604 MARKET STR., PHILADELPHIA. Jones' policy which has proved of such great sutisfaction both to his friends and the public, has demonstrated the fact, that ONE PRICE is the proper basis on which to do business. Many persons who are not able to judge of the value of any article, are glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of purchasing where they can secure wirat they want at the same price as their neighbors. Others, not liking to ask the dealers to take less, are often obliged to pay too much for an article. To meet this want Jones'

J. C. DUNN,
Aug. 6. Salem, N. J. PREMATURE CULTURE

Perhaps the most fatal mistake of all others, in the training of our children, is their premature school education. Every parent nat-urally feels a pride in the ability and acquirements of his children, hence, before the little urchins can lisp half the words in the English language, a book is presented to them, and by constant repetition, the names of the characters in the alphabet are fastened upon the memory. Sometimes children two or three years of age are tortured with this scandalous humbug, and in some cases they are obliged to wade through the senseless routine of ab, ad, ba, be, &c., &c., until they can read a few words, and the parents then boast of the smartness of their children. They probably do not understand a single word that they read, nor comprehend a single step of the process by which, parrot-like, they have been taught the accomplishment. Or if a child should have a mind so precocious as to understand it, an minds in children should be held in abeyance. instead of being stimulated by a hot-bed process, to expand and blossom before the body is capable of bearing it. The argument against the children have ordinary or dull minds, it disgusts and injures them to attempt early book knowledge, if the minds of the children are very active, then it hastens the maturity of the mind before the body has vigor enough to support the rebound. Precocious children! how carefully they should be trained. But the care should be to prevent any undue activity of mind, not to promote it. The green-house plant is not more surely cut down by the frost in school, we admit they may be made familiar with the alphabet, and after a great a-mount of labor and watching, may perhaps be taught to read without inflicting any very se-rious injury upon their minds. But it must be done at the intervals of their play, it must be made an amusement and not a task. After all, of what great utility is it? The mere ability to read is of but little account. Learning to read is important, because we thereby have the means of acquiring ideas, but very young children can not read with this view. Few children comprehend the English language sufficiently to understand the simplest story, until they are some 6 to 8 years of age; e assert without fear of contradiction that children, when they become possessed of this amount of maturity of mind. can be taught the alphabet in three days at the farthest, and will be able to read in a few weeks.

This terrible effort, then, to teach children to read, amounts to very little, they acquire no ideas by it, but they are harrassed with the constant drilling at what see ... to them a confused mass of incongruous sor is, without interest, beauty or sense. But the forcing process does not stop here; when the child is taught to pronounce a few simple words and the good school marm is pleased to call it reading, it is pushed forward to other branches. Geography lessons must be conned, Arithmetic must be learned, Grammar must be mastered. Oh! what pictures of horror are brought to the mind of most adults, when they think of the long, weary and unhappy months and years, when they plodded and drudged at their Grammar books 'learning to parse' and when they did learn to parse, knew just as much of the English language as they did before; no! not as much! the ab-surdities and anomalies, the lying inconsistencies of the definitions and rules, have so abused the mind, that it sees nothing in it but confusion worse confounded. The fogs and darkness of a gloomy night do ot lower more hopelessly around the lost traveler, than do the mysticism and confusion of Grammar definitions and rules, settle upon the mind of the young child. Even now, our mind runs back to the days when we repeated those rules and definitions, and guessed out our parsing often with so much skill as to clicit commendation from our teacher, when except from memory. That is to say, we never told what part of a speech a word was from its definition, but because we remembered that word had been so called by the teacher or others, and when memory did not come to our aid, we were obliged to do like the rest, guess at it. No girl of ordinary intellect should attempt to study Grammar books before she is 13 years old, and no boy before 15 .-It is a disgrace to our system of education, it is an outrage upon the rights of our children, to have their minds perplexed and al-most ruined with this "learned nonsense."— We do not speak these words to attract attention or to excite a smile from the ignorant, but we speak them as the careful conclusion of 12 years experience as a teacher, and 12 years close study of the human mind.

We call the attention of our teachers, school directors, superintendents and others to these things, and we demand a more rational sysem of education.

What we have said of Grammar applies to some extent, to all other branches. Our education is entirely too bookish, we do not study nature but books, we do not acquire a knowledge of sciences, but we study books that teach the sciences. Books, books, books are read, studied and devoured, but the great principles which they teach are not made practicable, and therefore are never really

CHRISTIAN CHEERFULNESS.

A true Christian can find elements of comfort in the most crushing afflictions, and looking to God, the burden is lightened, and the heart full of peace. A pastor tells the following story of one of his flock: She was a poor widow, and supported herself with the most rigid economy by knitting.

I saw her in the intense cold of last winter. The house was one upon which time had made such sad ravages that only one room could now be inhabited, and in that she dared not have a re when the wind blew hard, because the himney had become unsafe. "How favored I am," she said, "for when it has been coldest the wind didn't blow much; or there was so much snow on the house I could have a fire without danger; I cannot be thank-ful enough; and then," she continued, "Joseph has been at home nights almost all winter, and he could get my wood and water when there was so much snow I could not get out." "But do you not feel very lonely while Joeph is away ?"

