All these indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.

Goolland's German Bitters Inolland's Octimen Billers is entirely vegetable, and contains no liquor. It is a compound of Fluid Extracts. The Roots, Relby, and Backs from which these extracts are made are gathered in Germany. All the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific chemist. These extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of these Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in compounding the Bitters, hence it is the only Bitters that can be used in cases where alcoholic stimulants are not advisable.

thoofland's German Conic is a combination of all the ingredients of the Billers, with your Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc. It is used for the so-diseases as the Billers, in cases where some policy holds stronglus is required. You will bear in mind that these remedies are entirely different from

DR. JACKSON—DEAR SIR: — I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all case declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bilters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes. Yours, very respectfully,

THE MANUFACTURER, GEORGE L. BROWNING. No. 20 Market Street, Camden, N. J. The following is a copy of an orgininal letter received by Mr. Browning. Scores of others testifying to the superiority of this phosphate might be given

Bridgeville, Del. June 2d, 1868. Mr. George L. Browning,
Dear Sir.—The phosphate I bought of you last fall for wheat, has exceeded my highest expectation.—The pround that it was put upon has had no manure upon it for fifteen years, beside it has had corn upon it almost every year, and it is what we term land worn out, and also the wheat was sown last October thought wheat would have grown so handsomely with such a small quantity of super phosphate as 200 lbs. to the acre. A gentleman living here all the days of his life, (and his father an old citizen who is a farmer of 600 acres, having used Moro Philips, Coes', Baughs', Rhoads', Wathnus' and other fertilizers,) put a farmer of 600 acres, having used more runips, coes, Baughs', Rhoads', Wahnas' and other fertilizers), put the grain in for me, and he says he never used and saw super phosphate act better nor produce what your super phosphate has done. An old citizen who has known this farm for 40 years, informed me that without the phosphate I would not have had grain more than six to eight inches high, now it is three feet high, and all out in head. As for garden truck, I would not be without it at five times the price. I have used what little I had left over from last fall, and the barrel has been opened all winter; and it is remarked every day by a gentleman here, that he never saw things grow so rapid; I never did in my life, and all owing to the phosphate. My daughter planted cucumber seed last Friday evening, May 29th, and this morning, June 3d, all were np. so much for your phosphate opened ever since last October. I would sooner do without almost anything than farm without phosphate.

Respectfully Yours.

A DONKEY TEACHING PHILOSOPHY

"Who'd be a donkey?" said a smart looking horse that was grazing in a meadow, under the hedge of which a heavily-laden donkey was picking up a thistle.

"Who'd be a donkey?" said a cow in the opposite meadow, looking at him through the gate.

"Who'd be a donkey?" said an elderly gentleman dressed in black, walking, in a reflecting manner up the road, his arms crossed behind his back, and his stick under his arm.

"Friends," said the donkey, with a very long piece of bramble hanging from his mouth, "you'll excuse my speaking while I'm eating, which is not polite; but in order to set your benevolent hearts at rest, I beg to assure you that I'd be a donkey."

"Woil," said the horse; "there'e no accounting for tastes. I would'nt. Do you mean to say that you prefer your ragged pasture out there to my delicious fare in here?"

"I never tasted yours," said the donkey; "mine is "Do you mean to say, friend," asked the cow, "that you prefer carrying that heavy load to living at ease is I do?" "I never lived at ease; I am used to my burden,"

"Inever lived at ease; 1 am used to my butten," said the donkey.

"I should think, my poor fellow," said the gentleman, "you would be glad to change places even with your master, vagabond that he is. You would certainly escape beating and starvation. I see the marks on your head where his blows have been; and your ribs very plainly tell what your ordinary fare is." your ribs very plainly tell what your ordinary fare is."

"Sir," said the donkey, "I am greatly obliged to you for your pity, but I assure you that it is misplaced; my master is more of a brute than I am, both when he gets intoxicated and when he beats me. I don't like beating, especially about the head; but it is a part of my lot to bear it, and when the pain is past I forget it. As to starving, there are degrees in starvation; I am many points from the bottom of the scale, as you may see from the delicate piece of bramble I was finishing when you spoke. I believe my master, who cannot dine on a hedge, more frequently suffers from hunger than I do,"

"Well, my friend," said the gentleman. "your philosophy is great; but that burden must be too much for you; it is twice too heavy for your size."

