THE FARMER'S SONS. BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL.

A farmer, rich and old, and sage, Had two grown sons, of equal age, But, liking not his farm to share, He meant that one should be his heir And keep the homestead, while the other Should but be pensioned by his brother. To ascertain the mental bent Of each, these sons to town he sent To see the Quaker City sights; And, what still more each lad delights, He gave two rolls of greenbacks stout To Ned and Joe, ere they set out. Within a week, they both were seen Treading again the meadows green; But Ned in wretched plight, alack! With scarce a suit upon his back, Now forced for drunken brawls to mourn, With pockets bare and garments torn. But Joe the rural damsels eyed, As on he walked in honest pride, In elegant attire arrayed. For which, at Tower Hall he paid. We need not say the worthy size Joe's sense and prudence did admire, Nor hesitated to declare That he should be the homestead's heir. THE TRUE WISDOM. A man may know all about the rocks. and his heart remain as hard as they are; a man may know all about the winds, and a man may know all about the stars, and his fate be the meteor's, that, after a brief and brilliant career, is quenched in eternal night; a man may know all about the sea, and his soul resemble the troubled waters. which cannot rest; a man may know how to rule the spirit of the elements, yet know not how to rule his own; a man may know how to turn aside the flashing thunderbolt, lese his own soul?"

I despise not the lights of science; but they burn in a dying chamber as dim as its candles. They cannot penetrate the mists of death, nor light the weary traveler on his way in that valley through which we have all to pass. Commend me therefore, to the light which illumines the last hour of life; commend me to the light that can irradiate the face of death; moon, and no need of any created lights, for God and the Lamb are the lights thereof. Brethern, leave others to climb the steeps of fame; brother, sister, put your feet upon the ladder that scales the sky, nor mind though your brows are never crowned with fading joys, if you win, through faith in Jesus, the crown of eternal life.

From the Presbyterian. LETTER FROM NEW YORK.

I last week mentioned the death of Archbishop Hughes, and gave a brief sketch of his career. L'suppose, as a chron-icler of passing events, I would be a dereliet if I should fail to notice the obsequies Hughes, and representing a far more inand the various antehumous honors extended to the remains of this distinguished prelate. And yet I he situte to recur to the subject, for of much of these things I cannot, in conscience, approve; and it is an ungracious thing, and an unpopular one, to protest against what the multitude have done or acquised in. De mortuis nil nisi bonum, is a maxim dictated by delicacy; and I am willing to obey it, even further than did Bishop McCloskey, who, in his funeral oration, distinctly intimated that the Archbishop had not gone to heaven, but most probably carried with him "some stain upon that great soul to be expiated-washed away, before it shall be so pure and undefiled, as to be the battle-field whilst bearing off our made worthy to enfer into the presence of God." And he added—"O, let us give all the earnest faith of our hearts to prayer. It is our beautiful and consoling belief, that though parted in the body, our spirits gallantry in the war? Now I will be more charitable to the dead than Bishop McCloskey, and hope that if Dr. Hughes really trusted in the atoning blood and righteousness of Christ, he went to heaven in spite of all the errors of his religious system, and is not now writhing in purgatorial torments. The Apostle John declares (1st Epistle) "the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from charitable to the dead and to surviving friends, as he was irreverent to the Almighty Saviour, to intimate that Christ's atonement was, in the Archbishop's case, a failure, : n i that it had left stains on his soul, which the "suffrages of the faith-

But, as a Protestant, and the citizen of country that as yet recognizes no union. between any church and the State, and before whose laws all religious denominations are equal, I am painfully constrained to take decided exception to many things, which the death of this highly respectable and inguential priest has called forth.-Upon the gorgeous and pretentious reliligious ceremonies connected with the obsequies. I have no censorious remark to mrke. Our Romanist fellow citizens have a perfect right (civilly,) to observe such ceremonies as they please, on such occasions. No hindrance should be interposed to their perfect freedom of worship, so long as their ceremonies occasion no breach of the peace, nor interferance with the rights of others. But when legislabe the sport of passions as fierce as they; tive bodies, and the magistracy of a great city and a great State stand forth in their official capacity, as the representatives of the whole people, to do honor to a dead priest of a particular denomination, thus involving their entire constituency in their icans to ask whither they are drifting.

Reflections on War.

General NEAL Dow, in his speech delivered in Portland, on his return from captivity in a rebel prison, (and we have read no book, seen no narrative of returned prisoners, which so dispassionately portrays the despotic sway of the South,) thus speaks of war, as he saw it:

"In the South-everywhere-I have travelled. I have beheld the desolation of war. Everything I saw there reminded me that war is desolating our land; but as I come across the Potomac, and traverse the free States -1 see nothing that reminds me of war. You know noth ing of war! except those of you who have offered up loved ones, for the honor and safety of their country. Everywhere in the Sonth, the land is desolate-because of the war!"