O, no; I get along very well through the lay;" her Bible lay on the table by which she was sewing, "and when I can see the neighbor's lights in the evening, they are company for me I have thought a great deal about sick people this winter, and then I think how favored I am that I can go to bed and eleep all I saw her again to day. Rheumatism had lisabled one foot, and she sat still sewing, with a swollen, painful limb raised upon a cushion. "How favored I am!" she exclaim-ed; "when my poor Lydia was alive, I lost cushion.

ed; "when my poor Lydia was alive, I lost the use of both my feet for a time, and she took care of me; but now I cau get about by moving my foot upon a chair, and I make out to do my work, and get Joseph's meals ready to do my work, and get Joseph's meals ready truth—I do not feel—disposed—at present—to truth—I do not feel—disposed—at present—to Lieut, Gen. Grant and Secretary Stan-ton.-Who Ranks?

Those of our readers who have seen the per ormances of Rarey, the horse-tamer, will renember that his system consisted in simply tying up the horse's leg and placing the animal upon its side. After this was once done there was no further trouble. The most vicious horse became perfectly quiet and gentle. A portion of Barey's own placifity seemed to be infused into the animal that had been rearing and licking and biting so madly a few moments before. The firm but modest horse-tamer ac-complished, in his cool, easy way, what hun-dreds of less talented operators had not dared

Stanton, who has tried to control everybody else, and has had difficulties with everybody else, has always seemed to get along very well with Lieutenant General Grant, agreeing with him about everything, carrying out his plans with great energy and vigor, accepting his judgment upon every disputed point, and insisting that his wishes shall be consulted in all things that affect the army-that is to say the this forcing system may be thus stated. If government. It is not generally known, how-the children have ordinary or dull minds, it ever, that General Grant once Rarey-fied Mr. Stanton, and that this accounts for the phenomena which have so astonished the public. As a matter of history we will give the anec-

If they are not confined within doors Large bodies of men were stationed in the for-Large bodies of men were stationed in the for-tifications around the city, and other large bodies were kept within supporting distance. Now that General Grant had come into power, Stanton wanted to see that the defence of Washington was not overlooked. Accordingly, after a few preliminaries, the Secretary remarked :-

"Well, General, I suppose you have left us enough men to strongly garrison the forts?"
"No," said Grant, coolly; "I can't do

"Why not?" cried Stanton, jumping ner-ously about. "Why not? Why not?" "Because I have already sent the men t the front," replied Grant, calmly.
"That won't do," cried Stanton, more nervous than before. "It's contrary to my plans.
I can't allow it. I'll order the men back." "I shall need the men there," answered Grant, "and you can't order them back." 'Why not?" inquired Stanton again. "Why not? Why not?" "I believe that I rank the Secretary in this matter," was the quiet reply.

"Very well," said Stanton, a little warmly,

"That's right," politely cheeved Grant "the President ranks us both." Arrived at the White House, the General and the Scoretary asked to see the President upon important business, and in a few moments the good natured face of Mr. Lincol appeared. "Well, gentlemen," said the President, with a genial smile, "what do you want with me?"

"General," said Stanton, stiffly, "state your "I have no case to state," replied General Grant; "I'm satisfied as it is;" thus outflanking the Secretary, and displaying the same strategy in diplomacy as in war.

"Well, well," said the President, laughing, "state your case, Secretary."
Secretary Stanton obeyed; Gen. Grant said nothing; the President listened very attentively. When Stanton had concluded, the tively. When Stanton had concluded, the President crossed his legs, rested his elbow on his knee, twinkled his eyes quaintly and said: "Now, Secretary, you know we have been trying to manage this army for two years and a half, and you know we haven't done much with it. We sent over the mountains and brought Mister Grant—as Mrs. Grant calls him—to manage it for us, and now I guess we had better let Mister Grant have his own way. From this decision there was no appeal.— Nobody ranked the President. So General Grant went off with the army, and Secretary Stanton went back to his office. That application of Grant's Rarey-like tactics made Stanton the hardest working Secretary, and one of the most gentlemanly officials in Washington, and It fully accounts for the admirable relations which have since existed between him and the Lieut. General. It shows also loss to you, and a bore to your neighbor.—

In the stanton went back to his office. That applications made stanton of Grant's Rarey-like tactics made all have a good supper. If several families can unite, it will be all the better. Another way, is to make short visits to the neighbors. To do this, it will not be needful to consume a whole day; this would be an unnecessary loss to you, and a bore to your neighbor.—

By the size of the sider folks can rest, and all have a good supper. If several families can unite, it will be all the better. Another way, is to make short visits to the neighbors. To do this, it will not be needful to consume a whole day; this would be an unnecessary loss to you, and a bore the your neighbor.—

By the size of the siz strategy in war becomes tact in diplomacy— Lieut. Gen. Grant, like field marshal Welling-ton, will be one of the chief advisers of the government both in war and peace; and as he holds his position for life, his experience in public affairs will constantly increase and will be invaluable to every President.

PAY YOUR DEBTS.