"It is heavy, sir; but who is without a burden? You sir, for instance—pardon me; not for worlds of thisties would I bring you on a par with a poor donkey—you are, as I should judge, the clergyman of this parish?"

-you are, as I should judge, the clergyman of this parish?"

"Yes," said the gentleman.

"And you have a family?"

"Yes, six children."

"And servants, of course?"

"Yes, three."

"Dear me!" said the donkey. "Sir, excuse me again; but what is my burden to yours? A parish, six children, and three servants!"

"Oh! but my cares are such that I am constituted to bear them."

"Just so, sir," said the donkey, "and my burden fits my back. The truth is, sir, I believe—and I would recommend you to put it into your next sermon—that half of our mants are created; half, and more than half of our blessings are lost for want of seeing them. I learned this from my mother, who was a very sensible donkey, and my experience of life has shown me its truth. With neither of my friends over the hedges would I change places, scornful as they look while I say it. As for you sir, let me tell you that a thunder-storm, which will not touch my old gray coat, will spoil your new black one; and I advise you to run for it, while I finish my dinner."

ONE MORE FOR THE VERY LAST. There is a sheriff in Illinois who was rather "taken There is a sheriff in Illinois who was rather "taken in" in that region on one occasion, and "done for." He made it a prominent part of his business to ferret out and punish pedidlers for traveling through the State without a license; but one morning he "met his match;" a "ginooine" Yankee peddler. "What have you got to sell?—any thing?" asked the sheriff.
"Yaes, sartain; what'd ye like to hev? Got razers, fustrate; that's an article, 'square, that you want, tew.

I should say, by the looks o' your baird. Got good blackin'; 't'll make them old cowhide boots o' your'n shine so't you can shave into 'em: Balm 'o Klumby, tew; only a dollar a bottle; good for the ha'r, and "as sistin' poor human natur," as the poet says."

The sheriff bought a bottle of the Balm of Columnian in the state of the Balm of the says. The sheriff bought a bottle of the Balm of Columbia, and in reply to the question whether he wanted any thing else, that functionary said he did; he wanted to see the Yankee's license for peddling in Illinois, that being his duty, as the high sheriff of the State!

The peddler showed him a document "fixed up good, in black and white," which the officer pronounced "all correct;" and handing it back to the peddler, he added, "I don't know, now that I've bought this stuff, that I care any thing about it. I reckon I may as well sell it to you ag'in. What'll you give for it?"

"O, I don't know as the darn'd stuff's any use to me, but seein' it's yeou, sheriff, I'll give yeou about thirty-seven and a half cents for it," quietly responded the trader. The sheriff handed over the bottle and received the change, when the peddler said—"I say, yeou, guess I've a question to ask you now. Hev yeou got a peddler's license about your trowse's?"

"No, I have'nt any use for the article, myself," said the snerm.
"Hain't, eh? Well, I guess we'll see about that pooty darn'd soon. Ef I understand the law, neow, it's a clear case that yeou've been tradin' with mehawkin' and peddin, Balm o' Klumby on the highdon't!"
Reaching the town, the Yankee was as good as his word, and the high sheriff was fined for peddling without a license. He was heard afterward to say, "You might as well hold a greased eel as a live Yankee!"

SENSIBLE. The English Independent discourses feelingly and sensibly on a topic that both ministers and their wives will appreciate:

"Must a minister never lose his heart to a bright "Must a minister never lose his heart to a bright eyed woman whose goodness and sense, and humor, and grace take his fancy? Must he always inquire, first, whether sne is clever at managing a Dorces society, and can hold her own in a committee? Must he ask her to spend a month among his people, and get a 'majority of two-thirds' of the ladies in her favor before he ventures to propose? He may cordially admire and honor women who have the special faculty, as well as the religious earnestness, for taking the lead in every kind of Christian work; for taking the lead in every kind of Christian work; if he take for a wife a woman of a shy and timid spirit, who would be ill a month if she had to 'take the chair' at a ladies' meeting, but who knows how to charm him into oblivion about his anxieties, can win his wearied mind away from incessant thought about his work, and can wander with him in the pleasant path of reading and speculation, which refresh and regenerate the exhausted strength. NATIONAL THANKSGIVING. Thursday, the 26th of the present month, has been set spart, both by Mr. Johnson, the President of the United States, and Governor Ward, as a suitable time in which the people of the entire country should assemble together in the various churches, and return heartfelt thanks to the giver of all good for the unnumbered blessings which have fallen to our lot this year. We trust that the recommendation of the authorities will not be disregarded, but that not only Christian people, but all others will publicly avow, upon that day, by their gifts and favors which have crowned the year. Apart from its being a religious duty springing out of the necessities of the case, the cultivamorals in the community, and at the same any one attending upon our churches and such occasions, could not fail to be impressed with the idea that the majority of the people either have but very little to feel grateful for. or else that they do not believe that their ception to the past, and that our excellent clergymen who prepare discourses for such he stifles the teachings of maternity and wan. times, which are worthy of being listened to ders, unheeding the still small voice within earnest thought and fervid utterance, was deby the entire population, may not be pained by beholding a beggarly array of empty seats, while their congregations are lounging away the time in stupid indolence, or else employing the day in bringing up the odds and ends of hitherto neglected business. Really there is much cause for gratitude and for its open expression. The crops, taken altogether. have been abundant and given us enough returns for the farmer's labor to insure the nation against any danger of want. The grass has vielded its emerald treasures for the support of the cattle; the oats, while light in some sections, has yet given enough for our needs: the wheat has fairly bent beneath the golden weight of its heads; the corn has seldom, if ever, been better, and almost every Our manufactures, while lacking the driving spur of some other years, have yet given employment to our artisans, while the trades of building have received wages amply sufficient

Besides these general ideas, each individual will recall Providential deliverances and interpositions during the past year, recoveries from sickness, protection amid dangers, the sparing of imperilled relatives, the keeping intact their family relationships, and a thousand other things which a thoughtful and devout mind will readily recognize. If people have been unfortunate, it will be wise to act on the reply of Dr. Johnson to a poor wretch, who asked what there was for him to be thankful for. "What is there to be thankful for ?" said the burly doctor, "why be thankful that things are no worse." We suppose it will be impossible for the defeated politicians to be thankful upon any other principle, but they can at least accept this, and still be thankful. In any event, upon the broad principle that upon God we are dependant for life and comfort, the fact that life and comfort have been our own, ought to be enough to inspire grateful expression to God, and we trust it will be freely offered upon the day the authorities have designated.

A sensation writer, pondering the morbid and prurient tastes of our low populace, sounding the depths of depraved New York, by nightly visits, ran upon the den of John Allen. He is an ignorant, coarse, shrewd, tonguey, depraved fellow. His father is a plain farmer in the centre of the State of New York. He has two brothers who are preachers. The magnificence of finish, and the grand and imposing appearance of the structure, when viewed from the front places, is beyond comparison with any other building on Chestnut street; while the internal arrangement is such that many columns of this Journal might be employed, and yet but a faint and imperfect description be given. The first floor is used as the sales and exhibition hall, and is turnished throughout in a style as original as it is novel. The front is one massive display of fine French Glass, there being no bulk windows, but merely a huge glass on either side of the entrance, which affords to the passer by a full view of the whole interior. The floor is of white marble blocks, while the ceiling which has a height of 21 fact. Is handsourly and tastellurly freeword. The several departments for the sale and display of the different wares are arranged with a view to the convenience and comfort to both purchasers and spectators. The effect of these reflectors of which there is a liberal supply throughout the whole establishment, is such that the magnitude of the place is apparently increased three-fold, while the brilliance of the precious stones and jewels is intensified and rendered doubly brilliant. On the East and West are elaborately carred walnut cases, with lights of fine French plate glass, well stocked with silver and fine plated goods. These cases are finished in the most superb style, each is lined with tufted French blue silk, whith handsome sofas to match are placed along the wall in the several recesses between the cases. In front of the sofas are tables for the display of goods. The jewelry department is located in the centre of the hall, the counter being of fine pollshed marble handsomely carved, and otherwise ornamented with new and unique detected. being of fine pollshed marble handsomely carved, and otherwise ornamented with new and unique designs. In front are fine Wilton carpets, manufactured from new designs, and expressly for Messrs. Bailey & Co., by the well known house of J. F. & E. B. Orne, of this city, who have furnished all in this line with excellent good taste and judgment. Adjoining the jewelry department is a small counting room enclesed in by white marble and French plate glass. To the rear are two columns, imitation of rose antique, extending from floor to ceiling. To the rear of these again is the department for the exhibition of bronzes, this apartment is also handsomely carpeted and lighted by a magnificent chandelier of real bronze and fine gilt. The apper stories are used as work shops, sleeping rooms, &c., &c., and the basement the packing and cleaning departments.