How true it is that we, in the free States, "know nothing of war." We hear and read of the ravages of armies, and the depopulation of the country they traverse: but they supply us with little more than a topic of discourse, and occasion no serious alarm for our own personal safety. The account of battles and slaughters, which reach us, with too many, serve rather to wile away their leisure, than disturb their repose. Had the people of New Jersey experienced the calamities that Virginia and other States have done, how differently would we contemplate our position. We should then regard war as the most awful scourge that Providence employs for the chastisement of man. The destruction of prop erty and the desolation of territory, would be nought, in comparison with the rapid extinction of human life. How overwhelming the reflection, that, since the commencement of our hostilities, nearly a half-million of our fellow-creatures - including both sides - have fallen a sacrifice on battle-fields, in hospitals and prisons. Half-a-million of beingssharers of the same nature, warmed with the same hopes, and as fondly attached to life as ourselves, have been prematurely swept into the grave; each of whose deaths has pierced the heart of a wifea parent-a brother or sister. In the ordinary methods, which death assumes, the feeble and the aged are usually the victims; in war, it is the vigorous and the strong. It was the remark of an ancient historian, that in peace children bury their parents: in war parents bury their children; nor is the difference small.-Children lament their parents sincerely indeed, but they retain other ties. Pazents mourn for their children with the bitterness of despair; the aged parent, the widowed mother, loses, when she is deprived of her children, every thing but capacity of suffering; her heart, withered and desolate, admits no other object, cherishes no other hope.

Do our minds at all realize the scene a field of battle must present; where thou sands are left without assistance, and without pity-with their wounds exposed to the piercing air, while the blood, freezing as it flows, binds them to the earth amidst the trampling of horses, and the insults of an enraged foe! If they are spared by the humanity of the enemy, and carried from the field, it is but a pro longation of torment. Conveyed in un easy vehicles-often to a remote distance, through roads almost impassible; they are lodged in ill-prepared receptacles for the wonnded and the sick, where the variety of distress baffles all the efforts of humanity and skill, and renders it impossible to give to each the attention he demands. Far from their native home, no tender assiduities of friendship, no willknown voice, no wife, or mother, or sister | cal Society, and in obedience thereto, we nois near to soothe their sorrow, relieve | ticed a gathering of medical friends from varitheir thirst, or close their eyes in death. Prisons crowded with captivescities emptied of ther inhabitants-field desolate and waste, were to be the trophies of this great slave power. Its fame was to be cemented with tears and blood; and the names of its founders were to be wafted the ends of the earth, in the shrill cry of suffering humanity.

To acknowledge the hand of God, is a duty at all times; but there are seasons when it is made to bare, that it is next to impossible, nay, criminal, to overlook it. The present, with us, is one of those seasons. The scenes which have been disclosed during the war, and the events which have risen, compel us to lose sight of human agency, and behold the Deity, acting, as it were, apart and alone. The contest, in which we are engaged, is distinguished from our past experiences, in, that it is fratricidal. It is indeed an awful spectacle, not only to the inhabitants of the earth, but, we believe, in the eyes of superior beings. Where is the family, the individual, we might say, which has not, directly or indirectly, felt its influence? The spirit of inveterate prejudice, which characterized the originators of the strife, is the necessary consequence -the peculiar institution of their social system. Educated to look on the slave as the mere appendage to the existence of the master, they quarrel with any who dare question their "divine rights."-And is this the system, endorsed by both church and state at the South as-" the most finished specimen of social orderthe most precious legacy bequeathed them by their ancestors, which they are bound to maintain inviolate, in every part, and to trrnsmit, unimpared, to future generations." Is this, we say, the system which war is to vindicate and consolidate?-And, is the God of battles to be an indifferent spectator in this crusade against numan liberty, and the future tranquility of the country? Never. While an allwise Providence has permitted the war, the discomfiture of our enemies, and the overthrow of their cherished institution. While the influence of war on the public morals of a people is most pernicious, and everything which requires calm thought, or serious reflection, is well nigh banished from the land, we have cause for gratitude at the wholesome tone of feeling which pervades the masses. The people have not acquired a hard and unfeeling character. How nobly have they acted up to the spirit of the times, and the genius of the age, in the milanthro-

Letter from Commodore Stockton.

