite of it. The politics and opinions of our soldiers indicate our future. Whatever they think about rebellion and rebels-whatever they think about Northern metalic heads, will probably soon be the opinion of the country at large. If they speak for the integrity of the land, and for the boon of universal liberty, then will our light and hope break forth as the noonday, and political craft

THE MARL RAILROAD.

At the session of the legislature last winter, au act was passed incorporating the "West Jersey Marl and Transportation Company." The corporators are David Potter, David E. Marshall, De Witt | The worst of all vexation in it, Clinton Climent, John Johnson, Thomas Jones Yorke, G. W. Thomas and Richard I'd like to find some striking notion, Grier. The company are authorized to raise capital stock to the amount of $150.-000, in shares of fifty dollars each. David Potter has been chosen President, and T. Jones Yorke, Jr. Secretary and Treas. urer, and all the above named gentlemen except Mr. Johnson, with Mr. R. J. Van-Renssalear, Directors of the company.

The object of this association is to open up the extensive marl region along the West Jersey Railroad, to the agricultural region through which that road and its branches passes. Though meeting with much difficulty for the want of hands, the scarcity of cars, &c., the company have proceeded vigorously to work. They have bought some 200 acres of rich marl land on both sides of the West Jersey Railroad, about two miles above Glassboro'. This marl lies near the surface, is of excellent quality, and lies convenient for loading on It is contamplated to lay a railroad through this region, intersecting the West Jersey Road. Workmen have for some time been engaged on this road, but their operations have been somewhat delayed by the necessity of getting the authority of the court to obtain some of the land through which the road is to pass. A dwelling house has been lately built by the company at the point of intersection. This house is on the west side of the West Jersey Road, about two miles from Glassboro', and probably near the same distance below the Barnsboro' station. The supscure, to a great extent, the beacon light ply of marl in these beds is very large, of the public good. Qualification of true and contracts have already been offered the company for some thousands of tons monthly, for a series of years. The improvement of the new land now accessible to market by the Cape May and other railroads, will cause a demand for a long time for large quantities of marl. The value of this fertilizer is so well known that a large sale will be found also in other sec tions, whenever the company can obtain the convenience for supplying it. The opening of this road will form an era scarcely second in importance to that of the West Jersey Road itself. By the convenience it affords of diffusing the cheap and valuable manure over a region which has heretofore been considered beyond the pale of improvement. That this will be done is already foreshadowed by the demand already made for it.

CARRIER'S ADDRESS.

January 1st, 1864. A New Year's Carrier's Address, I hate such writing I confess; Is to know how one should begin it. To set both brains and pen in motion: If strength and beauty do not end it, I'd like it's face to recommend it. But really there's no use in trying. I must to work, for time is flying; So in poetical despair, I'll strike hap-hazard anywhere.

A year so marked with strife and blood With war's dark, desolating flood,-God grant it's strife be not in vain, And grant it ne'er may come again : 'Tis not in vain this sacrifice, Is made for all that freemen prize: That Justice, Honor, Liberty, May crown a nation truly free. Suppose we glance along the year, And note such items as appear: At Fredericksburg, Joe. Hooker lay, Conning some new unthought of way, To circumvent the enemy, And flank the force of General Lee. The bloody days of Chancellorville, Left all our hopes defeated still: Save that their chosen man of might, Was carried dying from the fight. As food grew scant, they found occasion To try their chances at invasion; Soon news of dire disaster flew. As onward passed the infuriate crew; A nation's heart beat wild to know It's life seemed staked upon a blow. Ill omen for a traitor band, The day of Liberty at hand, Made even desperation yield, And swent their legions from the field. From Gettysburg the tide rolled back. With Meade and Victory on it's track. Our counsels seemed to prosper best, Along the borders of the West. Rosecrans wrenched triumph from defeat And showed Bragg's forte to be retreat. While Grant, on Freedom's natal day, Enlarged still more her rightful sway; Braved Vicksburg's haughty vaunted power. And hastened Victory's final hour. Banks finished up the enterprise, No foeman there our flag defies, Since once Port Hudson's lines possessed We rule the valley of the West.