One note-worthy fact connected with this magnificent emporium, is that all the designs and ornamentations are entirely new and original—all 'he ornamentations are the pure style of Louis XVI, and Marie Antoinette; the several branches of the work required to place the establishment in its present attractive shape were entrusted to experienced and competent hands, and each seems to have vied with the other in the faithful performance of his task.—The frescoing, of which too much cannot be said, was done by Keyser, the magnificent cases, undoubtedly the best made in the country, are by Le' Jambro, while the ornamental wood work of the building is the labor of Messrs. Kemp & Garrison. The marble counters are from the quarries of Wm. E. Struthers & Sons. In opening this magnificent establishment, Mes-rs. Bailey & Co. have desired to lay before the nublic a stock of silver ware of elegant designs superior to any ever shown in Philadelphia, and with that view have taken the special agency of the Gorham Manufacturing Co's solid silver ware.

State Sunday School Convention.

Through the kindness of Mr. J. C. Bowen, secretary of the Cumberland county convention, we have received the minutes of the eleventh annual State Convention, held at Plainfield, on the luth. 11th and 12th of the present month. The address of the President, Hon C.C. Lathrop, on the importance of an increased devotion to the work, was both able and interisting. The reports of the different county secretaries showed a most encouraging prospect of fuure teristing. The reports of the different county secretaries showed a most encouraging prospect of future success, in which our own county was not a whit behind The conventions of a number of different States sent friendly greetings to the convention of New Jersey, who responded by appointing similar delegations to them. Among these, Rev. Mr. Ballard, of our city, was appointed as a delegate to the association of Pennylvania, and Mr. Bowen, who for five years has been our efficient county secretary, was reappointed. Rev. Ur. Cattell, of Lafayette college, Dr. Sutphen, of New York. Mr. Boyd, a Wall street broker, Dr. Egglerton, of Chicago. Rev Mr. Stout, of New Brunswick, Rev. David Fully, Mr. Clark. Rev. Mr. Freeman. of Newark, Mr. Lippincott, of Glassboro', Mr. Walters, of Flemington. Mr. Thompson, Han. John Hill, Rev. Alfred Taylor and Dr. McLane at different times addressed the convention on the Sabbath School interests of the M. E. Church, gave sn able address, which elicited the fullest'sppreciation of the convention, and Prof. Perkins, who was with us at the Musical Convention of our county last year, enlivened it with music. The convention separated with an increased devotion to the cause, which will no doubt be felt in the added efficiency of the schools throughout the year. We regret that want of space-compels us to abridge the excellent report of our county secretary, but we have given all for which we can possibly find the room.

readers in throwing out to them from day to day, nints in reference to Clothing, what to get, how to get it, and how to use it after they get it, points on which they are not posted, simply because they have been too busy with other things to give this matter much thought.

Now we almost all of us buy our clothes ready made, and often because we are struck with the color or quality of the goods, or because we think little about it anyway, we are careless about the "fit." It is a well established fact that a garment that fits exactly will outwear two that do not; but spart from all other considerations, it pays to get a good fit, if only for the additional comfort you will have in it—Take our advice, and when you buy your next coat see that it fits, and if they can't fit you exactly leave your measure. Mr. Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, says that he will make you up a garment according to your measure, in two days, and send it to you by express and that it shan't cost one cent more than though you found it ready made.

Why the Horse Bit the Clergyman.

A venerable bit of poetry explains it, some

The horse bit his Master: How came it to pass? He heard the good Pastor Say "all flesh is grass!"

That was it! when the animal bit his respectable master, the eloquent pastor-the pastor observed that he never deserved treatment like that, from a horse so well conditioned and fat. But the horse tried the plan of catching the man without his leave, by the upper edge of the left-hand sleeve; and he tried to bite, but missed it quite, and had to say "neigh! this isn't grass; it is tougher than hay!" And he tugged so long at the cloth so strong, and it seemed so tough, that it took so long to bite it through; and the hungry beast didn't know what to do. The congregation had exercised the discrimination to present their beloved pastor, the horse's master, with a good, strong suit; and an overcoat, to boot, and they got them all, at the place where the public delight to call for the best of clothing, to wear in the
