The Infidel and His Daughter. [Suggested by reading a newspaper paragraph, describing the scene between the brave old Ethan Allen and his daughter, on the eve of her death, when she asked the stern infidel in whose faith he would have her die, his or her mother's.]

"The damps of death are coming fast,
My father, o'er my brow;
The past, with all its scenes, has fied,
And I must turn me now
To that dim future, which in vain
My eyes seek to descry;
Tell me, my father, in this hour,
In whose belief to die.

In thine? I've watched the scornful smile, And heard thy withering lone,
Whene'er the Christian's humble hope
Was placed upon thine own;
I've heard thee speak of coming death
Without a shade of gloom,
And laugh at all the childish fears
That cluster 'round the tomb.

Or is it in my mather's faith ! Now fondly do I trace Through High respunyerse!!! a past How often do I call to mind, (Now she's beneath the sod,) The place, the hour, in which she drew My eager thoughts to God.

Twas then she took this sacred Book,
And from its burning page,
Read how its truths support the soul
In youth and failing age;
And bade me in its precepts live,
And by its precepts die,
That I might share a home of love In worlds beyond the sky My father, shall I look above, My father, shall I look above,
Amid the gathering gloom,
To Him whose promises of love
Extends beyond the tomb?
Or curse the Being who hath blessed
This checkered heart of mine?
Must I embrace my mother's fath.
Or die, my sire, by thine?"

The frown upon that warrior's brow Passed, like a cloud, away,
And tears course i down the rugged cheeks,
That flowed not till that day.
"Not in mine," with choking voice, The skeptic made reply—
"But in thy mother's holy faith,
My daughter, may'st thou die.

Misfortunes of a Careless Child.

A FAIRY STORY BY JEAN MACE.

Miss Booth has translated, and the Harpers are about to publish as a Christmas book a collection of fairy tales, by one of the most delightful and amusing of French writers for children, Jean Mace. the well-known author of the "History of a Piece of Bread." The book contains a number of stories, with the French illustrations, and will be a favorite with the harm done. Paul says that it makes no following story of

From our Southern Correspondent. PASSING THROUGH THE FIRE. The people of the South may well be regarded as passing through a transition class of men who admit the word fail into period. Their old institutions have faded: their peculiar civilization outlived our expression of pleasure at the fact and outruled, and now they are called up on to adapt themselves to a new state o affairs, distasteful to them and against which they rebelled in vain. The Reconstruction measures of Congress are to them the cause of bitter complaint. The idea that their old political castes must be given up and their pet aristocracy give way before the measures of blindfold justice and universal rights. Every press cannot be tolerated only in certain ed in his office a few days ago. Witness the dozens, aye, scores of blacks who are maltreated, assaulted and basely murder-

Thousands of inhabitants respect the believing they are all too far away to regard or interfere with their malevolent actions until they have accomplished their purposes. The Freedman's Bureau, though much more available and generally ready to administer even handed justice and to protect the interest of the freedman, and though highly servicable. yet it is not an effectual barrier to all the tvrranny, injustice and wrong inflicted upon the loyal weak by the rebel hordes. Witnesses are tampeted with, threatened and intimidated, stupendous lies are fabricated by a class of people notorious for perfidy, the course of justice is turned aside, and the freedman suffers. What must be done to remedy these evils? What does the South want? Nothing but men of principle and means. Blest with a rich soil, a salubrious climate, innumerable facilities, all that is needed is population. And that of a certain kind. First, a population who are not willing to surrender to the vanquished all the fruits of the war, who are willing to join with the freedmen and the few Union whites in preserving liberty and the supremacy of the national government. WORK FOR OUR CITIZENS.

The present winter is beginning to develop an amount of distress among those of our citizens far beyond what has been common in the past. The season itself is not more than ordinarily severe, but the circumstances which times were more prosperous for the men employed in them, than in the summer time. If any distress was realized by this class of men him, that their works have often been run without profit to themselves in order to give employment to the men. Just now these works " manme, and that the thud of the en-But still there is a large number of our citizens out of employment, and the chances are season advances, and it becomes a serious ques-case. To us it is clear that if it can possibly is about the poorest thing that we can allow. They are not men who by nature desire the bounty of anybody, and their habits in the past have been of the most complete independeace. A fair day's work for a fair day's wages

Pastor Greene St. M. E. Church, Trenton, N.J. has been their motto in the past, and there is no desire in them to sink their manhood in this question, and any community sins greivously againt its political economy who allows any substitution of a lower idea. Many of these workmen have been economical and thrifty, cause them to imperil the reconstruction week. These could possibly His musical abilities were of a high order, and borrow money upon their property, and thus next, at 3 o'clock. had he given his attention exclusively to this, avoid actual want, but it is poor policy to so demoralize the bone and sinew of any people as would necessarily follow the months of enforced idlenes, and the discouragement of beholding their property wasting away. In this case also many of these persons would be driven from our city, and they are not a class which we can afford to lose. There are many however, who are not so favorably circumstanced, and who have no property whatever to fall back upon, and in these cases the ne cessity for doing something it still more imminished. Men who have been accustomed to maintaining their families in comfort and respectability are terribly tempted when they behold rags and want around them. We think the remedy is simple and easy. There are a great many public improvements needed in our city, improvement which our progress will necessitate in a very few year. The value of property passed, and many a lady has received more | ful policy to run the city much in debt under ordinary circumstances, still we think the poli tion offering relief to persons who must have it Give to our citizens who are out of work in their regular employment, the privilege of laboring upon their public improvements and let the city borrow the money to pay them. We do not believe that we should be the losers in the end, then in a monetary point of view, if we completed these improvements at the present time, while we are certain to lose largely if we do not do it, for, as we said before, these citizens must either be supported by their own labor, by munificence, or pubmency will come out of us, without equivalent, coupled with the degredation of the recipient, the city will receive a profitable remuneration Over Coats Over Coats and the morale of the men will be preserved. In the Irish famine, Great Britain adopted a scheme of public works by which large employment was given, and it was this course alone which prevented the most fearful riots ployment, and the works thus erected have been of lasting value, and have in themselves paid the interest of the money expended. In New Orleans, during the rebellion, while the Union authorities held the city, the same policy was adopted and the people preserved from starvation while the city was permanently improved. In New York, during a period of the greatest financial distress, the "Central Park' was placed in its present beautiful condition principally with the view of affording employment to their citizens, and the property around It has increased in taxable value, sufficiently to more than meet the interest on the cost. Instances of this might be multiplied indefinitely but these are sufficient. Our city authorities are men of practical sense and could easily the taxable value of property. If the season and they would largely prefer it to becoming all the money needed could be borrowed upon its bonds. We trust the subject will receive speedy consideration, and that the hearts of the men now living in enforced idleness, will be made glad by the privilege of earning the bread which their families must consume. PROOFS OF THE SUPERIORITY OF THE AMERICAN WALITHAM 819 CHESTNUT ST.

This country has reason to be proud of this splendid specimen of American operative genius and engiprise. That it will work a revolution in the watch manufacturing of the world no one can doubt, who examines the operations of the Waltham establishment, for it turns out watch movements at just about one-half the cost of imported movements—beside the uniform reliability of the machine-made watches must give thom a great advantage over all others, wherever known. A poor time piece of the machine make, will be as rare in the future, as a good one, of hand make, has been heretofore, for machinery is arbitrary in its performance, and can make a perfect article just as easy as one that is wor'hless. It will be a cause of contratulation if this highly useful American Enterprise shall have the effect of driving out of market the thousands of trac by foreign articles, miscalled timokeepers, by furnishing so excellent and economical satisfication.