England and France begin to see New light upon neutrality; Two years ago 'twas safe to flaunt us. But now, they hardly know about us; Our army is the growing reason Why scantier grace is shown to treason Our navy is a serious matter, With plates to shield, and guns to batter: While England's boasted "walls of oak," Stand now a stale and old-time joke. Davis' message, full of spite, Shows clearly she is coming right; But I record this deep complaint, They smote us when our heart was faint; Is mild from sheer display of muscle. And made a raid across the ocean. We've not forgotton James Monroe, Wait till we put this matter through, We'll smash his plans in Mexico. Hail, Our Defenders ! let their name Be sealed to an undying fame: On every field, by land or sea, Though many fall amid the strife. Freedom shall win a holier life. While slavery hastens to its doom, Her day of glory is to come. A rock amid the threatening flood, Our noble President has stood, And sought with patient patriot zeal How to secure the public weal. On statesman, soldier, field and camp, May Heaven it's seal of blessing stamp. To wasting lives, and wounded braves. To bleeding hearts o'er new made graves, May God in mercy give relief, And suit his goodness to their grief. Shame on the narrow, craven soul. Whom loyalty cannot control, Who in our Country's darkest hour, Cheers on rebellion's impious power, Smiles when his Country's flag goes And meets it's triumphs with a frown.

And peace shall bless this land once more This shameful page, our history's blot, Will seek in vain to be forgot, Their name and memory shall rot. Let them ieer on, God leads our way, The darkest hours have passed away, The morning brightens to the day. I ought perhaps a place to claim." And celebrate New Jersey's fame; There's much to say about her glory, If I had time to tell the story. Where'er her sons have met the foe. Treason has staggered at the blow, And still our flag they bear on high, Resolved its wrongs to avenge or die. Bridgeton-you know in years gone by I've praised the place so very high, I hardly know where now to class her, For fear perhaps you'll say "all gas, sir." Some several years since I recounted How we could furnish all you wanted-The list I only here begin: Pipe, glass and nails, stoves, hardware tin, Drugs, dry goods, harness, china lumber, With notions more than I can number, And so I guess I'd better stop-The Pioneer will post you up. Millville, of course, is moving on, She (means to be a smashing) town, Her motto is Excelsior. Which means "ahead of B."-with her.

When bloodshed happily is o'er,

By tickling up a liberal mood; Now take the hint that I address you, My modesty forbids to press you, But in these times of lofty prices, A Carrier's pay hardly suffices. I come but once a year you see, So ease your conscience with a fee-

Only be liberal with your dimes,

And wont I have some good old times.

During the late cold snap, the ponds were frozen over in this vicinity, affording good skating, which was enjoyed by many. Messrs. Robeson and Wnitsker, secured a portion of their ice crop, in good order, although it was not so thick as could be desired. Another spell of such weather, lasting a little longer, vould be appreciated, especially by ice dealers, and almost everybody, about next August, would think it was a good thing.

From Charleston. The Richmond Enquirer of the 28th of Deember, contains despatches from Charleston o the 27th, from which it is apparent that the shelling of the city by Gen. Gillmore is no longer a subject of merriment with the rebels and not unattended by serious results. On the night of the 24th General Gillmore commenced shelling the city and continued doing so durng that night and the following day, causing the destruction of ten or twelve buildings by fire, mortally wounding a man and slightly wounding a woman, besides resulting in badly wounding three firemen from the falling walls of the burning buildings, and slightly wounding eight or ten others. From Thursday night to four o'clock on Friday afternogon one hundred and thirty-five shells were 'thrown into the city, having been fired from five guns—three at Gregg, one at Cumming's Point, and one from a mortar battery. All was quiet at Sumter. An engagement had taken place on John-son's Island between the rebel batteries and our gunboats, which the rebel despatches say resulted in a drawn fight with but few casualties. They also report that Gen. Gillmore is engaged in erecting another battery at the ex-

From Washington we learn that a portion of Gen. Averill's expedition, which so successfully destroyed the rebel communications on the Virgin a and Tennessee Railrord, concerning whose safety some fears have been expressed, has returned to Harper's Ferry without the loss of a man. Col Wells, the commander of the force states that after penetrating to Harrisonburg, where Averill had finished his work, and after Wells had accomplished his diversion strictly according to orders, he found himself confronted by seven thousand to ten thousand of Lee's forces with General Rosser's brigade and part of Stuart's cavalry in his rear at Front Royal. By clever strategy and forced marches he escaped the former and avoided the latter forces, and reached his post with his men and munitions unharmed. So desperate at one time seemed the chances of the expedition that the rebels in Winchester offered bets that not a man would return. A hundred rebel prisoners were safely brought off.