We find in the N. Y. Post of last week, a long letter from Com. R. F. Stockten of Princeton, rests, are to be compared to the ravages | in this State, called forth by the recent articles of arms. If the magnitude of crimes is on the "Monopoly" in New Jersey, in which the writers betray a great want of correct information on the subject. In order to supply this information. Com. Stockton, who is probaaction of equal guilt, with the wanton bly more familiar with the question than almost any other person interested in it, has ventured to enlighton the public. As this subject is just now attracting a large share of attention, we publish the main portion of the Commodore's and Ambey Railroad, and since, wisely secured letter. His review of the origin and history of the special privileges will be read with interest, while his candld defence of the State to have excluded all their virtues, and to policy will show that interested parties have deeply wronged New Jersey by their misrepresentations in regard to the practice and policy of the State toward those crossing its territory, and who never have been taxed or restricted in their right to do so, as so many ill-advised peo> ple have supposed. After a brief review of the wretched travelling facilities in New Jersey during the war of 1812, when the government greatly needed travelling facilities scross New Jersey, and subsequently, the Commodore goes on to say:-The lessons afforded by the experience of national motives for increasing the facilities for passing over the State.

Immediately after the peace of 1815, and soon after the commencement of the construction of the New York Erie Canal, the people of New Jersey began to take measures for the onstruction of the Delaware and Raritan Canal. This was, from the first, considered a work of national importance and deserving of aid from the federal government.

A system of national internal improvement along the seaboard, with the design of promo-ting the military defense of the Atlantic coast, was recommended by the Secretary of War, the Hon. Mr. Calhoun, during the first term of President Monroe. In his report on that subject Mr. Calhoun indicated the Delaware and Raritan Canal as one of the most costly and importaut links in the chain of public words, which he recommended should be constructed at the national expence.

I shall not here inquire into the reason why the general government failed to act in conformity with the recommendation of Mr. Calhoun It is sufficient to refer to the fact that Congress refused to authorize any expenditure for thi inportant work.

The citizens of New Jersey, however, for many years cherished the hope, that the government would, sooner or later, adopt the pol icy of constructing the public works as were universally deemed important for national defence, and that when such a policy should be sanctioned they felt confident that the Delaware and Raritan Canal woule be made. The time was (only little more than a quarter of a century ago,) when the projectors of those public works of New Jersey, now deemed to be so remunerative, were considered visionary men who proposed to waste a great deal of money without any reasonable prospect of beneficial result. At this time, it seems almost ingredible, that those franchises (which are now supposed to be so valuable and useful, that organized cupidity, in order to gratify its lust for gain, invokes the Federal Government to destroy or impair them by the exercise of extraordinary powers, never before claimed to exist,) thirty-three years ago, could with difficulty oe given away by the State of New Jersey. — Yet such is the fact—Nay, the State could not give them away upon the terms which capitaists were willing to accept, unless they were impregnably protected from competition.-This protection was given from the necessity of the case; without it neither railway nor canal neen commenced in 1830. In 1826 the Legislature of New Jersey granted a charter to some citizens of New York to various reasons, that company refused to pro

All well informed menin New Jersey perceived that some system o internal improvement was indispensable to the development of the resources of the state. En-terprise languished and the prosperity of the state was paralyzed, her lands were becoming mpoverished, if not worn out, her vilinges were ationary, her young men were leaving her as fast as they came of age, for more inviting homes elsewhere.

Having given up all hopes of any sid from Congress or the state government to the conned and public spirited Jerseymen held a conerence on the subject of the future of New lersey. They fully discussed the proper policy o pursue, to enable her to keep up with the rogress of improvements in other sto The question of the comparative re-

In this unpromising state of things, a citizen of N. J. (Mr. Potter?) was importuned for aid to save the canal, and he saved the charter by subscribing $400,000, and the efforts were renewed to enlarge the subscription by appeals to patriotism which were unsuccessful. The C. & A. Railroad Company, becoming alarmed at a proposition to lay rails on the canol bank declined to go on with their work, and finally the two interests were reconciled by uniting their stock. After calling attention to the fact that these works have been of more benefit to N. Y. and Philadelphia, than to New Jersey, and that these companies are faxed as much for carrying Jerseymen as others, the Commodore proceeds