To be out of debt is accounted a part of about it troubles it; the sight of a creditor table is not to be accounted for a life. It is mean to flatter the rich. It is humtisating to be the object of pity. To be the slave of unattainable desires is to be despicable and Raise your hat to a lady in all cases, unless wretched. Independence, so essential to the virtues and pleasures of man-independence can only be maintained by setting bounds to your desires, and owing no man anything .-A habit of boundless expense undermines and destroys the virtues in a mind where they seemed to dwell. It becomes difficult, and at last impossible to pay punctually.

When a man of sensibility thinks of the low rate at which his word must henceforth pass, he is little in his own eyes; but difficulties he is little in his own eyes; but difficulties prompt him to wrong his oreditors without a blush. How desolate and woeful does the mind appear, now that the fence of truths is broken down! Friendship is next dissolved. He felt it once; he now insinuates himself by means of sentiments and professions which were once sincere. He seizes the moment of unsuspecting affection to insnare the friends unsuspecting affection to insmare the friends of his youth, borrowing money which they will never pay, binding them for debts which they must hereafter answer. At this rate he sells the virtuous pleasures of loving and being loved. He swallows up the provision of aged parents, and the portion of sisters and brethren. The loss of truth is followed by the loss of truth is followed by the loss of truth is register and the province of the provinc of humanity. His calls are still importunate, he proceeds to fraud, and walks on precipices. Ingenuity, which in a better cause might have illustrated his name, is exerted to evade the law, to deceive the world, to cover poverty with the appearance of wealth-to sow unob served, the seeds of fraud .- Dr. Chalmers.

How To Refuse a Loan.—A young city clerk who felt inclined for a trip to the sea-side, called upon a friend. "Hal, my dear boy," said he, "I'm off for a heliday, and I find I'm a trifle short—lend me a ten, will you?" Hal,

AN OLD MAID-TO THE GIRLS.

"How do you do, old maid?" Thus was I accosted yesterday, not merely in sport, but with evident sarcasm on the part of the interrogator. Well, how did I receive it? Did it cast a gloom over my mind, such as in my girlish years I might have imagined would have been the inevitable result? Did it cause me to feel that life had been a failure? That its fondest hopes, its brightest dreams, its highest aims were all forever past unrealized? Why, no; it only brought to my mind the simple fact that I was an old maid—a circumstance of which I had almost become unconscious, and dreds of less talented operators had not dared to attempt.

There have been many exclamations of wonder and surprise at the fact that Secretary Stanton, who has tried to control everybody yore !- Yes, an old maid, with no warm, manly heart to beat responsive to my own; no strong earthly arm on which to lean.

Girls, don't you pity me? Why, you need not, and just for this reason, that I am, for all that, a happy old maid. Now, do not say "Impossible!" for it is an undeniable fact.—
Not but what I have because of andrees and alections. Not but what I have hours of sadness and shed I weep. 'Tis this: that the sweet thoughts the angels gave me have been no more foudly cherished, and the work they bade me do has been no more trustingly performed. Yes, girls, for even I had my mission, and trusting to my heavenly Father's care, to its fulfillment have sought to consecrate my life. And then, again, I weep that the loved and cherished years have long shared my tenderest care and sympathy, now sleeps the sleep of death.— Oh, it was sad, so sad to lose my mother!-But when my spirit bowed in anguish, and I felt that earth's strongest tie was broken, the angels brought me messages of hope and love, and poured into my wounded heart the balm of consolation, so that I am happy now with a calm contentment and a chastened joy. And would you believe it? only the other day one of my nieces (dear young girls, how little they know of life!) said she would like, when she grew up, to be an old maid just like Aunt Ettie, and live with papa and mamma, and take care of them when they were old; she thought she should be so happy. Ah! thought I, you will not say just so when you are a few years older—when, blushing in your maiden charms, you dream the first sweet dream of love. Nor would I have you miss that dream, for who may tell how much of happiness it sheds along life's pathway to know that even though unrealized, we too have shared in this bequeathal of our heavenly Father's love, and that, though unexplored, this enchanted ground still forms a part of our inheri-tance! And what true hearted woman is there, old maid though she may be, who has not cherished in her heart a fond ideal, spiritualized, perchance, by the lapse of years?—

And though it may never become identified with any one of the brotherhood of man, yet it casts a charm of romance around the still

Fy, girls! what have I been saying? Fine had not the ghost of a chance in those pre-talk for an old maid, who ought to have more cincts. OLD MAID.

Recreation and Visiting among Farmers. This may seem to some a very unsuitable topic for this busy time of the year. On the contrary, it is specially seasenable. Most farmers make life too much a drudgery for themselves and for their children. By working hard from morning until night, and from week to week, with no recreation, they become dull, and do not accomplish as much as they would with a little timely relaxation, "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."—Nor do they enjoy life nearly so well. They doubtless say to their souls, "I must work hard now, and lay up money against a time of need, or against old age; then I will rest and enjoy myself." They forget that they are meanwhile wearing out their faculties of enjoyment, and are acquiring habits which will joyment, and are acquiring habits which will unfit them for anything but an old age of con-

