ANTI-MONOPOLY CONVENTION.

At the time of holding this convention on January 22d, we gave our readers a brief synopsis of the proceedings. Those proceedings we now propose to review more extensively...

New York is cited as an example for us to follow, in the matter of free railroads and it is asserted that the high prosperity of that portion of our territory is largely due to its possession of such a law.

As to its other principle of hostility to the Camden and Amboy road, we simply submit that it argues suspiciously for a cause that starts itself upon the avowed idea of breaking down a great state improvement...

The gentlemen who are connected with the "monopoly" enterprise are men whose characters are among the purest in the State, and we repeat that it borders upon idiocy to attribute the favor with which our chief Railroad companies are regarded...

The statement that they have opposed the building of roads in West Jersey is simply silly, for it is universally known that the Camden and Amboy Company made no opposition to the proposed Vineland stand, in proof beside that it does not stand in the way of the development of our section.

At a meeting of several citizens of South Vineland, held on Saturday last in connection with the Presiding Elder of the district, it was resolved to proceed with a vigorous effort to accomplish the erection of a Methodist Episcopal Church in that place.

Foster's History of New Jersey and the Rebellion. This work written by order of the Legislature, has been completed, and is now in the hands of agents, through whom the whole State will be supplied.

Mr. Foster is a brilliant writer who has spent his whole life in literary pursuits, and probably no better selection could have been made in the State, for the purpose.

The analysis of the causes which led to the war is clear and comprehensive, and the patriotic ardor in its full description of the incidents of our late struggle.

There were no braver or better regiments than those of New Jersey in the field, and the circumstances which proved their right to a noble record, are given in a manner that makes the hearts of Jerseymen proud.

There is a strong sentiment that will advance the temperance cause in the State, and that element very largely places the temperance principle considerably above any of the local issues, which enter into our State elections at the present time.

WEST JERSEY ACADEMY.

This institution, which for so many years past has maintained a high reputation in its grade of educational position, is still pursuing its course of studies, with increased popularity.

On Monday morning of this week, Joseph W. Hill, aged about eleven years, was riding on the lee, on Wood's Ferry, near Trenton, on Saturday evening February 22d.

There is a strong sentiment that will advance the temperance cause in the State, and that element very largely places the temperance principle considerably above any of the local issues, which enter into our State elections at the present time.

The Constitution prepared by the Alabama Convention, and submitted to the State of New Jersey, is not a model of wisdom and equity.

The Legislature with a moral tone which does credit, although there was only a small majority, have risen above partisan considerations, and refused to destroy the law, but there are desperate efforts being made for its repeal.

Trenton is becoming more and more lively as the result of the session, and more lively than it has been here before, for the most part the preliminary skirmishing to the great battle has been done.

Our State friends are anxious for an act of incorporation for a "gold company" whose mines are located in Colorado. It is so long since we have seen any gold, except in the windows of the jewelers.

The general Railroad Law has been introduced, but excites no particular interest, and will probably receive but little attention during the session.

The bill for reorganizing the section of New Jersey in the case of the fourth constitutional amendment has been reported, and is now on account of the illness of a member who wishes to speak upon it.

TEMPERANCE BILL.

We have looked with considerable interest upon the probable fate of the bill lately introduced into the Legislature, which proposes to repeal the liquor law of the last Legislature.