Suspicious Death at Trenton. - A Tronton yesterday, the body of a Mrs. Seeger, wife of a returned soldier, was found hanging by the neck, in the cellar, so that her toes touched the ground. Suspicions have arisen whether the deed was her own act or that of another. There was a cut on the head which had been bleeding, and two or three other bruises The husband has been arrested to await the verdict of a coroner's jury, he having quarrelled with and beaten his wife, and been heard to threaten that he "would hang her before night," on the day of her Philadelphia Oyster Boats Captured. WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—It is reported that last week, nine oyster boats mostly belonging to Philadelphia, while dredging for oysters near Port Optauk Creek. York River, were captured by the rebels. They came out in boats, on the pretence of helping to make the cargo, and boarded the boats and seized the crews, robbed them of all their valuables, burned the vessels and took the crews to Richmond. The crews numbered about six to each vessels. Port optauk Creek is about thirty miles above the mouth of the river.

A very curious fact is revealed in the captured rebel correspondence in regard to blockade running, which is no less than that the French Emperor had given assurances of protection of the French flag to the Matamoras trade, which would allow goods to enter that port for the rebels, and cotton to go out to pay for it. The only condition the Emperor imposed was, that his arrangement should be kept secret. He was willing to reap the benefit of his bad faith, but he did not want to be caught at it. The Emperor will have to be more particular in entrusting his secrets to men who have an ugly habit of writing them down for the information of other people. General Banks by this time has probably knocked on the head this precious scheme for supplying rebel necessities under cover of a neutrality so grossly violated.

Prices at Richmond.

At Richmond, last week, gold was bringing 19 to 20 for one of Confederate currency. Apples sold for $60 to $70 a barrel; bacon $3 ples sold for $60 to $70 a barrel; bacon $3

Coal Prospects,

It is a great relief to observe the indications that are now apparent of a decline in the price of Coal, which has been threatening to overreach the ability of the poorer classes to purchase. The recent sales of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Company in New York, which in some measure influence the market, have shown a very decided tendency toward lower prices, and the coal producers at the mines, as well as the railway companies which transport this fuel to the seaboard it is to be hoped have at last awakened to the fact that the imposition of exorbitant rates will endanger if not destroy their business. The Miners' Journal acknowledges a further decline of fifty cents per tun at the mines within the space of a week, notwithstanding the scaroity of laborers and the strike and suspension of work at some of the collieries. All these are encouraging symptoms, which give grounds to the belief that coal has reached its highest point, and the winter being now so far advanced it is highly probable that the price has already commenced an important decline.

We learn from the Army of the Potomae that about 10,000 of the veteran troops belonging to it, have re-enlisted for three years.

The following list of deaths, occurring n Bridgeton, during the past year, has been carefully kept and presented for publication by Mr. Lewis Youngs. The number of deaths this year, in Bridgeton, is larger than any previous one.

The subscriber offers at Private Sale, all that desirable farm and prenises, situated on the main road leading from Roadstown; also, on the Greenwich road—as the roads cross on the property—about one mile from Sceley's Mill, two miles from Greenwich. 324 from Roadstown, and near the county line of Salemand Cumberland—it being situated in the last named county. The farm contains SEVENTY-SIX ACRES!

Mostly all arable land, with a never-failing stream of water minning through the centre. The land is in a good state of improvement—it has been lately limed all over, ane in some parts had two coats since the subscriber has been on the larm; also, been asned and marled. The improvements consist of a good FRAME DWELLING

With an excellent well of water under the shed, large wagon house, with cellar under, barn, out crib house, we. Buildings and fencing in good repair. There is TWO APPLE ORCHARDS on the place, one just coming into bearing of choice fruit from McLaen's Nurseries; also, a young Pea in Orchard. It is said to be the best part of the county for peach raising. There is an old orchard on the property that has not failed for 10 or 12 years. Also grapes and other fruit.

This property offers rare inducements to those wishing a home, or to capitalists, as the farm will renut to a good interest. The terms will be easy, and early possession given if required, as the subscriber intends to leave the place to go into other business. For farther particulars apply to the subscriber residing on the premises. the premises. Dec. 26. 63.—4t RICHARD M. He keeps a large supply of medicines at his rooms, which can be had at all times. Those wishing advice or an examination of the lungs will do well to call on him as above. He makes no charge for advice, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer, his for a thorough examination with the Kespirometer, his price is $3.

Many persons are afraid to have their lungs examined by DR. SCHENCK for fear that they will be found incurable, and by that means it is put off until it is too late. How much better it would be to know their condition at once, as, by abundance of evidence. Dr. S. has shown sufficient certificates in this city that has cured advanced stages of Consumption.

DR. SCHENCK'S Principal Office is No. 39, North Sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa., where letters for advice should always be directed.