the effect of such a life on their children. As to the way in which farmers shall ge recreation, we are not disposed to be particular. Some will choose to get it in one way, and some in another. One very good method is to make up an occasional pic-nic. Fix on a pleasant afternoon, and take the whole family to a neighboring grove, where the children can romp, where the older folks can rest, and him and the Lieut. General. It shows also loss to you, and a bore to your neighbor.—that Grant knows how to manage men as well But seize on the broken, half-days, or even as armies. His shrewdness is equally available in the Cabinet and in the field. What is glad to show you his stock and his crops, and Raise your hat to a lady in all cases, unless you have met her before in your promenade. If you meet a lady and gentleman and have an acquaintance with the gentleman only, you should raise your hat while saluting him. It is a mark of respect for the lady. At the table take the dish the host offers you, and don't pass it to the nearest neighbor, even if a lady; it is ungenerous to reprove your host or hostess to the face. There is a point where self abnegation becomes rudeness, and this is precisely that point. The person who gives precisely that point. The person who gives the entertainment has a perfect right to say which shall be served first. Don't offer your chair to a new-comer, unless it is the only one of the kind, and the best in the room. Rise when another guest leaves the house where you are entertained, but do not follow to the loor. You may spoil a more cordial leave taking. Don't sit crosslegged in presence of ladies, or in company of ceremony. Keep your fingers out of your button holes, and your bands from your land. hands from your lap. Make yourself as comfor table as you can, without incommoding any one. Your host, if a gentleman, always likes to see his guests comfortable and likes to see his guests comfortable and contented. Be neither a pump nor a pumpe, but alternately resume both conditions. Ask and answer questions with diplomatic propriety. Speak well of people or speak not at all. Nothing indicates greater defect of colloquial ability than vituperation or angry declamation. Maintain repose if the earth quakes. Don't squeeze a lady's hand, for besides being a vulgar demonstration of affection, ladies often wulgar demonstration of affection, ladies often wear rings. The slightest possible pressure is in good taste. But there is a difference between the kindly and respectful, scarcely perceptible pressure of the whole hand, and a persistent grip that leaves the fingers white for a week. FRIENDSHIP. He only is fit to be chosen for a friend who can give counsel, or defend any cause, or guide me right, or relieve my need, or can and will when I need it, do me good. Only this I add: into the heaps of doing good I will reckon loving me, for it is a pleasure to be loved; but when his love signifies nothing but kissing my cheek or talking, kindly, and can go no fur ther, it is a prostitution of the bravery of friendship to spend it upon impertinent people who are, it may be, loads to their families, but can never ease any loads; but my friend is a worthy person when he can become to me a guide or a support, an eye or a hand, a staff or a rule. Can any wise or good man be angry if I say I choose this man to be my friend because he is able to give me counsel, to restrain my wanderings, to comfort me in my sorrow; he is pleasant to me in private, and useful in public; he will make my joys double, and divide my grief between himself and me? For what else should I choose? For being a fool and useless? for a pretty face and a smooth chin? I confess it is possible to be a friend to one who is ignorant and pitia-ble, handsome and good for nothing, that eats well and drinks deep, but he cannot be a friend to me; and I love him with a fondness or a pity, but it cannot be a noble friend-

THE WIDOW'S EXCHANGE.—A young lady having buried an old husband, whom she married for money, ordered a carver to make a statie of wood as much like him as possible, which with much seeming regard for his memory she every night placed by her side in bed. In the meantime a young gentleman who was violent-ly enamored with our young widow, prevailed on the maid, by the help of a few guineas, to lay him one night in the place of Old Simon, as the beloved block was called. The widow went to bed, and after the usual manner cast her arms over her dear husband's statue, and finding it warm she crept still closer, till at last she was convinced that it was a better bed fellow than Old Simon. In the morning the maid called as usual, to know what she would have for dinner. "Why, Susan," said she, "I think you must dress the turkey that was bought yesterday, boil a leg of mutton and cauliflower, and get a handsome dish of fish." 'Madam," says the maid, "we have not wood enough to dress so much viotuals."
"Why, then," replied the mistress, "you must e'en burn Old Simon."

A BEE'S NEST IN A MAN'S HEAD. - Some visitors to the battle-field of the Seven Pines last week picked up a remarkably well-developed skull, in which a colony of bees had built their home. It was evidently a last year's nest, for the bees were gone, though the nest remained perfect. A soliloquy as touching as that pronounced over the sku'l of Yorick might be suggested by this skull, and the strange incident of its becoming the habitation f bees. Whose skull was it? Nobody knows. Yes, somebody once knew the owner of it well, and some heart broke when he came not back from battle. That skull, that once, perchance, was animated by rare intelligence, that intel ligence gone, becomes the resting place of bees. "To what base uses may we come at last."— Richmond Whig.

A CHICKEN DIET .- Among the patients which Dr. S——had at one time, was one to whom he had recommended a diet of chicken. While he was still under the Doctor's care, it chanced that he, with Dr.S _____, and a number of other friends, was invited to a gentleman's dinner party, given by a mutual acquain man's dinner party, given by a mutuat acquaintance. The principal dish was fowls, and as the patient sat on the right of the host, the platter was passed to him first. The man helped himself very freely—more so than politeness allowed—not only to the annoyance that heat here has a leg, who hapof the host, but of Dr. S——also, who happened to sit at the end of the table, and who began to think that his chance was slim.—Gazing for a moment at the contents of the patient's plate, the blunt man asked, in a tone of half rebuke, half ridioule—
"Hallo, Jones, what are you doing?"