It is an entire error to suppose that travelers and merchandice crossing New Jersey are tax-

d by the State. They are not even compelled to pay tolls for ransit over her territory. Any person may go free in their own conveyance over the com-mon roads. They are only liable to be charged tolls, regulated by law, if they prefer to travel over turnpikes or other artificial works— the property of individuals made at their own expense. A per centum of these tolls is paid nto the State treasury, by the individuals who constitute the companies which have made these artificial works. Therefore, the fares charged by these comnanies for the use of their railroads and canals. are clearly not a tax levied by the State on the passenger and on merchandise; because, if the State should relinquish all revenue from the companies till the passenger and the forwarder of merchandise would be required to pay the same fares as they do now. And what is the evil complained of, which is magnified late such menutrous proportions?— Out of the hundreds of millions of property, which has abnually transported through her cause and over her railroads, she collects in tolls for the header of her treasury, not quite $200,000, a considerable proportion of which paid by her own oitizens!! On half -the highest fare being $3, and the lowest $1.50; this has been the arrangement for many years. The result been, that New Jersey has covered her territory with uilroads, without encumbering herself with lobt. Every county in the State has a railroad, and the people of every county can reach either New York or Philadelphia in three hours or less time. The companies chartered in 1830, by their success and good management, have acquired such credit that, with the uses of that credit obiefly, they have been ens- ble obligation which he felt to be resting bled to assist in the construction of rail.oads 1813-14-15, inspired patriotic Jerseymen, with | in all parts of the State. The average value of farming lands now in New Jersey, exceeds that of the farming lands of any other State. -The improvements of the lands of New Jersey and the success of her railroads have benefitted his own responsibility, without consulta New York and Philadelphia quite as much as New Jersey. It is for adopting and adhering to a policy, thus fruitful of benificent results, that New Jersey is made the object of attack, and that the general government is invited to step in-and; in the exercise of doubtful powers, to destroy those franchises and vested rights, to the protection of which the public faith of the State of New Jersey is inviolably pledged. But to is said that "the facilities for the transportation of troops and munitions of war from North to South are entirely inadequate." This assertion is destitute of any shadow of foundation. What are the existing facilities? 1st, There is the ocean

But it is the rights of the Camden and Amboy Railroad which it is especially designed to destroy. Through them New Jersey is to be assailed. And what do facts prove as to the facilities of that company. It may be supposed that the full measure of putting down a monopoly.

If it be a monopoly to enjoy moderate remu neration, for assuming great risks and making great highways of commerce, and paying large-ly for the privilege of making these highways, then even individual's exclusive property is monopoly. The New Jersey companies have purchased, for a valuable consideration, all the rights they enjoy. But where a consolidation of capital is accomplished to defeat a competition, intended to be produced, then a monopolg results more pernicious and oppressive, and which, in the end, the public is made to feel a burthen of the most odious and offensive character.

The proprietors of the New Jersey public works would never permit their privileses to be infringed-for this reason, among others, that it would lead to the creation of a more irretheir worst edemies over acoused them of be-

They claim, while they have properly protected their own rights and interest, to have really protected the public from the unscrupu-lous cupidity of speculators. They have always considered that the privileges conferred by their charters constituted a solemn trust.— No Board of Public Works, of any State, have been more desirous of giving public satisfuc tion, or held itself more responsible to public opinion, than the Managers of those Companies. The recent unanimons expression of opinion, by the executive and legislative departments of New Jersey, proves that the recple of that State entertain for these companies uone of those feelings which would be enterthined towards those who used their privileges oppressively, or in derogation of the public

If the rights of these companies are infringed by Cougress, in subordination to the greedy cupidity of an organized conspiracy, for the promotion of private speculation, it will be in contravention of the almost unanimous expression of the State of New Jersey.

He then proceeded to show that the sentiments expressed by Mr. Long gave aid and comfort to the enemy, led to disaffection in our armies and among the people, and were an argument which would be used to our disadvantage by foreign nations who incline to interference or regognition. He thought it was the duty of Mr. Long's political friends to have offered a resolution of expulsion, and by their failure to act, it became his duty to do so, as a loyal representative; and referring to the cases of Senator Bright and Mr. Vallaudigham, said that the course which had been pursued towards them for a similar offence, met with the approbation of public opinion and was santioned by the Supreme Court of the United States. of Mr. Colfax was undertaken by Mr. Cox, of Ohio, who felt it necessary, at the outset. on behalf of himself and the Democratic party generally, to disavow the sentiments expressed by his collegue; and then sought to shield Mr. Long from a vote of expulsion by a long train of special pleading, charging the friends of the Administration with having refrained irom visiting upon members of their own party any punishment for like offences. A number of speeches were made by Mr Garfield, of Ohio, and Mr. Kelly, o Penn., in support of the resolution and in response to Mr. Cox, and by Mr. Dawson and Mr. Miller of Penn., in opposition to the resolution and disclaiming the sponsible and illegitimate monopoly than responsibility of the democratic party for Mr. Long's sentiments. They were followed by Mr. Harris of Maryland, who made a speech beside which that of Mr Long was comparatively tame. He said he endorsed all that Mr Long had uttered, and would stand by him for weal or woe: declared that he was "a peace man-a radical peace man, was for recognizing the Southern Confederacy and acquiescing in the doctrine of secession," argued in favor of "two splendid governments-two happy governments," and finally concluded his insane tirade by the declaration, at once infamous and treasonable, that "the South ask you to leave them in peace, but you say you will bring them into subjection. That is not done yet, and God Almighty grant that it never may be. I hope you will never subjugate the South." A scene of great confusion and excitment followed this traitorous admission and blasphemous invocation. Members called out "treason" and "order" from every side, the objectionable language was taken down, Mr. Harris was refused consent to go on with his speech, and the case of Mr Long was again resumed .-Mr. Fernando Wood, who has recovered from his illness and resumed his seat, said Mr. Long's language had not been proper ly stated in the reports, and read from his manuscript the words he had used, as follows:

I now believe there are but two alternatives—either an acknowledgement of the South, as an independent nation, or their complete subjugation and extermination as a people. Of these alternatives I prefer the

Mr. Wood then said that if Mr. Long was to be expelled for the utterance of these sentiments, the House might include him for a concurrence in them. After a few more remarks from other members, by unautmous consent the further consideration of the resolutions was postponed till the members would have the printed tion of censure was then introduced which voting in the affirmative, and Mrssrs. Rogers and Perry not voting. Thus closed one of the most disgraceful messions of the House of Representatives ever yet held, in which open expression was given to the long repressed sympathy with the enemies of our country, hitherto furtive and concealed, but at length audaciously and unblushingly avowed The House may have been on former occasions disgraced by the cent stock of Fine Clothing, got up in superior vulgar and ruffinly altercations of its members-when blows have been given changed-but never before has Treason scalked forth so boldly or traitorous words been spit out so venomously. MARRIED.

PAL-MER, of Walworth, to Miss MAGGIE C. NO-BLE, formerly of Shiloh, N. J.

 $\mathbf{DIED} \cdot$

In Cedarville, March 21st, 1864, of Disease f the Brain, EMMA W., daughter of Charles and Juliet Howell, in the 23d year of her age. Seldom are we called to announce the death of one more beloved, both by her own family and friends.—Her attachment to her sister Marria was unusually ardent. In early youth Enna gave her heart to the Saviour, and publicly dedicated neaself to his retrice, by uniting with the M. E. Church—of which she remained a worthy member, until the time of her death. Unassuming and retiring in her disposition—it was unamed a worthy memoer, duth the time of her death.
Unassuming and retiring in her disposition—it was in the family circle and with her intimate friends she was best known and appreciated. But, she is gone and we cannot wish her back. When told that she could not recover—it gave her no uneasiness or feelings of alarm; but, calling her relatives to her, gave to each a parting token of love and affection. Her last words (repeating her favorite passage of scriuture,) were "Let the words of my month and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, U Lord—my strengal and my redeemer." Let me die the death of the richteous.

On the following Sabbath an excellent and appropriate funeral sermon was preached, to a large and attentive audience, in the Methodist Church, by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Ashbrook.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

The quota of New Jersey, under the late call of the President for 500,000 men, is 16,759.—
Upon this quota will be credited and deducted all volunteers from this state, who have been mustered into the United States service since the first day of June, 1868, and also all who shall be so mustered, prior to the 1st day of March, 1864. More than ten thousand (10,000) men have been already recruited on account of this quota. The sub districts that have raised the quotas from the office of the Adjutant General of this the draft ordered to be made on the 10th day of March next.

By referring to previous publications of quo tas, the deficiency of the various sub-districts not yet exempt will be very nearly ascertained. The Adjutant General will announce the exact deficiency as soon as possible.

The Government bounty of $300 for new recruits and $400 for veterans will not be paid eruits and $400 for veterans will not be paid after the expiration of the present month. I HARNES! carnestly call upon the people of those town-ships and wards, where deficiencies exist, to devote all their energies to filling their respective quotas, before the large Government bounties now offered are withdrawn.

Believing that the people of New Jersey desired to avoid a draft, I have labored to give them the opportunity to furnish volunteers.— The greater part of the State is already exempt. There is yet time for each township and ward to fill its entire quota if the people will be earnest in the effort. The advantage of such, especially to the laboring classes, have been more than once presented. I can add but little to the appeals already made. I leave the subject with the people, in confidence that their responce will be such as will gladden the heart f every Jerseyman. Given under my hand and privy seal, at Trenton, this tenth day of February, A. D. one