"Why, doctor, you told me I must eat chickon," the patient replied.
"Yes, I know I did; but I didn't tell you to and having occasion to call upon the President on some business of a constituent, I found him in his reception room, in the presence of some fifteen or twenty persons casually assembled

As soon as he entered the house he commenced his usual tactics: "Well, God bless you, Mrs. Brown! how do you do, and how are all the little ones?" After kissing the dirty brood all round, he asked for mother's pipe. "If there is anything I do like, it is to smoke mother's pipe; it's got some strangth."

As he uttered the last words, he straightened himself and made the motion of "carry arms." This was a definition of the law of nature, different from those of Grotius and Puffendorf, but not ill-adapted to the exigency of the times. In fact Gen. Jackson had deter-(with the best intentions, I am sure, though as a member of Congress and a warm friend f Mr. Clay, I voted against it,) formed a bridge, over which the nullifiers were able to make a not wholly ignominious retreat. Look. ing back on these transactions under the light of experience, there is good reason for the opinion, that it would have been better for the ountry, infinitely better for the South, if his treasonable conspiracy had been allowed to run its natural course, and meet its just fate. WARNING TO LADIES.

New York Ledger.

A mortifying but ludicrous incident, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, occurred on Saturday on Fourth St., near the post office. A ladv of most extensive exterior was gliding gracefully up the street, when the network containing the bunch of hair at the back of her head became some way detached, and shocking to relate, fell to the ground, carrying along its hir-sute contents, which we believe is known in fashionable parlance as the "waterfall." The lady, who immediately became conscious of the catastrophe, paused, blushed through the powder, &c., and was in the act of stooping to recover her head gear, when an unmannerly dog, of the Scotch terrier species, mistaking it, probably, for a rat, pounced upon it, seized it between his teeth, and commenced shaking the queer looking article with a vehemence that must have put his own neck in danger of and Eugene so thoroughly that that Uncle Jo dislocation. The whole proceeding was irresistibly comical, that it excited the merriment of the bystanders, who indulged in an ungallant, choral guffaw, as the abashed fair one beat a hasty retreat to the opposite corner, leaving her "waterfall" a prize to the pestiferous rat terrier. The terrier, no doubt, thought there was a lady's rat in that bunch

CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.

There is a femous prescription in use in England for the cure of drunkenness, by which thousands are said to have been assisted in recovering themselves The prescription came into notoriety through the efforts of John Vine Hall, commander of the Great Eastern steamship. He had fallen into such habitual drunkenness that his most earnest efforts to reclaim himself proved unavailing. At length he sought the advice of an ancient physician, who gave him a prescription which he followed faithfully for seven months. At the end of that time he had lost all desire for liquor, although he had many times been led captive by a most debasing appetite.

The prescription, which he afterward published, and by which so many other drunkards have been assisted to reform, is as follows:

"Sulphate of iron, five (5) grains; magnesia, ten (10) grains; peppermint water, eleven (11) drachms; spirit of nutmeg, one (1) drachm; twice a day. This preparation acts as a tonic and a stimulant, and so partially supplies the place of the accustomed liquor, and prevents that absolute physical and moral prostration which follows a dden breaking off from the use of stimulating drinks.

BEAUTIFUL EXPERIMENTS .- Fill a widemouthed glass jar with water, and cover it over with a piece of "foundation" (the ladies will understand this), cover that over with a layer of peas, pressing it down so that the peas will lay in the water They will then swell and sprout, the roots growing down into the water; their fine fibres presenting a beautiful appearance. Set this in a window and vines will grow up, which can be conducted to the sill. The whole is very handsome.

THE IDLER. - Everything within us and about shows that it was never intended that man should be idle. Our own health and comfort and the welfare and happiness of those around us all require that man should labor. Mind, body, soul, all alike suffer and rust out idleness; the idler is a source by mental and moral of-fense to every body around. He is a nuisance in the world, and needs abatement for the public good, like any other source of pesti-

RECONSTRUCTION TINKERERS. In peace, as in war, there is always found a class of men so distrustful, that they think the country must go to destruction, unless their own suggestions are adopted. During the war, we had thousands of military critics-each more than a brigadier in his own estimation-who could see, although hundreds of miles from the scene of conflict, just where and when the decisive blow might be struck; and, when defeat came upon us, "I told you so"-" just as I expected," was the prelude to unjust reflections upon our best generals, Secretary Stanton, and the entire management of the war. While sitting at ease, after buying exemption from, or meanly evading, a duty which every man owes to his country, they could point out the cause of disaster, cloquently discuss the deficiency of our commanders, and show where sheer incompetency had given every advantage to the enemy.

These same men "still live," and are likely to live long, if the merit of selfpreservation adds longevity; for they have a prudence in their patriotism that elicits lip-service instead of hand-service; and as words are cheaper than deeds, they never expose their valuable persons to danger of any kind. The end of the rebellion having abridged a wide field of speculation and comment, they now turn obligation of confessing Christ before men."to the work of reconstruction. The position of each State is discussed, the measure of sin is carefully estimated, before these members of the "outside cabinet" define the conditions or terms upon which they are to be admitted into full fellowship. They canvass the depth of treason into which each prominent traitor is steeped, and mark out the road to penance, designate the term of imprisonment, or inflict upon him the death penalty, as though sitting in judgement, decked with wig and gown. They exercise a supervisory care over the relations of former master and slave-defining their respective duties, compensation, privileges, &c and entirely supercede the necessity of the Freedmen's Bureau. The future social and political standing of the colored race is discussed, with the view of settling many vexed questions; and with an earthe field, in what military departments they works as the duty of Christians, and the necare to be stationed, and where martial law is to be continued, and when the civil courts are to resume business. In short the Reconstruction tinkerers, just now, have a busy time of it, and are almost over burdened with care. Newspapers are brought into service, pamphlets are issued, and speeches are made all over the country, to impress upon the people the indispensable nature and importance of thier services.

President Lincoln was pestered, until the day of his base assassination, with the gratuitous and impudent interference of these meddlers. They intruded their windy speculations upon him, and often consumed his valuable time which he was anxious to devote to public affairs; for he was too good natured and kind of heart to rebuke such impositions. This was really a weakness-a virtuous one, perhaps, but not politic-on the part of our late President; and one, we trust, which our present Executive will never yield to. So far, there are no indications that he will. On the contrary, he has, on more than one occasion, given a cold shoulder to the intrusions of the "outside cabinet." and evinced a disposition to faithfully ad this service. minister the Government without the assistance of fusty politicians.

All must admit that President Johnson assumed the duties of his position under peculiarly embarrassing circumstances .--It requires experienced statesmanship, wisdom and Jackson-like firmness, to meet and master difficulties incident to the complication of our public affairs, made more so, by the unexpected and melancholy death of his predecessor, who had adopted a policy and shaped his course to suit the rapid changes then in progress. In his efforts to temper justice with mercy. it was natural that he should make some mistakes, and it became evident that, in too many cases, he had prematurely yielded to his charitable instincts. This was the more keenly felt by the people, when treason paid for that mercy with asasssination; and his successor had before him the difficult task of staying the tide of popular vengeance, of keeping the machinery of Government in harmonious ty, can be told better after the 8th of Novemmotion, and, at the same time, of giving full force to the law's power, untainted by passion or prejudice.

All this President Johnson has accomplished to the full satisfaction of the people. He has done more. He has so far managed the work of reconstruction with a master hand, and proved to the world that he is adequate to the most critical and perilous period of our National troubles; for while none doubted the ability of our brave armies to conquer a peace, many questioned our power to maintain it, without keeping our full military force in the field for years to come. Yet, we have seen one corps after another disbanded. our Navy dismantled, and military stations abandoned, all over the Southern October. Ladies and gentlemen are invited to inst., full particulars of which will be given in States: and still the work of reconstructattend.

no resistance to civil and military law. provisional Governors have been appointed, State conventions are held, Constitutions are being remodeled to suit the new condition of things, chaos is giving place to order, and public confidence is being restored much faster, under the circumstances, than was anticipated by the most hopeful.

For all these blessings, and the promise of a happy future, we are indebted to a kind Providence, and the wise policy pursued by President Johnson. We there fore hope, when the work of reconstruction is progressing so satisfactorily, that no tinkerers or meddlers will be suffered to embarrass the President with advice and suggestions which tend to embarrass more than to assist him in the discharge of his duties. We do say that he should escape the infliction of prosy essays promoted by the egotism of men who are ambitious to 'have a private interview with the President." He has been a public man for many years, and none has a better or more extended acquaintance with public men. Should be need information or advice which he cannot obtain by those who surround him, he knows who and where to send for them. This knowledge of public men and of Government affairs. will always enable him to properly discriminate between the advice proffered by those of sufficient mental calibre to make it valuable, and that thrust upon him by reconstruction tinkerers, which is generally so meaningless and worthless as to make it a bore.

We acknowledge the reception of a asket of very handsome white mercer potatoes from Sherrard Socwell, of Jones' Island. They took the premium at the late Agricultural Exhibition. Mr. Socwell can raise better mercer potatoes than any other farmer in this county. It requires science in farming, as much as in other pursuits, to be successful.

THE NEXT CONGRESS. The Chicago Republican of Monday publishes complete list of the two Houses of the next longress. In the Schate, twenty five States are now represented by 38 Unionists and 11 Democrats. According to the party division that existed before the war, the House of Representatives now stands 140 Unionists to 51 Demoorats; but on the great question of at once admit-ing the Representatives of the Southern States, or keeping them, or most of them, for a longer period in probation, it is not probable that the permanency of our institutions for ever assured.

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the have proved the ability of the Government to meet domestic foes with as much success as it they will do, and, should they all be admitted. the Senate will then contain forty-seven Union-

Give him a call. HOPE.

The Scripture saith that "Hope is an anchor the soul, both sure and steadfast." It is the unfortunate's only comfort in adversity, and the star of promise which urges forward the struggling poor man. What is it that gives contentment to that mother who sees her dar-ling child attacked by the ghost of the deadly croup, or suffering from the effects of a con-suming cough or violent cold? What is it that wreaths in smiles the lips of that patient consumptive who, though she knows she can not live, yet murmurs her silent and thankful prayer for case and relief? What is it that has become a nation's hope—from North to South, from East to West, comes but one joyful response-Give us Coe's Cough Balsam.

PRESENTATION.

A handsome silver toa set was presented to the Rev. Mr. Atwood, pastor of the Cape Island Methodist Church, on Tuesday evening, 26th inst. The set was a fac simile of that present ed to Lieutenant General Grant by the citizens of Philadelphia, and was presented to the la-dies of the church by Mr. E. C. Kuight, of the same city. The presentation speech was made by Mr. S. R. Magonagle, who spoke of the energy and determination displayed by the Revchapel, and in raising, in eighteen months, over six thousand dollars to defray the ex-He was a strict churchman; a man of quiet over six thousand dollars to defray the exmanners; a handsome declaimer, and a fair penses of the buildings. Mr. Atwood replied, thanking the members and friends for the valuable assistance rendered him in the enterprise, and feelingly alluded to the generous sympathy extended to him in his efforts .- Ocean Wave.

The Cumb. Co. Agricultural Exhibition Promises to be more than usual attractive this Fall and from the many preparations being made, will, no doubt, prove successful. As there will be a great doubt, prove successful. As there will be a great erowd in town that day, we advise our many country consins from a distance to stop in at Beckhardt's Clothing Store, and provide themselves with a good Fall Suit, handsome Overcoat, Cassimere Sack Coat, fashionable Neck-tie and Collar; or even a good Gingham Umbrella, fine enough to make a ladies' sunshade. A good look at the fashionable and well-arranged garments now on exhibition, free to all, will satisfy any one that no store this side of Philadelphia can boast of as good an assortment of ready made Clothing as can now be seen at Simons' well-known establishment. Boys, big or little, men of all sizes and corporations, can alike be fitted here; and the and corporations, can alike be fitted here; and the fashionable young man, as well as the plain old man, are all sure to be suited and fitted in Coats, Pants, Vests, Shirts, Hats, &c. Beekhardt takes especial pains to have always something new on hand, and every few days new goods are rolling in to meet the demands of our fashionable young men, who know by experience where good and well made garments are constantly kept on hand; and as it is Simons' steady am to sell low and give entire satisfaction, it is no wonder that his store is becoming the centre of attraction for all in want of Clothing worth the money. THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE. Liberty is one of the dearest blessings which our forefathers have handed down to us. It was purchased by the blood of many a valiant revolutionary hero; has been guraded by a Washington, a Jefferson, a Clay and a Webster. But dearer still to the hearts of the people is that world-renowned remedy, known as Coe's Gough Balsam. It cures like magic the most violent attacks of croup, and is indispensable in every family of children. Colds, sudden coughs, sore throat, hoarseness, and inflamed lungs, are instantly and surely cured by its timely use. No cough mixture has ever been known hat equals it, which accounts for its great popularity with all classes. The young and old—the rich and poor—physicians, druggists—and all who ever tested it speak in the highest terms of its merits. We say to our readers—buy it and try it. It costs but 40 cents, the bottle contains twice as much medicine as you can obtain in any other way at the same cost, and all our drug stores keep it.

A CARD.

EDITOR OF PIONER:—In reply to many letters and inquiries from people in this section of the country, the undersigned take great pleasure in saying through the column of your paper, that our renowned preparation known as COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE, is a certain cure for Dyspepsia, in its worst stages. Many cures of long standing, within our own acquaintance, have been completely, and we believe permanently cured. It will stop distress after enting almost instantaneously, and enables the dyspeptic who has for years lived on Graham bread, and the plainest diet, to cat as heartily as he pleases, and anything he chooses, without danger or distress, or souring, or raising on the stomach. It is an infallible corrector of indigestion and constipation, creates a healthy appetite, stops headache, heart-burn, sickness at the stomach, pains, cramp, or colic in either stomach or bowels, and sweetens offensive breath, as soon as you take it, and by enabling the patient to take plenty of hearty food, "which is the parent of health," produces vigor, strength, and energy. In every trial we have known it has specifly oradicated Dyspepsia with all its attendent sufferings; weakness, debility, and loss of power, giving instead, a proper activity and tone to the stomach and organs of digestion, and as we confidently believe, and as the published certificates in our circulars, almanacs; and in many of the leading journals, from convelseent patients will confirm, completely, permanently, and almostmiraculously "cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia in existence." We warrant in every instance. It can be obtained at all the Drug Stores in the United States and Canadas, at $1.00 per bottle, or six bottles for $5.00.

THE GREAT Rat, Roach and Mouse Destroyer. Mat, Roach and Mouse Destroyer.

In offering this great invention, for destroying Rats, Mice and Roaches, to the public, the subscriber wishes not to be alone in bearing testimony, and could give much more evidence in its favor if thought requisite, that it not only kills the vermin, but in many cases drives them from the premises, so that they do not die there to give offence. It has been sold for several years, and found to give general satisfaction, as will be proven by the following

TESTIMONIALS: Salem, N. J., March 31, 1564.

I was very much troubled with rats at my slaughter rouse, and tried both arsenic and strychnine to des roy them, neither of which had any effect, only, as thought, to increase them. Was advised to try rab's Dead Shot, which I did, and had no more trouble that the state of the street of the state of Arab's Dead Shot, which I did, and had no more tro ble with them afterward. I consider it a first-rate': ielc. JOSHUA THOMPSON, (Butcher.)

ALLOWAYSTOWN, N. J., March 25, 1864. Having several times used Abab's Dead Shot for rats and mice in my mill, (being a miller,) where we had rats by the hundreds before the use of it, I can without hesitation say, it is the best exterminator for ats and mice that I ever used. It is also sold by responsible dealers in all parts of the country. I make no consiguments but sell at my wholesale price to licensed dealers, and at my retail price to consumers. My price is uniform to all—sixty dollars per ton in Philadelphia, and sixty dollars per ton in Baltimore; three dollars per ton for freight, &c., added to the Baltimore price. Dealers are not permitted to overcharge the farmer, but to be satisfied with a reasonable profit, and to sell for no loss than my retail price in Philadelphia, and no more than my retail price in Baltimore. I do this for the protection of the farmer, that my article should not fall in the hands of irresponsible parties to undersell and adulterate. Farmers will find it to their interest to deal only with responsible parties, and allow them to make a fair profit, as no man, honest or otherwise, will work for nothing.

Capital, $6,100,000.

JAMES J. REEVES, Agent.

This company was organized in 1845 on the purely mutual principle, without any subscribed capital.—
The members, in reality, insure one another, and the accumulated fund is entirely the result of the premiums paid by the insured, and is held by the company in trust to meet its obligations to them.

Among the many advantages which this company offers to its members, are the following, namely:
An ascumulation of over $6,000,000 securely invested.
Annual returns on life policies of the surplus after deducting liabilities. Each premium paid participates in such returns. The business of the company is exclusively the insurance of lives. It is economical in the management of its business. It is prompt in the payment of its is seen. Premiums are payable in eash, but when desired the company will loan on life policies half the amount of each annual premium (if $50 or over) six per cent. interest being paid for such toan

LOOK OUT FOR THE DRAFT! Not the military draft but the draft of the stoves you buy. Our new stove, the Excelsior, has the largest flues, and consequently must have the strongest draft, and will not fail to perform to the entire satisfaction of all. The ovens are very large and high under the ash pit, giving you baking surface over the entire bottom. The design is neat, and no deed carvings, which are so troublesome to black. The castings are heavy, and the stoves are put together in a manner superior to any, thus making it the most desirable stove in the market. We desire to call the attention of purchasers to our other stoves, consisting of the

AGRICULTURAL. CHEMICAL COMPANY'S CHEAP

Fertilizers!

The fertilizers prepared by the Agricultural Chemical Co., (a Company chartered by the Legislature of Pennsylvania with a capital of $250,000,) have been proved in practice to be the cheapest, most profitable and best for the farmer, gardener and fruit grower, of all concentrated manures now offered in any market. The Company's list embraces the following:

PABULETTE. This fertilizer is composed of night soil and the fertilizing elements of urine, combined chemically and mechanically with other valuable fertilizing agents and absorbents.

COMPOSITE FERTILIZER This highly phosphatic fertilizer is particularly adapted for the cultivation of trees, truits, hawns and flowers. It will promote a very vigorous and healthy growth of wood and fruit, and largely increase the quantity and increase the maturity of the fruit. For hot-house and household plants and flowers, it will be found an indispensable article to secure their greatest perfection. It will prevent and cure diseased conditions of the peach and grape, and is excellent for grass and laws.

It is composed of such elements as make it adapted to the growth of all kinds of crops in all kinds of soils. Curing upon scientific principles these ruinous dis-eases which disable or disfigure the horse, its prac-tical effects have more than fulfilled the most san-James H. Flanigan, Ebenezer S. Ware, Benj. Those who do not use the manures of the Agricultural Chemical Co. are, we think running counter to their own interests. The experience of those who have used these fertilizers, is that for every dollar expended, ten have been returned to them in the way of HURRAH for 1865! The manures of the Agricultural Chemical Co. are Just received from New York and Philadelphia, fine and well selected stock of Photograph Albums, Diaries and Alma yearly increasing in popularity and are already exten-sively used. Their beneficial effects on poor soil are remarkable.—Televalenty, Germantown.

We have used all the different manures, and, considwe have used an the different maintres, and, considering economy, and real worth, we have found nothing that works better than the Fertilizers prepared by the Agricultural Chemical Co. We used them on our lands and garden last season, and we can certainly commend them to those who may need them.—OCEAN EMBLEM. PERFUMERY.

The Agricultural Chemical Co.'s Cheap fertilizers should be used by the farmer to prevent exhaustion of his lands, as they have been proved in practice to be as cheap, as proliable and as good, for the farmer, as cheap, as probable and as good, for the farmer, gardener, and fruit grower as any of the concentrated manures now offered in market. By their advertisement the reader will see that their list embraces many valuable varieties, and are becoming very popular with all who have used them, and have received the highest approval of eminent chemists and scientific agriculturists.—Bridgeton Chronicle. To the Agriculturists.—Bridgeton Chronicle.

To the Agriculturial Chemical Co:—I take pleasure in certifying that I used your Pabulette on corn in the hill, in 1864: it gave good satisfaction, I have the same ground in oats, and the difference in them is astonishing, they are fully one third larger and better filled.
